New Storm Heads From Montana Eastward

Expected to Follow Path of 'Big Blow'; Winds Build Fresh Drifts in Dakota

Chicago, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—A new storm swept into the northern Rocky Mountain States today.

The Weather Bureau at Denver issued a special warning. The new storm was roaring out of Montana at 50 miles an hour toward northern Wyoming.

It was expected to swirl east and south into Colorado over the same blizzard track taken by the big blow of January 2, the one that started the West's worst winter.

Subzero cold was forecast. Stockmen and ranchers were warned to protect their already-weakened range animals.

Setback to Road Clearance

Strong winds that churned earlier snows into new drifts in Wyoming and South Dakota threw the Army's "Operation Snowbound" for a net loss in the past 24 hours in its fight to keep roads open.

In Oregon Washington thaws set off floods in some areas and avalanches of snow and ice thundered into Columbia River gorges and mountain areas. Colder weather was moving in, however.

The worst situation was at the little construction camp at Anderson Ranch, Idaho, where 500 persons were menaced by tons of snow hanging 1000 feet above their heads on canyon walls. Avalanches already had buried some homes and isolated the camp.

Some Still Marooned

Railroads moved most of their stalled trains out of Wyoming, but some 250 passengers remained marooned at Hanna and about 500 were holed up at Rawlins.

At least seven main highways in Wyoming were closed and almost all secondary roads in six south-central counties were blocked.

The Army said the winds stopped its big bulldozer force cold in Wyoming and South Dakota, but good progress was made in Nebraska.

Utah enjoyed the warmest weather in more than two months. In some areas, however, wind and light new snow blocked highways again. All highways from Utah north into Idaho were impassable because of drifts.

Agencies Start Preparing For Widespread Floods

Government agencies yesterday began preparing for widespread spring floods, believed possible with the thawing of the heavy snows in the West and Midwest.

Army Engineers asked for 25 million dollars to prepare for possible catastrophic floods.

The request for more funds by the Army Engineers was made by Col. H. C. Gee, who told a group of Western Senators that his outfit needs "the money to prepare for the worst possible situation that can arise. We are hoping for a slow runoff, but we can't be sure now," he added.

In its monthly review the Geological Survey warned that the Missouri River Basin faces a serious flood, particularly along the middle reaches and tributaries.

Careful watch also is being kept on the Columbia River in the Pacific Northwest, Central Valley in California, the Middle Rio Grande, the Pecos River, Trinity River, Texas; the Colorado River, the entire Mississippi, and the Upper Ohio, Army Engineers said.

'Quake Rattles Dishes In San Joaquin Valley

Fresno, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP).—An earthquake shook Fresno and other sections of the San Joaquin Valley today at 1:06 p. m.

No damage was reported but dishes were rattled and chandeliers set to swinging. The quake also was felt in Tulare, Visalia, and Bakersfield.

Philadelphia Transit Strike Ties Up City

3 Million Reach Jobs Despite Walkout of 11,000 Workers

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP).—Men and women trudged the streets of Philadelphia like a vast army of ants today as a strike of CIO transit workers choked off the main arteries of travel in the Nation's third largest city.

Most of the 3,200,000 passengers who ride daily over the 1500 miles of Philadelphia Transportation Co. lines were resourceful enough to reach their jobs.

Many were late. Some never made it. Snow-crusted streets heaped an extra hardship on the laughing, joking throngs who inched their way to town aboard slow-moving, jammed-to-capacity suburban railway trains, by foot or by flagging down the unending stream of passing autos.

Offered 3, Want 20 Cents

The strike began at one minute after midnight as 11,000 Transport Workers Union members walked out in support of demands for a fourth-round wage boost of 20 cents an hour. The PTC countered with an offer of 3 cents. The workers now average from $1.09 to $1.63 an hour.

Negotiations were resumed 12 hours after the strike began but neither side budged from their announced wage positions. A union statement said "negotiations are deadlocked" and that it is preparing for a long strike.

It was the third strike of PTC workers within six years. The Army took over the transit facilities in 1944.

Manufacturing plants dispatched trucks to haul their workers to their jobs and car owners worked out transportation deals with neighbors.

Stores Report Good Business

During rush peaks autos along Broad st. queued up into lines as long as four blocks as motorists waited for traffic signals to change.

Most downtown firms reported business as usual. One businessman said "I don't know where they're coming from or how they're getting here, but we certainly have more customers than we expected."

The Philadelphia naval base which employs 20,000 civilian workers closed down tight for the weekend.

Commuter trains were jammed throughout the day.

Welfare Fund Finances Men Hurt in Pits

Seven bituminous coal miners, crippled by rock and slate falls in mine accidents since July, 1936, were entered yesterday in George Washington University Hospital.

They came to Washington from Lexington, Ky., and Charleston, W. Va., aboard a special Pullman car, all wards of the strike-won United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund.

All suffer some form of paralysis from injury to the spinal column, and all require specialized treatment and rehabilitation to less strenuous occupations, union officials said.

They were greeted on arrival at Union Station yesterday morning by Thomas Kennedy, international vice president of the UMW.

Three of the victims were stretcher cases. They are Fred Canterbury, 45, Carbondale, W. Va., partially paralyzed from a rock fall in November, 1942; Edward O'Donnell, 20, hurt last December 13, and Edward Weaver, 26, Elkatawa, Ky., injured in November, 1937.

The others, who manage to get about on canes or crutches, included Vivian Carl Knox, 37, Hazard, Ky., hurt in a slate fall in July, 1936; H. G. Bentley, 53, Lackey, Ky., injured in July, 1944; Clark Hinton, 49, Betsy Lane, Ky., hurt in May, 1946, and Ed Tolliver, 43, Millstone, Ky., injured in July, 1940.

Disabled miners are eligible for treatment financed by the fund whether or not their injuries were sustained before or after its establishment in 1946, fund officials pointed out. The fund, which now receives 20 cents for each mined ton of coal, is the outgrowth of the famous Krug-Lewis agreement in 1946 after seizure of the strike-bound coal mines by the Government.

Change in Dutch Policy On Indonesia Foreseen

The Hague, Netherlands, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Emanuel Sassen, Minister for Overseas Territories, resigned tonight after two days of cabinet meetings on the Indonesian situation.

Sassen's resignation caused speculation that the government might be ready to alter its opposition to U. N. recommendations to solve the Indonesian dispute.

Reports from Batavia, Java, said earlier today that Dutch High Commissioner Louis Beel had threatened to resign himself unless the government took a clear-cut stand on the U. N. resolution.

It is believed that by Tuesday, the U. N. deadline, the government may announce a change in its position.

Remington Gets Different Job on Return

Commerce Dept. Shifts Him From 'National Security' Export Spot

By The Associated Press

William W. Remington received a new assignment yesterday when he returned to work at the Commerce Department after being cleared of disloyalty charges.

The new job, Remington's boss said, does "not involve the dramatic issue of national security." The salary will be the same, $10,330 a year.

Remington, 31-year-old economist, was suspended last June after his name was brought into congressional spy hearings. At that time, he was director of the department's export program, which included decisions on what could be shipped to Russia and other countries in the Soviet sphere.

Francis E. McIntyre, assistant director of the department's office of international trade and Remington's immediate superior, said Remington's new assignment will deal with general imports into this country.

Senators Protest Return

This task, McIntyre explained to a reporter, "covers important work, worthy of his ability, but does not involve the dramatic issue of national security."

The department's announcement Thursday that Remington would be returned to work, if he wanted it, brought angry protests from Senators who conducted last year's spy hearings.

The department's announcement came after the Government's top loyalty review board disclosed it had reversed findings of a regional panel that Remington should be ousted from his job because of "a reasonable suspicion of disloyalty."

McIntyre said he thought it would be "unfair all around" to put Remington back on his old job of clearing shipments to foreign countries.

While the United States has carefully controlled exports to the Soviet area to block shipment of potential war goods, the policy has been to encourage imports from Russia. This policy has applied expecially to imports of such vital materials as manganese.

Almond's Ruling Cited

Arlington Religious Classes Legal, School Lawyer Says

Arlington County's policy of granting pupils free time to attend religious education classes in county schools is legal under Virginia law, according to Frank L. Ball, jr., attorney for the county school board.

In his opinion, released by the school board yesterday, Ball cited an opinion handed down in July, 1948, by Virginia Attorney General J. Lindsey Almond, jr., who ruled the type of religious education given in Arlington schools was "constitutionally unobjectionable."

The attorney contended that in Virginia an official ruling by the attorney general is the "official interpretation" of the law "in lieu of a decision by a court of competent jurisdiction."

There has been no court reversal of Almond's ruling, which was requested by State school officials shortly after the Supreme Court outlawed religious education classes in Champaign, Ill., on March 8, 1948, it was pointed out.

Ball said that, under the Arlington system, all classes in religion and moral instruction are operated "independently of the control, supervision and responsibility of the public schools," and no public funds are used.

After studying Almond's ruling along with briefs filed by opponents of the Arlington system, Ball wrote: "We find nothing to indicate the illegality of the Arlington arrangement as interpreted" in the opinion.

Ball's report on the legality of the program was requested by the school board January 25, after a delegation appeared to protest the religious classes.

The delegation included representatives of the Arlington Provisional Committee for Separation of Church and School, the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Arlington and the Washington Ethical Society.

Commenting on the contention of one objector that "the interests of certain sects are being promoted on school time," Ball wrote:

"If the arguments of the opponents of the program were carried

Tax Boost Awaits Word On Spending

Action Is Delayed But Leaders Say Increase Is Still Good Possibility

Congressional leaders yesterday refused to write off tax increases this session despite "go slow" signals on both sides of the Capitol.

Leading Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee put the President's renewed request for four billion dollars in additional taxes on a strictly "if necessary" basis.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee echoed this view and predicted:

"Congress will pass a tax bill rather than add to the National debt."

House Appropriations Committee meanwhile set a May 1 target date for putting all appropriation bills through the House. Cannon said this would show the "spending record" of Congress in plenty of time to increase taxes if revenues seem likely to fall below Government costs. Said Cannon:

"We are going to cut the living daylights out of everything that can be cut."

He went on to say that he doubted whether enough cuts could be made where more taxes would not be needed, but that if expenditures exceeded revenues, he was positive Congress would not favor deficit spending and would favor taxes to meet the deficit rather than increase the national debt.

The congressional amber light on new tax legislation flashed again yesterday when the House Ways and Means Committee voted to open hearings on the President's Social Security expansion proposals on February 28.

The net effect is to hold up any House action on taxes until hearings have been concluded on recommendations for increased old age assistance, aid to the blind, aid to dependent children and old age and survivors insurance. That may take from 30 to 60 days.

Leading Ways and Means Democrats, who declined to be quoted, denied emphatically however that this foreclosed later action on taxes.

One ranking member pointed to the possibility that congressional "pressure group" appropriations, plus Administration projects not yet estimated, may boost the spending total to nearer 46 billion dollars than the now budgeted $41,858,000,000.

In that case, even the President's four billion tax increase wouldn't foot the bill.

The chief threat of a budget upset stems from plans of the House Veterans Committee to soon send to the House floor a World Wars I and II pension bill costing the Government one and one-half billion dollars the first year.

The current 70-group Air Force drive may be another budget lifter.

In addition, Atlantic Pact costs, "unofficially estimated to total at least another one and one-half billion, aren't figured in the budget, nor are some other international "must" items, such as Greek-Turkish aid.

That's why even the leading Capitol Hill champions of moderate taxes won't kill off a tax increase at this time.

Polish Men, Women Called Up for Reserve

In presenting the Policeman-of-the-Month Award posthumously yesterday to Corp. Grady A. Beacham, Maj. Robert J. Barrett personally pledged to "go down fighting doing the best job I can."

Beacham, whose award was for December, was killed last December 2 while trying to make an arrest. His widow, now an employe of the Police Department, accepted the award.

All previous recipients of the award were invited to attend the ceremony in the police lineup room, as this marked the end of the first year of the awards. Other police personnel and the police band were present.

Barrett told those at the ceremony that he was very proud of the Police Department, and that he was doing the best he could for it.

"I have got knocked," he said, "but every knock is a boost. I was born and I am going to die rocking with the punches." In discussing the aims of the department, Barrett said:

"I am not going to leave it. I'll be here for this Boys Club drive and the next one if I want it. I am going down fighting doing the best job I can for the public. I love it."

Spectators at the ceremony noticed that Barrett's voice was visibly shaken with emotion as he made his presentation speech.

Barrett told Mrs. Beacham that he was proud to present the award to her, and added that she was now a police employe and "I am her boss."

He warned that policemen "never know what's going to happen" when they leave for duty. "We all have our narrow escapes," said Barrett.

Beacham and Pvt. Harry C. Womble, both of the Ninth Precinct, went to 1601 Montello ave. ne. last December 2 in response to complaints by Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, of that address, against Sterling Wilkerson.

When they arrived, they found that Wilkerson had barricaded himself in a room with Mrs. Armstrong. Beacham kicked in the door of the room and was struck in the chest by a shotgun charge. Womble killed Wilkerson with a shot from his service revolver.

In the citation prepared by awards committee, Beacham's selection, it was stated, was made "in the belief that the action of a policeman in laying down his life in service to the community deserves the highest honor it lies in the power of the committee to bestow."

The committee also commended Womble in the Wilkerson case.

Commended for their work in solving the Charles Hines murder at the Ambassador Hotel, December 8, were Pvt. Albert F. Mode, First Precinct, and Detective Sergts. John K. Baker and George W. Cook.

Dynamite Plot Is Discovered At Korea Rally for U. N. Team

Mine Found on Road To Jerusalem Offices

Tel Aviv, Israel, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—United Nations observers said today that a land mine had been discovered on the road leading to Government House in Jerusalem, where members of the U. N. Palestine Conciliation Commission are staying.

They said they followed wires leading from the mine to an Israeli outpost "some distance away," and that the mine was "well within the neutral zone surrounding Government House."

An official U. N. communique said "representations" were made to Israeli military and civil officials in Jerusalem.

The United States is represented on the three-man conciliation commission by Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal.

[The Associated Press said Col. Boshe Dayan, Israeli commander, explained the mine did not endanger the commissioners and belonged to an old defense line. He said he had already given orders for its dismantlement.

Meanwhile, prison gates swung open in Israel today as the general amnesty voted by the Provisional State Council went into effect. The general amnesty coincided with the arrival in Haifa of the last 1600 inmates of Cyprus internment camps aboard the SS Azmut.

Two leaders of the Stern Group, Nathan Friedman Yellin and Mattityahu Shmuelewitz, sentenced to prison yesterday for terrorist activities, were still in jail today.

Nine Held in Attempt To Blow Up Stadium

Seoul (Saturday), Feb. 12 (AP).—Korean police today disclosed a plot to dynamite the Seoul Stadium at a welcoming rally for the United Nations Commission on Korea later in the day.

Police Capt. Park Po Yung said nine men were under arrest.

The three captured first confessed the plot and gave information leading to the apprehension of six more during the night, Park reported.

The officer said the trio was captured carrying 70 feet of wire near the stadium.

The U. N. Commission has just arrived here to see what it can do to unify Korea—divided into American and Soviet Russian occupation zones, with rival Korean governments in each sector.

President Syngman Rhee of the Korean Republic in the American zone, U. N. delegates from China, France, Australia, the Philippines, Syria and India, and foreign diplomats planned to attend the rally.

Captain Park said the three arrested first said they were to meet their confederates to plant time bombs under the grandstand. He said they identified themselves as members of the Communist-controlled South Korea Labor Party.

Park said the three men also admitted they were involved in four to six political assassinations in South Korea during the past year and the shooting of a Seoul policeman.

Tito Protests Exclusion by Red Aid Bloc

Russia Rejects Note On the Grounds That Yugoslavia Is 'Hostile'

London, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia has protested formally to Russia against being locked out of the eastern European Economic Council of Mutual Aid, and Russia has rejected the protest on the ground that Yugoslavia is "hostile," the Soviet Tass news agency reported tonight.

A Yugoslav note delivered to the Soviet embassy in Belgrade February 1 demanded that Russia and the eastern European bloc live up to their treaties and stop discriminating against Yugoslavia, according to the Tass broadcast recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

Yugoslavia asked to join in the eastern European counterpart of the Marshall Plan and informed Russia that her exclusion "contradicted" Yugoslav treaties with Russia and other eastern European states in the Soviet orbit.

Tass said the curt Soviet rejection was delivered Friday.

"The Soviet government considers the assertion of the Yugoslav government unfounded since the Yugoslav government itself excluded any possibility of Yugoslav participation in the Moscow conference by taking a hostile position toward the U.S.S.R. and countries of the people's democracies," the Soviet rejection said, as quoted by Tass.

It was the sharpest exchange between the two governments since Yugoslavia was expelled from the Communist Information Bureau last year.

Bolivia Prepares To Ask 4 Million Loan

Bolivian government representatives will open negotiations Monday with the Export-Import Bank on a Bolivian loan request for around four million for construction of a tin concentration plant.

Embassy officials said yesterday the plant would be located in the Bolivian mining center of Oruro, and would be designed to increase the concentrate of tin exports sent to the smelting plant at Texas City, Tex.

Lange Leaves After Talks on Security Pact

Norwegian Minister Completes Five Days Of Conferences Here

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Norway's Foreign Minister turned homeward last night prepared to advise his government whether it should take the grave step of joining the North Atlantic defense pact in the face of Soviet warnings.

Foreign Minister Halvard M. Lange completed five days of conferences here yesterday when he walked out of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's office after an hour and 20 minutes of discussion. Earlier in the day he had talked for 15 minutes with President Truman at the White House.

Immediately upon Lange's departure from the State Department, a joint statement was issued which said:

"No decisions were contemplated or reached during the discussions."

Going to See Bevin

The statement reiterated what Lange had said before leaving Oslo February 5: that "his purpose in coming to Washington was to obtain information concerning the proposed North Atlantic pact." It added:

"In the conversations between the Foreign Minister and members of his delegation and the Secretary of State, there has been full and frank discussion of the objective and nature of the proposed pact.

"The Norwegian delegation also presented its views regarding security problems confronting Norway, all aspects of which were carefully considered."

Questioned by reporters when he emerged from Acheson's office, Lange declined to enlarge upon the formal statement. He said only that he would leave last night for London where he would discuss the terms of the treaty with British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin before presenting his recommendation to the Norwegian Parliament.

Lange's call on Mr. Truman he described as a "courtesy" visit and said he did not bring up Norway's

15 Pastors Accused as Spies Have Confessed, Bulgaria Says

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The government said today that 15 Protestant church leaders accused of being spies had "all made complete self-confessions."

The accused are ministers of the Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Pentecost churches, and members of the supreme council of the United Evangelical Churches of Bulgaria.

They were arrested in December, and have been in prison since.

All were charged with supplying information about Bulgarian activities to American and British representatives here. The six-count indictment also accused them of black market currency dealings.

The synod of the Bulgarian Orthodox Church, whose membership includes the vast majority of Bulgaria's seven million people, appealed to all members for "active cooperation" with the government.

The indictment lists alleged connections between the accused ministers and 10 Americans and British who have been in Sofia in recent years.

The Americans named included former Acting Minister John Horner, Legation Secretary Cyril Black and Louise Beck, an employe of the legation. The only unofficial person mentioned is Miss Melanie Turner, a school teacher, identified as a "high official" of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party.

[The Associated Press said most of the Americans named in the indictment have left Bulgaria, U. S. State Department records showed. Those available for comment denied the charges.]

U. S. Expels Secretary of Hungarian Legation

Diplomat Declared Unacceptable Here; Trial of Bulgarian Churchmen Protested

The United States yesterday ordered a Hungarian diplomat to leave this country.

The action apparently was in retaliation for Hungary's expulsion of two members of the United States legation staff in Budapest.

At the same time the State Department issued a statement denouncing the indictment in Bulgaria of 15 Protestant religious leaders and charging it is a part of a Communist drive to smash religious freedom.

No Charges Made

John G. Florian, first secretary of the Hungarian legation here, was the diplomat whose expulsion was ordered. No charges were placed against him. He was simply declared no longer acceptable to this country.

The State Department's document on the Bulgarian charges against leaders of the United Evangelical Church in that Communist-ruled country said the similarity between the "fantastic accusations" made against them and those against Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary "strikingly emphasized the concerted nature of the continuing Communist assault on religious liberties in eastern Europe."

Have Common Element

Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to life imprisonment on treason charges. An indictment made public in Sofia, Bulgaria, Thursday said 15 leaders of the United Evangelical Churches are to be tried on charges of espionage for the United States and Britain.

A common element in Hungary and Bulgaria has been the accusation by the Communist prosecution that the churchmen were guilty of various crimes against the state through cooperation with American agents. It was in connection with such charges that the Hungarian regime expelled Stephen Koczak, second secretary of the United States legation, and Robin E. Steussy, third secretary.

The reaction on Capitol Hill to the expulsion of Hungarian diplomat Florian was quick and enthusiastic.

Senator Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"I highly approve the action of the State Department."

State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said with a straight face that it was "pure coincidence" that this move came so soon after Hungary expelled the two American legation officials.

However, the United States began two months ago to follow a general policy of retaliation when Americans are thrown out of iron curtain countries.

Hungary Expels Two

Two members of the Hungarian legation staff already had resigned this week in protest against their government's treatment of Cardinal Mindszenty.

Wednesday the Hungarian government ordered the recall of Robin E. Steussy, third secretary and vice consul at the American Legation in Budapest. Stephen Koczak, second secretary and vice consul of the legation in Budapest, had been ordered out of Hungary on January 29 on the ground that he was suspected of performing "intelligence operations."

Asked about the latest episode in Bulgaria, McDermott said most of the Americans named in that country's indictment of 15 churchmen have left Bulgaria. Twelve Americans and Britons were named in the indictments as alleged spy contacts for the Bulgarian church officials.

However strongly Americans and millions of other people living outside the Soviet sphere may feel about such trials, it appeared there is little that can be done except issue statements—and possibly intervene through the United Nations.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Two Paradoxes, Kimball and Koehler, Named as Assistant Navy Secretaries

Big Dan Kimball, whose appointment as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air was announced yesterday by President Truman, would stand out in a crowd anywhere just for his sheer size. He's 6 foot, 3, and weighs 230.

But on two other counts also he'll be pointed out at Washington receptions and cocktail parties. The man's a paradox. He just is what you'd expect.

A topflight industrialist, he's not only a good Democrat; he was a supporter of FDR and believed all along Truman would win last fall. Not only that, he was one of the rare birds who won money on the election.

And more, he'll be the first former Army Air Force pilot to head up naval aviation!

Flew With Doolittle

Naval airmen needn't shudder, however. Kimball's service was in World War I. He learned to fly with Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, but left the Air Force in 1918 as a lieutenant.

Today, he's vice president and director of General Tire & Rubber Co., in charge of their West Coast operations. He's also executive vice president of Aerojet Engineering Corp. a general subsidiary which makes JATO.

At 52, Kimball flies his own private plane, and is a crack golfer. Born in St. Louis, he now lives in Hollywood and plays golf at the Wilshire Country Club with Bing Crosby. Friends, who include his new boss, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan, say Kimball also is a dangerous gin rummy player, has a fund of stories, laughs a lot, and is never seen without a cigar in his mouth.

President Truman appointed another Assistant Secretary of the Navy yesterday and in a different way, he's as paradoxical as Dan Kimball. A prosaic tax lawyer until Pearl Harbor, John T. Koehler entered the Navy and became the first man to lead the Navy's "frogmen" in battle.

"Frogmen," you'll recall, are members of the Navy's underwater demolition teams. They're the fellows who go into an enemy's fortified shores in rubber boats just before D-Day to blow up any underwater defenses and determine whether landing craft can get in close. The term frogmen comes from the webfooted flappers they wear on their feet.

Koehler, who lives at 2311 Connecticut ave. and keeps a voting residence in Maryland, shouldn't take long to get on to his new job. He is now assistant general counsel of the Navy Department.

A native of North Braddock, Pa., the 44-year-old official went to Princeton and then Harvard Law School. He was attorney for some shipbuilding firms before Pearl Harbor and had many dealings with the Navy's Bureau of Ships. When war came, the admirals asked him to come over from Baltimore and help out with their legal problems.

Beachmaster at Gela

Then the draft beckoned, and Navy wanted to commission him. He agreed if they'd send him overseas. Sent to North Africa just before the invasion of Sicily, Koehler found himself beachmaster at Gela, where we met our worst opposition from the Krauts. He went in on D-Day.

After the shooting died down, Koehler faced another problem. A shipload of beer and coke had arrived for his outfit, but how could he pass out a couple of cans of beer each evening to his sailors while they were living alongside the Army's First Division. The soldiers had no such luxuries. Koehler solved the problem by throwing a big party for everyone. The troublesome beer and coke was consumed in one night.

Apparently his men didn't mind sharing either, for when he was ordered to the Pacific later, they got up a scroll. It declared they'd like to serve under him anywhere throughout the war.

Bachelor Who Paints

In the Pacific, Lieutenant Koehler was put in command of the underwater demolition team, spearheading the invasion of Roi-Namur in the Marshall Islands. He won the Silver Star for this and the job of organizing other "demo" teams.

A six-footer, with a slowly receating hair line and rimless specs, Koehler is described by Navy associates as a vigorous and decisive administrator. He's a bachelor and paints watercolors and grows things in his own greenhouse for recreation.

Kimball Gets Brown's Navy Air Arm Post

John Nicholas Brown resigned yesterday as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air. Dan A. Kimball of Los Angeles was appointed to succeed him.

The White House also announced President Truman has named John T. Koehler, now Assistant General Counsel for the Navy, as an Assistant Secretary of the Navy. He succeeds Mark E. Andrews, whose resignation was announced earlier this week.

Kimball will replace Brown the second week in March.

The White House said the nominations of Koehler and Kimball will be sent to the Senate Monday.

Brown, 48, has been Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air since 1946. He is a banker whose home is at Newport, R. I.

In a letter made public by the White House, Brown said he is leaving March 8 "for personal reasons." The President replied that he regretted "exceedingly" that Brown found it necessary to quit at this time. But, Mr. Truman added, "I understand the situation very well."

The President praised Brown's "wonderful service" and expressed hope he "will be willing on special occasions to help us out once in a while."

Revenue Bureau Claims 96 Pct. Tax Conviction Record

The Internal Revenue Bureau claimed a record yesterday of 96 convictions for each 100 persons tried for criminal evasion of tax laws.

The bureau said only 13 persons were acquitted out of 328 put on trial during fiscal 1948, ended last June 30.

Extra tax, interest and penalty assessments imposed in that period as a result of investigations of income and excess profits tax returns reached a record high of $1,405,624,010, the bureau's annual report showed.

J.; Richmond, Norfolk, Bon Air, South Norfolk, Arlington, Alexandria, and Arlandia, in Virginia.

Noted Negro Appointed Aide to FSA Director

By The Associated Press

Mrs. Anna Arnold Hedgeman, a leading Negro social worker, has been named assistant to Federal Security Administrator Oscar E. Ewing.

Ewing announced her appointment yesterday. A native of Marshalltown, Iowa, Mrs. Hedgeman has had a 24-year career in welfare work.

Idle Benefit Claims Mount; Prices Slide

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Increasing claims for unemployment benefits and continuing drops in the index of wholesale prices marked yesterday's economic developments.

The United States Employment Service reported unemployment claims increased about 46,400 for the week ended February 5, over the preceding week. It was the tenth straight week in which increases have been repored, Director Robert C. Goodwin said.

State employment directors reported 348,225 initial claims and 1,707,351 continued claims for that week, which were 57,000 and 598,000, respectively above the corresponding week in 1948, or a total of 655,000.

Part Due to Weather

Goodwin blamed rising unemployment on seasonal layoffs, fewer job openings, and continued severe weather, which delayed construction and outside work.

At the White House, the storm situation and downward swing in commodity prices that seemed to accompany the blizzards in the cattle, sheep, corn and wheat country were discussed in an hour-long session.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, who, in addition to his official concern with the storm area, heads the Cabinet Anti-Inflation Committee, reported the latest developments. Members refused to discuss the meeting with newsmen. Vice President Barkley brushed off questions with the remark that his new office is making him "so silent I make Calvin Coolidge sound like a loquacious old man."

Drops to 1947 Level

The extent of the break was reflected in the wholesale price index reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. During the week ended Tuesday, wholesale prices dropped to about the level of September, 1947. The whole index dropped 1.2 per cent, mainly as a result of a decline of 4 per cent in one day in seven farm commodities. Since August the decline has been 7.7 per cent.

At the International Wheat Conference, where 53 nations are trying to reach a five-year agreement on a world wheat export and price basis, Chairman Van Essche of Belgium announced that daily meetings will begin Monday.

Several importing nations, it was stated, expect to increase their purchases in view of indications that Russia will offer wheat for export.

Accuses Board

Giannini Replies With New Charge

By The Associated Press

The Transamerica Corporation's colorful chairman, 78-year-old A. P. Giannini, hurled a counter charge about agreement breaking at the Federal Reserve Board yesterday.

The San Francisco banker, an energetic figure despite his age, also set out some peppery opinions about the board in a letter introduced at the board's antitrust trial of Transamerica.

He complained that the board had tried to "discriminate" against Transamerica and the Bank of America, which Giannini founded, by putting tighter restrictions on them than on other banking organizations, through legislation and otherwise.

"We have never sought and do not seek any exceptional treatment, . . . (but) what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander so far as we are concerned," his letter said. . . .

Gentlemen's Agreement Denied

"We have no especial interest in anti-holding company legislation, and we would not think of surrendering our equal rights as American citizens as an inducement to the avoidance of legislation which may be thought by some to be undesirable."

Introduction of the letter, written in April, 1943, was a defense reply to a contention by Marriner S. Eccles of the Reserve Board that a "gentlemen's agreement" involving Transamerica had been made by Giannini's son, L. M. Giannini, in 1940 and broken the following year.

Transamerica counsel denied there had been any agreement and further insisted that L. M. Giannini, although president of the Bank of America, could not have spoken for Transamerica because he was not an officer of it.

Eccles Can't Recall Letter

The letter, which Eccles said on the witness stand he could not recall seeing before, dealt with an alleged understanding between A. P. Giannini and the Reserve Board, including Eccles, at a conference held here in 1943.

In it, the elder Giannini charged that board members had made "a vital change" in an understanding directed toward reaching an agreement that Transamerica would not expand its system by taking in more banks beyond a certain point.

He said the understanding was that Transamerica might commit itself to stop expanding—if other banks and holding companies would do likewise—except upon approval of the Reserve Board.

Expediter Suggests U. S. Put Apartments Before Houses

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods told Congress yesterday the Government may have to discourage the building of single family dwellings in favor of more apartments if the housing shortage is to be licked.

Testifying before the joint Senate-House Economic Committee, Woods placed the Nation's need at more than one million new family dwelling units a year.

If materials and manpower are not sufficient to meet this in single houses, Wood said, the Government could spur the construction of apartments by use of credit and risk insurance.

"If our total supply of manpower and building materials cannot be expanded rapidly enough to produce more than one million units a year, then I would recommend temporarily the deliberate discouragement of the construction of family units for sale," Woods said.

Asks Incentives, Rent Curbs

The Government, Woods pointed out, could encourage builders to make the switch by "a deliberate tightening of credit and risk insurance requirements for homes, and by giving additional incentives to builders of multiple-unit structures."

Structures with many apartments "can be built faster, cheaper and with less material" than single homes for the same number of people, he noted.

Woods also renewed the Administration request for reimposition of rent controls in a greatly strengthened form.

Raymond M. Foley, Housing and Home Finance Administrator, repeated earlier testimony before the Senate Banking Committee that there is some evidence that construction costs may be stabilizing. He said it was possible the turning point in the high-cost-of-building spiral may have been reached.

Unions Ask Stiffer Curbs

In order to meet the present shortage Foley urged liberal government financial aid to the home-building industry.

Meanwhile before the House Banking Committee veterans and labor unions urged that rent control be extended in greatly strengthened form for at least two years.

Peter Henle, acting secretary of the AFL Housing Committee, told the House group that better labor representation is needed on local rent boards. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen joined in the appeal for stronger controls over rents.

Small Towns Want Projects

Before the Senate Banking Committee State Treasurer George B Hamilton of Georgia asked that small towns receive a greater share of subsidized housing under the Administration's proposed new housing program. Hamilton appeared before the committee as president of the National Association of Rural Housing which asks that one-fifth of the 1,050,000 public housing units proposed in the seven-year program be earmarked for the little communities.

Southerners Plan Fight on Rules Change

Fourteen Southern Senators yesterday talked over plans to fight anti-filibuster legislation approved by the Senate Rules Committee and agreed to organize for the battle on Monday.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) spokesman for the group, said plans to oppose the rules change, when it is brought before the Senate, are unaltered.

The Rules Committee earlier this week favorably reported the Hayden-Wherry resolution, closing debate on any issue by a two thirds majority of the Senate.

Senator Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.), meanwhile disclaimed authorship of a proposed Southern "compromise" attributed to him in other quarters. The so-called compromise would stop debate by a three-fourths vote of Senators present.

"I don't know anything about it," said Chapman.

Merritt Family Gets Extension From Walter Reed

Things are looking up for the Harry Merritt family in Glen Haven, Md.

Through the intervention of United States Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.), Walter Reed Hospital officials have given the family a six months reprieve on their scheduled eviction.

Just to overflow the family's cup of joy, the retired Army sergeant has been reemployed as a county school bus driver. He lost his job because of illness.

Sergeant Merritt served 28 years in the Army and has lived at Glen Haven the past nine years. He was retired for disability two years ago.

Several weeks ago the family was ordered ot evacuate the Glen Haven house to make way for personnel of the hospital, where, incidentally, he formerly was stationed.

Congress of RPF Opened by De Gaulle

Lille, France, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle opened the second annual congress of his Rally of the French People (RPF) today. Its decisions will "weigh heavily in the future of France," he said.

De Gaullee will make his major address Sunday morning. The Communists have organized a counter-demonstration.

200 Employes Seek to Purchase Overseas Airlines

A group of more than 200 employes of American Overseas Airlines (AOA) told the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday they would like to buy the company. They asked time to try to work out financing before the board acts on a proposal to merge AOA with Pan-American Airways.

James M. Landis, former CAB chairman, as counsel for the group, filed a petition with the CAB. It said pilots, radio operators, flight engineers, stewardesses, mechanics and office workers are among those interested in buying AOA. It said they have pledged about one million dollars and believe pledges can be increased to two milion dollars.

A plan under which Pan-American Airways would acquire AOA in a deal involving from 14 to 18 million dollars was announced last December 12. The two airlines compete across the Atlantic as far as London. Beyond there they operate noncompetitive routes.

AOA is a subsidiary of American Airlines, which purchased control from American Export Lines, a steamship company, about four years ago.

Maryland Urges Coast States Back Tidelands Claim

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Maryland's Attorney General Hall Hammond today called on all coastal States to enact legislation urging Congress to "confirm" the States' claim to submerged tidelands.

Hammond, chairman of the submerged lands committee of the National Association of Attorneys General, issued "an urgent message" to State Legislatures.

A sample resolution will be introduced Monday in the Maryland General Assembly, according to Chairman Bernard S. Melnicove (D., Baltimore Fourth) of the House judiciary committee.

The resolution, he said, will request Congress to "enact a bill confirming the title of the several States of the Union to submerged lands within their borders" and to define and delimit territorial waters of the United States.

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A new trial was asked formally today for Thomas A. Edwards, who was convicted this week of the shotgun murder of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline.

Truman to Attend 35th Division Reunion

President Truman will attend the annual reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division at Little Rock, Ark., June 10-12.

The President's cousin, Maj. Gen. Ralph E. Truman, retired, said at the White House yesterday that the President's plans to go are definitely set. He attended last year's reunion at Omaha, Nebr.

Mr. Truman commanded Battery D of the Thirty-fifth Division's 129th Field Artillery in the First World War.

Employment in Virginia Hit 2½-Year Low in Mid-January

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Cutbacks in all of Virginia's manufacturing industries, with the exception of apparel and paper products groups, brought factory employment down to 206,300 in mid-January, the lowest level since August, 1946.

This was disclosed today by figures compiled by the State Department of Labor in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The January figure reflects a drop of 5000 employes from the previous month and a decrease of 7300 from the January, 1948, total. The report said declines have been steady since the October, 1948, all-time high of 218,400.

A change in the buying habits of retail stores, the report said, was one of the major components affecting the employment trend. For the past eight years, while goods were scarce, retail establishments placed orders six months ahead for the entire amount of stock needed for the year, the department explained.

But now that goods are more plentiful the stores are making only small initial purchases and relying on the manufacturers to be able to fill reorders, it added.

Hoover Plan For Personnel Is Criticized

The National Federation of Federal Employes yesterday hit Hoover Commission proposals to decentralize control over Federal personnel as a possible invitation to the discarded spoils system.

Luther C. Steward, president of the largest and oldest of Federal employe organizations, said the proposals might open "a veritable Pandora's box . . . confusion, spoils practices, lack of uniformity and many other evils."

The Hoover Commission recommended Thursday that the individual Federal departments and agencies have the authority to administer their own personnel transactions in job placements, promotions, dismissals and other "activities."

Favoritism Feared

Steward said the result would be "not administrative progress but retrogression" unless there was "firm" enforcement by the chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

He said the proposals provide for "vastly increased delegation of authority to heads of existing agencies and in turn down through the grades of supervision. It provides as well for very broad discretion to such officials in all matters of appointment, promotion and dismissal."

"Without question," he said, "such authority would afford—and perhaps invite—wholesale manipulation and development of favoritism in its most widespread and pernicious form," subject only to the "firmness" of the Civil Service Commission chairman.

He said the NFFE believes the recommendations "would pose an almost superhuman problem" for the chairman of the commission.

Salary Plan Questioned

Steward also questioned the "soundness" of the Hoover Commission's recommendations that Federal salaries be fixed according to prevailing rates in comparable jobs in private industry in particular areas.

Steward also criticized the Hoover Commission proposals to abolish "one out of three" hiring procedures and allow agencies to group job applicants in four different groups for purposes of selection.

Unless the "greatest care were taken and the greatest firmness ultimately exercised" by the commission or any other central agency set up for over-all personnel supervision he said "malpractices seriously hurtful to the service" would result.

Favors Some Sections

He said some of the Hoover group proposals, such as increased opportunities for qualified employes, are "constructive."

"The fact that there is a minority report indicates the extent of the differing viewpoints which have been reconciled in the final report," he said.

"Each proposal must be considered on its own merits—and, as well, within the context of the entire framework of governmental structure and human nature.

"To do otherwise will be to increase rather than diminish our present difficulties."

7 of 8 Children, Mother Perish As Home Burns

Clayton, N. Y., Feb. 11 (AP).—A mother and seven of her eight children perished early today in a fire that destroyed their three-room house near here.

Mrs. Clifford Conant, 29, and the children, ranging in age from 1 year to 11, apparently were trapped in their beds.

The husband, 39, and a daughter, Susan, 13 escaped.

Conant, clad only in his underwear, tried again and again to rescue his family but smoke and flames drove him back each time.

Mother Warns of Fire But Loses Own Son

White Bear Lake, Minn., Feb. 11 (U.P.).—A mother's quick warning helped save two neighbor children from death by fire today, but she failed in an effort to rescue her crippled son from the flames.

Mrs. Sophie Ryckiicki, 59, awakened by flames, warned Mr. and Mrs. James Conley, who fled with their two children.

Alabama State Prison Farm Damaged by Fire

Atmore, Ala., Feb. 11 (AP).—Fire destroyed six cell blocks, dining rooms and offices at Atmore state prison farm today.

No one was injured. A preliminary check indicated none of the prisoners escaped.

House Spy Probers Asked to Remove Ban on Television

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Television Broadcasting Association appealed today to the House Committee on Un-American Activities to rescind a ban on television cameras at committee hearings.

The ban also applies to newsreel cameras, radio and wire or tape recorders.

J. R. Poppele, president of the association, wrote Representative Wood (D., Ga.), committee chairman, that television can permit "millions of Americans to 'attend' events of public interest originating in Washington."

"It is assumed," Poppele said, "that in public hearings before your committee, any citizen of Washington, D. C., or any citizen who hapens to be in Washington from outlying States can, by walking to the Capitol and entering your hearing room, view all or any part of such proceedings."

The television ban, he said, "Inadvertently discriminates against those American citizens who are not fortunate enough to be in Washington, or who cannot afford to come to Washington," as well as shut-ins.

Ellender Attacks Federal Aid for Private Schools

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) said yesterday that any attempt to include funds for the operation of private schools in the Federal Aid for Education bill would endanger its passage.

In a broadcast prepared for Louisiana stations, he described such a provision as "unconstitutional" and said it would "provoke great controversy."

He also opposed any bill that would raise the minimum wage higher than 65 cents an hour or extend its coverage to farm labor and fishermen.

He said any education bill should prevent the Federal Government from exerting administrative control over the schools and recognize local segregation laws.

Soviet Fliers Pledged Aid To Stay Here

Harold Keats, national commander of American Veterans of World War II (Amvets), yesterday pledged his support to efforts of two fugitive Russian fliers to obtain American citizenship.

Keats told the fliers, Lieuts. Peter Pirogov and Anatol Barsov, during their visit yesterday to Amvets headquarters at 724 9th st. nw., that he would ask the organization's executive committee to pass a resolution urging the Government to grant them permanent asylum as political refugees. The committee meets in Des Moines, Iowa, March 12 and 13.

The Russians broke into big grins when they heard the news and congratulated each other in Russian.

Gives Desertion Reason

Pirogov, the more talkative of the two, prefaced a press conference with a statement as to why they deserted the Soviet air force after having listened to the State Department's "Voice of America" broadcasts for months.

Pirogov pointed out he was addressing a group of former soldiers and many might think it was not the proper thing to desert, no matter from what army it might be. He also said that he believed "an army should serve the interests of a government which in turn serves the interests of its people.

"But when this government, forgetting the interests of its people, maintains an army solely for its own interests and against those of its people, I refuse to serve in it."

Fear Retaliation

Pirogov said that if he and Barsov were unable to remain in the United States they would go somewhere in western Europe. He said that both have relatives in the USSR and he was afraid they might become objects of Russian retaliation.

The flier's visit here is at the expense of "Voice of America." They did some sightseeing yesterday, and spent much of the day in resting.

After a leisurely weekend in Washington they are scheduled to visit the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis Tuesday and to go to New York Wednesday.

Walkout Suspends Daily Newspapers In Portland, Oreg.

Portland, Oreg., Feb. 11 (U.P.).—A work stoppage by the Web Pressmen's Union (AFL), Local No. 17, tonight halted publication of the afternoon Oregon Journal and the morning Oregonian, leaving this city of 450,000 without a daily newspaper.

After a three-hour, stop-work meeting at the Labor Temple, the union announced its members will not work at either newspaper until an agreement has been reached on a 1949 contract.

Major obstacle to a settlement has been the method of arbitrating the union's demands for higher wages, shorter hours, an employer-financed pension, a longer vacation and other contract improvements.

4 Study Here For 'Exchange'

A plumber from Panama, an elevator equipment worker and a woman rayon plant employe from Colombia, and a telephone equipment man from Haiti will soon be studying their respective trades in industrial plants in this country.

Miss Mejia Porto

The four are among the first recipients of Government scholarships under an industrial training program authorized by the U. S. Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948.

The program is administered by the Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship under State Department direction.

The four trainees, selected from among the most promising in their trades, are in Washington being "oriented" at the Wilson Teachers College on the English language, American Government, customs and traditions.

Among them is Senorita Maria Mejia Porto of Barranquilla, Colombia, 25-year-old rayon plant worker. A striking brunette, she explained at a press conference yesterday that she would study the rayon industry for a year at the Industrial Rayon Corp. plant in Painesville, Ohio.

Then, like the other three traniees, she will return to her own country to instruct other workers in the methods, services and products of the American industry.

Georges Armand, 32-year-old telephone equipment worker from Port-au-Prince, Haiti, said he had been working in the automatic telephone plant there. He said he would train with the Automatic Electric Co. of Chicago, which makes the dial phones used in the four largest cities of Haiti. Crank type phones are in use elsewhere, he said, and he will study organization, repair and maintenance of telephone systems and equipment.

Another about to begin training is Sergio H. Rodriguez of Panama City, Panama, who will study plumbing, sanitation, sewage disposal and water purification under a city-wide program in Chicago directed by a plumbers' joint management-labor apprenticeship committee.

Rodriguez, who is 25, has been in the trade since he was 10, he said, but he took time out twice to play basketball on Olympic teams.

The fourth member is Luis H. Leano-Pulido, 28, of Bogota, Colombia, who has been employed by a subsidiary of the Otis Elevator Co. there and who will be trained in the Otis plant in New York in electricity and electrical equipment for elevators.

William F. Patterson, director of the Bureau of Apprenticeship, explained that the trainees were selected by committees in their respective countries.

Patterson pointed out that the program ties in with the well-known "Point 4" of President Truman's inaugural speech, in which he urged a "bold new program for making the benefits of our scientific advances and industrial progress available" to other countries.

Wallace Hits 81st Congress

Henry A. Wallace last night declared the record of the newly elected Congress "is no better than that of the Eightieth Congress," adding that this was "no surprise" to his Progressive Party.

Wallace was the keynote speaker at the Legislative Assembly and Rally to End Segregation and Discrimination, held at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 1225 R st. nw.

The former Vice President and third part leader accused both Democrats and Republicans of trying to forget their civil rights campaign promises now that the election is past.

"The promises of the victors," he said, "have shrunken to a politician's size."

He said the Progressive Party, on whose ticket he ran for President, stands alone "unequivocally for the full integration of the Negro people into American life."

"It alone," he said, "demands economic, political and social equality."

He called special attention to action of Senate Democrats this week in voting solidly to beat down a Republican attempt to start debate at once on antifilibuster rules, declaring:

"The spectacle of a political party, returned to office on the strength of a civil rights program, now refusing to amend cloture in the Senate must not go unanswered."

He said the Republican Party bears equal responsibility for the failure to pass civil rights legislation, since such legislation was "talked to death in the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress."

Wallace said the Progressive party will not rest until representatives of the Negro race are sitting not only in Congress but in every State Legislature and city council—including those of the South—to "give their people the voice in government to which they are entitled."

About 1000 attended the rally, at which Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) also spoke. A collection for expenses taken during the meeting totaled $1483.95, it was announced.

Hal Thornton Forfeits $50 For Lewd Act at Club Here

Hal F. Thornton, 42, a professional comedian, forfeited $50 yesterday in Municipal Court for giving an indecent performance at the Club Merryland, 1405 L st. nw.

The forfeiture was entered after Thornton failed to appear to answer the charge. The offense took place January 29.

According to police investigators, Thornton's act consisted partly of "bedpan" antics, hinted accusations against women patrons, over-ripe stories about servicewomen and one joke purporting to prove that Adam and Eve were Irish.

Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson said that the maximum penalty on the charge is a $500 fine and a year in jail.

Wilson said Mrs. Olivia Clark, operator of the club, promised to prevent repetition of the off-color performances.

According to police, Thornton had a good record and was active in entertaining service personnel during the war. Police reported the incident to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Thornton's contract at the club expires in a few weeks, Wilson said.

'Sally' Sues D. C. Columnist

Mildred E. "Axis Sally" Gillars filed suit yesterday against Columnist Austine Cassini, now Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, jr., for $100,000 as a result of a newspaper article.

Miss Gillars, who is on trial for treason in District Court, charges Mrs. Hearst with violation of civil rights and violation of the right of privacy. Also asked is a citation to hold Mrs. Hearst in contempt of court. It claims the effect of the article is to deprive Miss Gillars of the constitutional right to a fair trial.

The article, published February 10 in the Washington Times-Herald, was under the by-line 'Austine." In part, it said that newsmen didn't know that the defendant has permission to go out to restaurants from the District Jail. It also claims that Miss Gillars' hair is "curled and synthetically platinum blonded."

U. S. Ready to Meet All Comers in East

Honolulu, Feb. 11 (AP).—Secretary of Army Kenneth C. Royall told a press conference today he believed the United States is "in a position in Japan to meet all comers" in the event of war in the Orient.

Royall added in his opinion "a war in the Far East involving us is not likely."

Royall is en route to Washington after conferences with General MacArthur in Tokyo

Asked if the United States would have to withdraw from Japan should war break out with Russia, Royall replied:

"I know of no plan to materially reduce our troops in Japan.

Truman, Churchill To Speak at MIT

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman and Winston Churchill have accepted invitations to speak at Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass., it was announced at the White House yesterday.

Their speeches are to come a day apart—Churchill's on March 31 and the President's on April 1—but it was assumed there would be a reunion, the first since the great Englishman made his "Iron Curtain" speech at Fulton, Mo., on March 5, 1946.

The MIT convocation will give both a chance to reflect on the uproar caused by that speech and also on what happened later to vindicate the man who made it.

Churchill's oration at Fulton was a six-alarm warning against Russia's determination to "expand" her power and doctrines. In the course of it, he said that communism was a "peril to Christian civilization," contended that the Russians despised weakness and respected only strength, and called for a British-American "fraternal association."

The former British Prime Minister was denounced for meddling in American affairs and rocking the boat of international diplomacy.

President Truman also was criticized. By introducing Churchill to the gathering at Westminster College it was charged, he had in effect given his approval to the speech. Mr. Truman himself said nothing offensive to Russia. He told how he had met Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin at the Big Three Conference in Potsdam, and added that he became "very fond" of both of them and thought both were great leaders.

Since then Russia's conduct has brought about the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, a revival of the draft and tremendous expansion of America's armed forces. The United States now is negotiating a North Atlantic security pact, which would bring together the armed might of this country and Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and possibly countries of Scandinavia.

The event that will take President Truman and Mr. Churchill to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the spring will be an international mid-century convocation "on the social implications of scientific progress."

"Whether Churchill will come to Washington before or after the convocation at Cambridge was a question which the White House was not prepared to answer yesterday.

Mr. Truman, it was announced, also has accepted an invitation from Boston College to address its annual banquet on April 26. The president of the college, the Very Rev. William L. Keleher, will present Mr. Truman with an honorary degree.

Churchill himself notified the Chief Executive that he had accepted the MIT invitation, it was explained at the White House. The announcement said that the invitation to Mr. Truman had been extended recently by Dr. Karl T. Compton, former president and now chairman of the corporation of MIT.

U. S. Extradites Canadian Spy Case Fugitive

Ottawa, Feb. 11 (AP).—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today booked Sam Carr on a charge under the Official Secrets Act of Canada.

The Russian-born fugitive wanted for three years by Canadian police in connection with the Russian spy case of 1946, was whisked into Ottawa by car after United States immigration agents handed him over to Canadian authorities at Prescott, Ontario, this morning.

His wife, who was with him when he was picked up in New York a fortnight ago on immigration charges, was freed. She was deported because she overstayed her visitors' permit in the United States. There were no charges against her in Canada.

Carr was lodged in the county jail. He is expected to appear in the City Court Saturday. Before he was booked, he was taken to the Federal Department of Justice Building, where it is believed he was questioned.

Witnesses at his hearing are expected to include Igor Gouzenko, whose disclosures touched off the spy trials.

Reds Attack All Religion, Oxnam Says

New York, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, one of the presidents of the World Council of Churches, said today the arrest of 15 Protestant churchmen in Bulgaria was part of a Communist policy of attacking religious liberty around the world.

Bishop Oxnam and Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America, arrived at LaGuardia Field today from a meeting of the council's executive committee in Switzerland.

Referring to the conviction of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary, Oxnam termed it a "tragic situation" and one in which religious liberties are being banned. But he added that the Roman Catholic Church had, in some cases, become involved in political matters.

He said that in attacking Communist campaigns against religious liberty, he didn't wish to be interpreted as "backing reactionary regimes in Europe or elsewhere which are backed by groups who retain some privileges rather than justice."

Asked to elaborate, Oxnam said that in some countries, feudal landowners oppose land reform which would benefit the peasants.

"The Roman Catholic Church, I am sorry to say, has too often been tied up with these regimes," he said.

"The Mindszenty case is a tragic situation. I understand he is a man of high character. But the case, from one point of view, stresses the validity of the American principle of the separation of church and state.

"If the church keeps to its field and does not become enmeshed in politics, some aspects of a case such as this never would occur. As far as religious liberties being curbed, and they are in that case, the whole religious world is concerned. But insofar as the church seeks to restore a monarchy, if it does, it is a political matter which has to be judged on political standards."

Asked what the Western world could do to stop religious persecutions, Dr. Fry said:

"I don't think it ought to go to war."

Medina Calls Stop in Jury System Attack

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, accusing lawyers for 11 high-rank Communists of "attempting to make a mockery of justice," today ordered them to put in writing the remainder of their attack on the Federal jury system here.

Then on Monday, he said, he will decide whether to shut off their courtroom argument on this matter—which has been in progress almost all the time since the trial began January 17—or permit them to go on with it.

The defendants, all members of the American Communist Party's national committee, are charged with conspiring to advocate overthrow of the United States Government.

The battery of defense lawyers has submitted a small mountain of documents, maps and charts designed to show that the method of selecting juries here discriminates in favor of the rich and against the poor and members of minority groups.

These tactics—including the lengthy questioning of numerous members of the Federal grand jury that indicted the Communist leaders—have brought repeated accusations from Judge Medina that the defense was deliberately stalling.

Defense lawyers contend that because of discrimination in the jury system the indictment against the Communists should be thrown out.

Earlier Medina ruled—over defense objections—that a defense witness must answer whether he is a member of the Communist Party or ever had been a member of the party's national committee.

The witness, Prof. Doxey A. Wilkerson, previously had testified to Communist Party connections. He answered the questions in the affirmative.

Wilkerson, a Negro, is faculty head of the Jefferson School for Social Science, named on Attorney General Tom Clark's subversive list. He formerly was educational director for the Communist Party in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

He has offered the principal supporting testimony in the defense attack on the jury-picking system.

2 GWU Students To Debate in Boston

Two George Washington University students are participating today in the annual Boston University Invitational Debate Tournament to be held in the Hub in Boston.

The students, participating as a team, are Charles E. Lillen, a junior in the school of Government; and Henry C. Krebs, a senior in the same school.

The debate topic is: Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Adopt a Policy of Equalizing Opportunities Through Tax Supported Schools by Means of Annual Grants.

Austria Right To Use Experts Splits Big 4

By Ned Russell

London, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—The Big Four Foreign Ministers' deputies failed today to break their deadlock over Austria's future right to employ foreign technical experts to help equip her armed forces.

The deputies of the United States, Britain, Russia and France continued the careful study of the disputed clauses in the proposed treaty of independence for Austria but failed to make any substantial progress.

In today's debate on Austria's right to import the technical assistance, Russia insisted that Austria is self-sufficient in such experts and does not need foreign help. The United States, Britain and France disputed the Soviet argument and the deadlock, nearly a year old, remained.

Remington Gets New Job

ment was stirred in the belief that he would get back his former job.

Remington will receive more than $5000 from the time he was placed under "indefinite suspensions" last June 28.

"I think it's a mistake," said Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman of the Senate Expenditures Committee.

He was a member of the Senate investigating group which heard Elizabeth T. Bentley, confessed courier for a wartime Communist spy ring, testify that Remington passed her secret data.

Senator Ives (R., N.Y.) spoke out against the Commerce Department putting Remington back in a key spot to deal with exports to Russia and confidential matters.

Senator Hoey (D., N.C.), new chairman of the investigating subcommittee which first made public charges against Remington, said he would ask "for all the facts" for consideration of that group.

"I don't want to prejudge the case because we don't know what the loyalty board had before it," Hoey added.

Chairman McClellan of the Expenditures Committee, who listened to the hearing testimony, said "it was pretty well established by Remington's own testimony that to say the very least he was careless and indiscreet."

Senator Ives, who also sat in on those hearings, said he hopes that Remington "has learned a lesson that will profit him in the future."

Reply to U. S. Being Drafted By Hungary

By Endre Marton

Budapest, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Hungarian government was known today to be preparing an answer to President Truman's statement yesterday and to that of Secretary Acheson on Wednesday—the day after Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to life imprisonment for treason.

There was no indication when an answer to a British note would be prepared.

Lawyers for the cardinal and his fellow defendants were drafting their preliminary appeals, but it did not appear probable that the case would be forwarded to the higher court until March.

The Catholic press here so far has not commented on the Mindszenty case.

Mutilated Body In Greece Thought U. S. Officer's

Athens, Greece, Feb. 11 (AP).—A mutilated body, tentatively identified as that of Lieut. Col. Selden R. Edner of San Jose, Calif., was reported found about three quarters of a mile from Karpenissi, in central Greece. American officials said Edner was an unarmed observer aboard a Greek plane shot down January 21.

An Athens reporter, Nicolas Kapitsoglou, said eye witnesses told him they saw the plane crash and that Ender was making frantic efforts to extricate himself from the wreckage. The witnesses said they were prevented by Communist guerillas from going to Edner's assistance.

The body, with a tight noose around the neck, was found in a ravine. Maj. Charles J. Brandt, assistant United States public relations officer, said a medical examination would be made to determine whether the body was that of Edner and whether he had been mutilated while still alive or after death.

Regional Pacts May Sap U. N., Lie Cautions

Lake Success, Feb. 11 (AP).—Secretary General Trygve Lie counseled today against acceptance of regional alliances as a substitute for world-wide collective security under the United Nations.

He expressed hope nothing will be done that would weaken the United Nations.

Lie said he was not referring to any particular regional pact.

"Regional arrangements can be a very useful element in building a United Nations system of collective security provided they recognize the supremacy of the Charter," Lie said. "No regional arrangement can ever be a satisfactory substitute for the United Nations. If people generally began to accept alliances as a substitute for genuine, world-wide collective security, then the hope of a lasting peace would be greatly endangered."

Russia, meanwhile, moved for another airing of an old issue with the West.

Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, demanded a Security Council meeting on the question of a governor of Trieste. This has not been solved after more than two years. Dr. T. F. Tsiang of China set the meeting for Tuesday at 3 p. m. (EST).

The council also will consider the application of the government of the Republic of Korea for admission to the U. N.

Elsewhere in the U. N.:

1. Lie said he had not been approached by any government to take any action in the conviction of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty. Then he said: "Speaking purely as an individual, I am sure you who know me will understand how much I deplore any action anywhere that violates human right." He would not say whether this meant he believed human rights were violated in the Mindszenty case.

2. Friendly Western powers were reported putting strong pressure on the Netherlands to cease defying the U. N. on the Indonesian question. The Indonesian commission must report by next Tuesday what has been done toward setting up a temporary federal government in Indonesia.

Eisenhower Heads Joint Chiefs of Staff

In Sharp Exchange

ECA No Club Over Europe, Acheson Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday announced the temporary recall of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to duty to serve as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and "principal military adviser" to the President and Secretary of Defense.

"Ike's" job is to whip the Joint Chiefs into a more workable body and drive through to a decision on some important unsolved questions of over-all military strategy, The Washington Post was informed.

Establishment of such a post was recommended by Defense Secretary James Forrestal in his annual report two months ago. It was one of the major steps he proposed to make unification work better.

Given Leave From Columbia

Legislation to create the post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs and strengthen the anthority of the Defense Secretary is being drafted at the White House for submission to Congress, probably next week.

However, as many routine as well as important matters are piling up within the JCS, it was decided to set up the job informally now, officials said.

With his tremendous prestige and recognized ability to bring people with diverse interests together, Fishenhower was the logical man for the post.

As president of Columbia University, Ike couldn't take the assignment permanently. However, last week he arranged to take leave from Columbia for "a period of seven or eight weeks." At the time it was announced only that he would serve as consultant to Forrestal.

White House Secretary Eben Ayers announced the appointment for the President late yesterday. He said that "arrangements have been completed whereby General Eisenhower has been assigned temporarily as principal military adviser and consultant to the Commander in Chief and Secretary of Defense."

"In this capacity," he added, "he will sit in meetings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and act as the presiding officer of this body. Out of consideration for General Eisenhower's other commitments, it is planned that this arrangement will be of a relatively short duration."

There was no elaboration, but officials made it plain the assignment did not mean any worsening of the international situation or stepping up of the "cold war."

May Produce Decisions

In his new post, Eisenhower should be able to bring many matters to a decision which now drag on interminably because of the requirement that Joint Chiefs of Staff decisions be unanimous.

Ike will not be empowered to make decisions. However, military officials expect he will act in the manner Forrestal proposes for the permanent JCS chairman.

That is, he will call meetings of the group and, acting for the Secretary of Defense, determine what matters will be brought before it. He can say that the Secretary wants a decision on the subject by a definite date.

If by that time the members are divided, he can report back to Forrestal with his own recommendation of what should be done. Forrestal then can make the decision himself.

100 Officers Assist Chiefs

Until now, the Joint Chiefs have been composed of the Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Omar Bradley, the Air Force Chief of Staff, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, and the Chief of Staff to President Truman, Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy. They are assisted by a joint staff of 100 officers, headed by Maj. Gen. Alfred Gruenther.

Leahy has been ill for some time and plans to retire shortly. It is not expected that his post will be filled. Presumably, if Congress creates the post of JCS chairman permanently, some other high ranking active or retired officer will be appointed.

Lange Ends Parleys Here

security problems. He did assure reporters that he was "satisfied so far" with the results of his discussions with the State Department.

During his stay here, the Norwegian Foreign Minister has had several talks with Acheson and members of his staff.

On the basis of a speech he made to Parliament before leaving for the United States, Lange sought information on what military aid could be counted on from the United States and how soon it could be provided in case of a threat to Norway's security. He said at that time that it had become evident that security must be sought outside the United Nations and that, since the breakdown of negotiations toward a Scandinavian treaty, each Scandinavian country must "try to solve its security problems separately."

Norway's position was still further complicated by thinly veiled Russian warnings against lining up with the Western countries and by offer of a Soviet nonaggression treaty. Undeterred by these Soviet moves and despite a common frontier with Russia, Norway has gone ahead to investigate what the Western alliance would offer in terms of real security.

Assurances Reported

While discussions with Norway and the terms of the proposed assistance have been closely-guarded secrets, it was understood Norway was given at least these assurances:

1. It would not be asked to provide bases in time of peace.
2. It would get a considerable share of any arms shipped to members of the alliance should Congress approve provision of arms.
3. Norway would have a part in planning military strategy.

The proposed defense alliance among the three Scandinavian countries collapsed after protracted talks when Sweden pulled out. Shortly thereafter Russia formally inquired as to Norway's attitude toward the Atlantic pact and was assured that Norway would not provide bases unless attacked or threatened with attack. The Soviets promptly retorted that this reply was insufficient and said:

"This statement means that any provocational rumors or hastily concocted falsifications about the threat of attack against Norway would suffice to make Norway . . . grant bases to the armed forces of foreign countries at any time including the present peacetime."

Russia charged also that inclusion of Norway in the Atlantic pact "can lead to Norway being involved in a policy of a particular grouping of powers pursuing far-reaching aggressive aims." The Soviet note described the participating states as "a restricted grouping of states which do not aim at consolidating peace and international security."

Should the Atlantic treaty materialize it would include the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. It has been hoped that some other nations, including Italy, Portual, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, also might eventually join.

Norwegian and Turkish Envoys to See Bevin

London, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will discuss the Atlantic pact with the foreign ministers of Norway and Turkey next Monday, it was reported today.

Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange, now in the United States, is expected to fly to Scotland late this week and come on to London by train.

France Rejects Soviet Position on Alliance

Paris, Feb. 11. (U.P.) France today rejected Soviet charges that French participation in the North Atlantic pact would constitute a breach of the 1944 Franco-Soviet alliance.

Moscow Radio said yesterday the Franco-Soviet alliance of 1944 would be "trampled" if France signed.

A Foreign Office spokesman said: "The Franco-Soviet alliance binds both parties not to enter into an aggressive coalition aimed against the other. However there is nothing aggressive in the North Atlantic pact."

Bogota Parley Fund Probe

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 11 (AP).—Attorney General Rafael Quinones Neira today ordered the ministry of justice to investigate charges of irregularities in the spending of money appropriated for the 1948 Pan American Conference here. The conference was interrupted by revolutionary riots April 9.

Rising Tide of Refugees Flee Russian Zone to West Berlin

Berlin, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—Soviet pressure is sending a rising tide of refugees from the Soviet Zone and Soviet-occupied Berlin into west Berlin, with more than 200 weekly reaching American welfare offices alone, according to the monthly report of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American Military Governor.

It was learned the problem had become so grave that American welfare officials are urging General Clay to institute an airlift exit to the west for German political refugees. The British at present are flying out about 16 such refugees a day.

Despite the new Communist line of appealing to the "intelligentsia," the flight of intellectuals and whole schools from Soviet zone and sector has become particularly heavy lately, according to General Clay.

[The United Press said the airlift set a new record today for a normal day's deliveries to Berlin with 6775 tons of supplies brought to western Berlin.]

Chinese Reds Agree to Call Peace Parley

Nanking, China, Saturday, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—An unofficial peace delegation returned from Communist-held Peiping today without a peace pledge but with assurances the Reds may unbend from their stiff terms and negotiate a settlement within a month.

Wu Yu Hou, delegation spokesman, said Communist General Yeh Chien Ying, currently mayor of Peiping, the city he captured, indicated the Communists were willing to bargain on the proviso all "war criminals" on their blacklist be turned over to the Communists and that the Kuomintang army be reorganized.

Anunofficial spokesman said the Communists told the peace party they would call the peace conference and would not attack the Nanking-Shanghai Yangtze River line until the conference is finished.

The Communist radio said earlier the delegation sponsored by acting president Li Tsung-jen completed its mission "successfully" and that Red Gen. Yeh Chien-ying told the group "we are prepared to talk" with the Nanking government if it is sincere.

Czech Observers Return To Make China Report

Prague, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—Czech observers are on their way home from Communist-controlled China to report on the possibilities of economic ties between Czechoslovakia and a future Chinese Communist regime, it was learned today.

The Czechs also hope to buy part of the American equipment and supplies which the Chinese Communists reportedly have captured.

China would provide raw materials, including metals, for Czech industry, an official said. In turn China would be "a market of 400 million persons" for Czech products.

Jap Mother of 20 Against Birth Control

Tokyo, Feb. 11. (U.P.).—A 43-year-old housewife who gave birth to her twentieth child today said she was against birth control.

"The world makes a big fuss about birth control," Mrs. Tsude Yamazaki said. "But after all, when a child is born it is your own and you naturally feel attached to it."

Communist China Is Reported Cracking Down on Foreigners

By Harold K. Milks

Nanking, Feb. 11 (AP).—Reports seeping through the "bamboo curtain" of Red China say the crackdown on foreigners has begun, even to the point of requiring church missions to give daily lessons in communism.

First reports from foreigners in Communist territory beyond the Yangtze said Red official behavior was "more than correct."

But now it is evident these new rulers intend to impose the sharpest restrictions on all phases of religious, journalistic and commercial life affecting foreigners.

Observers are now convinced the Communists in China are preparing to follow almost exactly the Soviet pattern.

This is to drive out all foreign influence, then invite back under rigid control those foreigners such as technicians whom they need to run the country.

At Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, Protestant church workers were required to give lessons in communism.

Communist officials in Mukden, Peiping and Tientsin have refused to recognize the official status of the foreign consular staffs there.

American and other consular officials are unable to take any official action, and are not even allowed to use their own automobiles.

McDonald Named First Ambassador From U. S. to Israel

Tel Aviv, Israel, Feb. 11 (AP).—James G. McDonald of Bronxville, N.Y., has been named the first United States Ambassador to Israel, an official source said today.

He has been serving here since last June as special American representative. This was during the period when Washington granted the young Jewish state de facto but not full recognition.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok hailed the State Department's appointment of McDonald as a "new important landmark in the evolution of friendly cordial relations between the United States and Israel."

McDonald was High Commissioner for Refugees, Jewish and others, coming from Germany during the Nazi ascendancy in the years from 1933 to 1935. Previously he had been board chairman of the Foreign Policy Association.

Soviet Antarctic Claims Expected

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Feb. 11 (AP).—Soviet Russia will make an official declaration shortly of what she considers her rights and interests in the Antarctic.

The All-Union Geographic Society has asked for such a declaration and the request was given major attention in the Soviet press today.

Newspapers reported a possibility the region holds uranium, which is used in making atomic bombs.

The United States, Britain and France are among the powers interested in the Antarctic. Others are Norway, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and Chile.

Soviet Antarctic claims are based on discoveries by Russian explorers dating back 130 years. The Soviets say Russian explorers Fadaei (Fabian) Bellingshausen and Lieut. Michael Lazarev, sent out by Alexander I in 1819, disproved a number of theories of other Antarctic explorers such as British Capt. James Cook, who set out in 1772 on a two-year expedition.

[In Washington, a State Department spokesman said that as far as he knows Russia has never made any official claims in the Antarctic area. He said only those countries that have put in claims now are concerned in the matter.

[Meanwhile other United States officials said seven expeditions had preceded Bellingshausen to the Antarctic. One headed by Nathaniel Palmer of the United States was in the area when Bellingshausen voyaged there, they said.]

Along with these deveopments came an announcement that a Soviet whaling expedition, including scientists, is now in Antarctic waters.

North Ireland Votes to Stay With Britain

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 11 (AP).—Voters preferring to stick with Britain have easily turned back a challenge for control of Northern Ireland's Parliament by backers of Eire's new Republic of Ireland.

Returns today from the general election Thursday quickly clinched a majority for candidates pledged to keep Northern Ireland in the United Kingdom.

At nightfall the United Kingdom faction held 37 seats to 9 for the opposition, with 6 to be decided.

In the old Parliament, the lineup was 35 to 17.

U.S., Britain Reveal Plan To Aid Africa

By The Associated Press

A multi-million-dollar British-American plan for development of "darkest Africa" was unveiled yesterday by Marshall Plan officials.

Getting the program started would cost about 10 million dollars, most of it supplied by the Economic Cooperation Administration. The idea is to tap fresh sources of scarce minerals and improve transportation in Britain's 2 million square miles of African colonies.

Details of the proposal, mapped out during extensive conferences with British officials in London, were laid before Congress by Thomas K. Finletter, chief of ECA's mission to the United Kingdom.

Skilled American manpower, as well as United States dollars, would be used to help unlock huge deposits of natural resources in the African colonies, Finletter said in a report covering the proposed expenditure of Marshall Plan funds by the British.

More than 50 highly trained technicians — mostly geologists, geodetic engineers and similar experts—have been requested by Britain to work on the project during its early stages. Two specific plans are listed for immediate attention.

One is the exploration and mapping of more than one million square miles of uncharted jungle and mountain area in central and east Africa. This rugged section is known to contain deposits of strategically important chrome, manganese, tin ore, cobalt, coal, copper, petroleum, gold, diamonds and other scarce minerals.

The other undertaking would be a survey aimed at completing the railroad between Cairo, in northeastern Africa, and Capetown at the continent's southernmost tip—including a 1000-mile link in the Tanganyika-northern Rhodesia area, over some of the roughest terrain on the continent.

Jap Premier Is Critical of U. S. Officials

Tokyo (Saturday), Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Shigeru Yoshida, newly reelected Premier of Japan, said today that unwise interference by American military governors in the January parliamentary elections was partly responsible for Communist gains.

Yoshida said there were "some grains of truth" in reports that many Japanese voted for Communists in protest against the occupation.

In the elections the Japanese Communists increased their number of seats in the House of Representatives from 4 to 35.

The 70-year old Yoshida, who resigned as a formality early Friday so that his majority party could reelect him again yesterday, said American civil governors "went around speaking to the people."

Yoshida did not elaborate on what they did or said, but added "the district military governors interfered unwisely in the election."

Maryland's Search Law Clears Senate

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11.—The controversial "frisking" bill was passed, 17 to 9, by the Maryland Senate today and sent to the House of Delegates.

Under the bill, evidence gained by police of concealed gun carrying would be admissable as evidence in courts even though it is obtained without a warrant.

Senators from five counties—Allegany, Calvert, Frederick, St. Marys and Talbot—bitterly opposed the measure and succeeded in exempting their counties from the Senate version of the bill.

Supporters claim the legislation would increase police efficiency enabling them to search "known suspects," but opponents argued the bill violates search and seizure provisions of the Constitution.

In another development today, the Polish-American Congress, which claims a membership of 60,000 in Maryland, threw its support behind proposed anti-Communist legislation.

"Poles have a real reason to be behind this sort of legislation," said Simon P. Jarosinski, a Baltimore City councilman and president of the congress.

The legislation, based on recommendations of the Ober Commission on Suversive Activities, would provide stiff penalties for persons joing subversive groups.

Law to Be Sought On Murder of Police

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11—Legislation making it first degree murder to kill a policeman who is making a lawful arrest will be introduced next week in the Maryland General Assembly.

The legislation, according to George G. McLeish (D., Prince Georges) who will sponsor it, is an outgrowth of the fatal shooting last June 12 of Charles F. Caldwell, a Prince Georges County policeman.

McLeish pointed out Prince Georges County Circuit Court was unable to charge Thomas Hall, 54-year-old laborer convicted of shooting Caldwell, with first degree murder under present laws.

Hall was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to 18 years in the penitentiary.

The Prince Georges delegation today introduced a bill providing for a referendum in November, 1950, in four election districts—Bladensburg, Surratts, Berwyn and Vansville—on whether they should adopt a 10-cent fire tax.

Montgomery delegates said they would decide Monday whether legislation authorizing county veterans clubs to sell liquor willbe introduced.

Wife Beating Ruled Justified at Times

New York, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Judge Alex Pisciotta ruled, in effect, today that a man ought to give his wife a beating if the provocation is great enough.

The provocation for Arthur Emrich was that his wife, Ann, tried to take her life and that of their two children, Agnes, 5, and Arthur, jr., 3.

Her reason? Arthur wouldn't learn how to dance.

Overtime Pay Bill Approved

The House Labor Committee yesterday approved a bill to offset the Supreme Court's overtime-on-overtime decision.

This ruling last year required that an employer must include premium pay for night and other odd-hour work in figuring a worker's average pay to determine overtime rates under the wage-hour law. This law requires time and a half pay for work over 40 hours a week.

The new bill would validate labor-management contracts that provide that overtime shall be figured on regular, nonpremium pay, rather that upon the higher rates paid for night work, etc.

The bill has been tagged for speedy handling. Chairman Lesinski (D., Mich.) says the overtime question figures in negotiations for stevedoring contracts expiring soon. The committee has been told that a Nation-wide maritime tieup threatens unless the issue is settled this month.

In addition, a number of suits demanding back pay at the higher overtime pay rates are pending.

Longshoremen won the case in the Supreme Court in a 5-3 ruling.

Employers contend that the contracts did not contemplate such a higher overtime formula. But the Supreme Court said that the contract pattern did not fit the law.

Ban Proposed On Bad Actors

PSC Approves Airline Stops

By The Associated Press

The way was cleared yesterday for starting of a feeder airline from Baltimore and Washington across western Maryland and corners of West Virginia and Pennsylvania to Pittsburgh.

The Maryland Public Service Commission granted All-American Airways of Washington a permit to pick up and discharge intrastate passengers at Frederick, Hagerstown and Cumberland, Md.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington already had approved the interstate aspects of the operation, including stops at Martinsburg, W. Va., and Connellsville-Uniontown, Pa.

All-American announced previously that it plans to start three flights a day each way on the route about March 7.

This will bring the first regular airline passenger service to the three western Maryland cities. They have been talking about it, pleading for it, demanding it for years.

One of the other lines All-America has authority to start would connect Washington and Baltimore with New Jersey shore resorts by way of Wilmington

Flying High

Considerable resentment seems to have arisen over the manner in which two Russian fliers are being wined, dined and exhibited around the State of Virginia. We sympathize with the feeling that the guests have been lionized unnecessarily and unwisely. These are the two fliers, readers may recall, who a few months ago deserted the Red air force and flew their bomber from Russia to Austria. They were lured on, they asserted, by a Voice of America broadcast extolling the traditions and virtues of Virginia. Now they are on a tour sponsored by the Virginia Chamber of Commerce.

It is proper that refugees from totalitarianism be afforded asylum. To regard them automatically as heroes, however, is a highly questionable tactic that certainly gives them an exaggerated idea of the American attitude toward apostasy. This is particularly reflected in the actions of one of the two fliers, a Lieutenant Pirogov, who seems to have a warped impression of his position. He has complained bitterly of his treatment at the hands of American correspondents and a U. S. Air Force interpreter. The burden of his grievance seems to be that correspondents persist in asking him questions about information which he intends to save for a book which he expects to sell for a million dollars. It is, of course, possible to understand the mystification of foreigners, especially from behind the iron curtain, when they are confronted with the frankness of the American press. But the Russian visitors are flying too high. They ought to be disabused of their Hollywood notions of America before they are displayed like a sideshow.

Medaling

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan's gift for sticking his foot in it has got the country into an embarrassing fix with Argentina which, however, is putting on some ridiculous overtones. Added last week to the "fruit salad" on the chest of General Vaughan was the Order of Liberator San Martin which was bestowed by the Argentine Ambassador. The precise reason for this honor is not quite clear. General Vaughan has rendered no distinctive service to Argentina, so far as we know, and his military exploits scarcely rank as more distinguished than those of any number of persons in and out of the Pentagon. But the general happens to be the President's military aide, and this is doubtless the only reason for decorating him. What the ceremony has done, therefore, is to give an impression of cordial relations between this country and Argentina totally unwarranted by Argentine performance. It looks as if President Peron had decided to do some diplomatic fence-mending without in the least altering his anti-American course and had chosen General Vaughan as the most promising dupe to fall into his trap.

Because of his association with the White House, the White House must bear part of the blame for permitting the investiture—the more so because this is only one of a number of blunders committed by the egregious General Vaughan. About a year ago, you may recall, he precipitated an absurd squabble when he announced publicly that he was to be made chief of the President's aides—an excursion properly squelched by the White House. Previously he had caused no end of consternation by referring to Winston Churchill as a "garrulous old gentleman," in a speech which almost set a record for indiscretion. Altogether, General Vaughan's penchant for aggrandizement is reminiscent of the late unlamented Hermann Goering, who reportedly wore medals on his pajamas.

General Vaughan certainly loves his medals as much as Hermann did. But he may soon find himself in some predicament in accommodating them on his martial and ample breast. Several other Latin-American nations, irked by the protests of Columnist Drew Pearson over the presentation, are preparing to "honor" General Vaughan in like fashion. At this rate the general pretty soon will be plastered with "fruit salad." (Mr. Pearson, by the way, has quite a bit of it himself.) The farce calls for action on the part of Congress before this depreciation of the currency by foreign governments makes every military breast look foolish.

The State Department has a rule that none of its officials abroad may accept any foreign decorations, and it is not too much to ask that other Americans whose position impinges upon foreign affairs be subjected to similar restraints. Newspapermen must be left with their sense of proportion in the matter. Article I of the Constitution specifically forbids any American officeholder from accepting any foreign "present, emolument, office or title of any kind" without the consent of Congress. This excellent rule was suspended during the two world wars in deference to our Allies, though Congress since last summer has reasserted the congressional check. The debasement of medal-giving and the weakness of mortal man are reasons enough for putting a stop to a practice that is in danger of becoming a racket.

ECA Under Fire

The current sharp break in grain prices emphasizes the danger that the Economic Recovery Administration will be subjected to great pressure to increase exports of surplus farm products to participating countries and to clamp down on offshore purchases of farm commodities with ECA funds. This week, for instance, several members of the Senate Agriculture Committee sharply criticized the ECA for authorizing purchases of 150 million bushels of Canadian wheat for shipment to England. They insisted that if this wheat had been bought in the United States, the break in prices could have been averted. Senator Ellender also asked why we didn't force the British to buy American meat or Mexican canned meat, instead of Canadian bacon, since the United States is supporting the prices of the canned product under an agreement with Mexico for eradication of the foot-and-mouth disease. Reminded that the British prefer bacon, and that it is not ECA policy to force any country to take a product it does not want (incidentally, a product the sale of which is forbidden in the United States), Senator Ellender asked whether the ECA was not carried on to keep the beneficiaries alive. ECA's food director, Dr. Fitzgerald, informed the Senator from Louisiana that the danger of starvation in Europe is a thing of the past, and he added that if Congress thinks the economic recovery program should be something other than a recovery program, it should so declare.

This is a timely reminder that the ECA program was not launched for the purpose of providing export markets for our own surpluses. Its declared purpose is to build up the productive capacity of European countries and reduce their dependence upon outside assistance. In connection with this program, purchases of goods from countries other than the United States have been financed with ECA funds. As a result the benefits of the program have been shared with nonparticipating countries, notably Canada, thereby assisting a revival of world trade. Moreover, the United States has been a beneficiary of its own bounty, because ECA offshore purchasing has enabled Canada to acquire much needed dollars and made it safe for her to relax the restrictions imposed on imports from the United States.

It may not be generally known that under the Foreign Assistance Act the ECA administrator is in effect prohibited from authorizing offshore purchases of agricultural commodities which have been declared to be surplus in the United States. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has assured the Senate Agriculture Committee that his department now considers wheat to be in surplus supply and that no further purchase of Canadian wheat will be authorized while that condition continues. Nor will any ECA funds be used for purchases from other exporting countries.

Another significant and potentially alarming result of the current price break has been the emphasis put by the Department of Agriculture on its expanded grain export program. The export target for all grains for the nine months ending March 31 is almost as great as total exports for the preceding 12 months. This large outward movement may be a boon from the viewpoint of the United States, since it will help to support sagging market prices and reduce the size of the surplus grain stocks held by the Commodity Credit Corporation. But one cannot but wonder why the United States should be shipping more instead of less grain abroad this year than last in view of improved crop conditions in Europe. Does it mean that some countries will be persuaded against their best judgment to buy more foodstuffs than they otherwise would instead of using ECA funds for purchasing machinery and industrial raw materials?

Intellectual Degradation

In their apologies for the Hungarian government the Communist propagandists have been scraping the bottom of the dialectical barrel. They have descended to depths of intellectual degradation not surpassed even by Zinovieff and the other broken and trembling victims of the famous purge trials of the 1930s. An example is provided by the editorials in the New York Daily Worker. Last Monday, the editors, with an effrontery that must have made even seasoned readers of that publication gasp, compared the zeal with which (they said) the Hungarian Peoples' Court had protected the legal rights of Cardinal Mindszenty and his codefendants with the brutal frame-up and railroading (as they call it) of the dozen defendants in the Communist conspiracy case in New York. It was, they said,

> . . . a startling contrast . . . It, therefore, takes unusual cynicism for Governor Thomas E. Dewey and for the New York Times to boast that 12 Communist leaders are getting a fair trial while Mindszenty is not. The truth is exactly the opposite.

And the next day they eloquently evoked the ghost of the late Governor Al Smith to prove that Catholics are under no obligation to listen either to Cardinal Spellman or to the Pope, unless, of course, the matter in question happened to be one of "faith or morals." We wonder how the Daily Worker will explain away Laszlo Suller and Hannah Fischer, the Hungarian government's handwriting experts, who, having escaped to Vienna, declare that they were forced to give false testimony against the Cardinal. But perhaps the editors won't feel an explanation is necessary, inasmuch as their readers weren't told of the escape and denial in the first place.

Lincoln

Lord Acton said a great man is invariably an evil man. Of course, he meant the man who is put in a position of power over his fellow creatures. The major reason that the reverence for Lincoln grows with the years is that he was a great man who was also a good man. Even Lord Acton would perhaps have acknowledged this exception.

No man ever used words more greatly than Lincoln. One of his many biographers, Lord Charnwood, says there are three speeches in the history of oratory, and two were by Lincoln, the other being one of Demosthenes. How words like "disenthrall" can turn one inside out when spoken in the context of Lincoln's simple but cadenced phrases! Yet Lincoln's words are not what makes the dead Lincoln a living presence. He dwells in our hearts for what he was and did rather than for what he said.

Let us think today of Lincoln as a familiar and as a teacher. Jane Addams used to say that whenever she was in doubt or distress over a problem in her own life and work, she used to go and stand for a while in front of the Saint-Gaudens Lincoln in Chicago. We have no Saint-Gaudens statue in Washington. But one of the Capital's glories is the Lincoln Memorial, and to use it as Jane Addams used the Chicago statue would be to find release and resolution. For out of that shrine a strength and a guidance seem to flow as from some eternal but known spring. One with us all in his perplexities, Lincoln was also a guide on how to solve them.

For him, in his lofty role, the bell of decision was always tolling. He never refused to listen, though he arrived at a clear-cut conclusion with almost tortured slowness. The reason lay in what Lord Halifax calls his "deep gentleness of soul," which did not permit ready-made opinions and hot convictions. Till he found the truth he groped his way, with only his sense of recognition of it as the lamp unto his feet. So he resolved his own unsureness in the fires of searching meditation. So he preferred to compromise when no fundamental principle was at stake.

Pandemic Dementia

Many of our readers, doubtless, are familiar with the fantasy by the late G. K. Chesterton called The Man Who Was Thursday. It has to do with the inner ring of some nihilistic conspiracy, the members of which are known to each other only by the days of the week. Six of the seven, however, turn out to be either agents of the police or persons otherwise concerned with frustrating the plot.

If Chesterton's story had been put into reverse, that is to say, if six out of seven members of the British cabinet had turned out to be agents of some enemy power or of a terroristic revolutionary power, it would have anticipated very accurately the atmosphere of the times in which we live. Nothing any longer is too fantastic to be true, and nothing is incredible except whatever is sane and normal. If any further proof of this were needed, it is supplied by the report of General MacArthur's intelligence service on Communist espionage in Japan in the period preceding and following the Hitler-Molotov pact.

Even the nerve of the intelligence officers seems to have been a bit shaken by what they discovered from their study of Japanese documents relating to the spy ring and what they learned from the confessions of some participants in it. The implications of the affair, says the author of the report, are frightening. "One begins to wonder whom one can trust—what innocent comrade or loyal friend may suddenly be discovered as the enemy."

We must postpone any comment on the details of the great conspiracy which is said to have been headed by the supposed Nazi, Dr. Richard Sorge, and to have involved at least two Americans. But if the contents, as reported in the newspapers, are correct, then it is obvious that the whole world has become infected with the mad psychology which prevailed in Russia in the early part of the twentieth century, when Tsarist police had their agents in the high councils of the revolutionary parties and revolutionists had theirs in the headquarters of the police, and when, as seems probable from the histories of such persons as Roman Malinowski, for example, many of the conspirators were confused in their own minds about which side they belonged to.

Lincoln and Germany

There has been organized recently at Bremen, Germany, an earnest and enthusiastic group of people called the German Abraham Lincoln Community. Two significant and revealing circulars setting forth the purpose of the organization have been received by the Lincoln National Life Foundation of Fort Wayne, Ind.

The appeal for membership in circular one is introduced by this great tribute to the Emancipator:

"From a very humble descent, from a very small beginning, he became the symbol of the greatest President of the United States of America, who loyally, imperturbably, and immutably pursued his goal and his task, becoming immortal by his martyrdom.

"His humbleness, his struggle against slavery, his never-failing humor—in spite of all the ill fate and personal hardships—his restless working made him the never fading example of all statesmen."

The object of the enterprise is presented in these words by the president, George Henry Distler: "I especially want to bring the German youth close to Abraham Lincoln. He should particularly be an example for youth who—let us be honest—have no longer an example. Especially now in Germany it is asked, Who will be Germany's president? If what the Lincoln Community plans comes true, the answer must be "a man like Abraham Lincoln.'"

The Lincoln Foundation library has 71 volumes, books and pamphlets on Lincoln which are written in German.

It would indeed be helpful if some of the other Lincoln publications in German could be sent to the German Abraham Lincoln Community.

Oleo Taxes

Talk about the Eightieth Congress! Not only has the Eighty-first done nothing to date but has not even begun hearings on the repeal of the margarine laws. That bill should already have been at the White House. On the performance so far, the Democrats are going to give the Republicans a real congressional issue come 1950.

In all the controversy over oleomargarine vs. butter, there seems to be overlooked the enormous abuse of the taxing power in repressing production of one admittedly wholesome article of food for the benefit of producers of another.

Senate Chaplain

Lately there was some discussion about political considerations entering into a recent appointment of the Senate chaplain. One prefers to imagine otherwise. Now Mr. Marr (letter published February 5) would condition it on military background.

Mr. Marr would find a number of military chaplains who, although they are American citizens, would not be eligible by his definition for appointment as Senate chaplain because they are foreign born.

If Senators need any enhancement of the respect accorded them and the stipend paid the Senate chaplain has any bearing on the matter, this writer believes an increase in this stipend would "enhance the respect accorded them." It would be specious to say these groups do not need a chaplain simply because they can say prayers of their own. Chaplains in the Congress are a symbol of our Christian Nation and it would be a sad page in our country's history the day they were dispensed with.

Dr. Frederick B. Harris, the present Senate chaplain, recently celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor of Foundry Methodist Church. He has been a resident of the United States since childhood and he has been a citizen of the United States conceivably for a much longer time than Mr. Marr, since Mr. Marr is still in his student days at Catholic University.

Inefficient Wives

Probably 50 per cent of the housewives in the Washington area are hanging their heads in shame if they have read Mr. Gideon Varga's interesting commentary on our life work with the same fascinated attention that I did.

Mr. Varga is entirely correct. We grope; we search; we run back and forth; we store things where neither we ourselves nor Mr. Varga could possibly find them; we do far too many unnecessary chores; we abuse our backs and flagellate our feet. We are, in short, quite inefficient workers.

I believe it is generally conceded that the efficiency of workers almost invariably goes down, in inverse ratio to the number of hours on the job, as he or she plods steadily on through the week. It would be interesting to make a comparative study of the efficiency of a domestic employe working five days a week of eight hours each, with a similar employe on a schedule of seven days a week, 10 or 12 hours per day. Mr. Varga might try his hand at such a study. I am sure there would be no lack of test cases.

St. Mary's Catholics

In your February 5 issue, you carry a letter by Holton R. Small which seeks to refute the defense made against Bishop Oxnam's charges.

It cites St. Marys County, where $60,000 was spent for parochial transportation. Everyone knows that there is a very high percentage of Catholics in St. Marys County.

If Mr. Small wanted to be fair, he would have given the percentage of Catholics in this county, and also the percentage of Catholic children in this county.

Emergency Strike Power

The Democrats seem to be hard put to it to find answers to Senator Taft. They seem to lose sight of everything except what they are after. The President has power to declare an emergency in case of war, but he has to go before Congress, and Congress declares war.

Why, then, isn't Taft on the right track when he says: "If labor unions threaten the welfare of the country, the President may declare an emergency exists; and if Congress agrees, it will grant him authority to deal with that emergency." But the peoples' representatives, not an autocrat who, at one time, wanted the right to shove men into the armed forces, will do the authorizing.

Perry Point

This is in reference to your news story of February 7 concerning the trouble the Veterans Administration is having getting veterans to go to Perry Point for general medical and surgical treatment. It seems to me that the easiest way out of this dilemma for the dismayed VA people is to give a name to the general treatment facility out there, and let "Perry Point" keep on meaning "mental hospital" to the public. Or do they feel like reeducating the public instead?

On Behalf Of Letters To The Editor

"All the important viewpoints and interests in the society should be represented in the agencies of mass communication," the Commission on Freedom of the Press said in 1947. Furthermore, "The giant units can and should assume the duty of publishing significant ideas contrary to their own as a matter of objective reporting distinct from their proper function of advocacy."

And what better agency of mass communication is there than the newspaper with interesting letters columns? Significant ideas discussing the pros and cons of current topics are aired in varying lights. All sides of a question are bared in this forum of verbal expression.

Editorial writers can sharpen their judgment on topics of the times by thoroughly reading the comment in letters to the editor. Such letters bar the observant writer from the theoretical confines of an ivory tower. The editorial writer is further encouraged to improve his newsgathering or his approach to a specialized topic through letters from people much more "in the know" than he is. Furthermore, the writer of editorials is constantly kept abreast of the thought of the day by personal letters from his readers. In this manner, "the impersonal paper is personalized."

The unchallenged assumptions of particular groups will rule the thought of readers unless all aspects of subjects are discussed. This statement does not imply that people cannot visualize the "other side" of a situation. It merely means that information is coming from one source and cannot help but slant thought in one direction because of lack of information from any other. The state controlled papers of Hitler and Mussolini are examples in a day not far gone by. A present holdover from such presentation of information exists in current Soviet publications or publications controlled by them.

It has been proved in the past that such unchallenged assumptions reach a pitch of almost gospel truth when untempered by the other man's viewpoint. Witness the fanaticism produced by the propaganda newspapers of the Third Reich during World War II. And even in America this has been true true to a certain extent despite the over-all lack of bias in reporting. The current Palestine problem in its incipient stages received much pro-Jewish support in American newspapers. The Arab viewpoint was not stressed as strongly at first. The result led to greater sympathy for the Jewish cause on the part of the American public in the early phases of the problem.

The Commission on the Freedom of the Press has said much regarding the function of media of mass communication. Its conclusions are not the blatant cries of theorists who have never understood an existing situation. They are impersonal observers who have seen how a free press can better society and how a collared one can strangle it.

Mankind's Housing Woes

By Malvina Lindsay

Cave To Castle Lag

MAN'S HOUSING troubles, both in this country and throughout the world, are in the headlines again, and it is possible, even likely, these same woes will be rehashed a century hence.

Discussion both on Capitol Hill and at Lake Success emphasizes how little man has done about his shelter in the half million or so years he has been active on the planet. A recent survey by the United Nations Social Affairs Department shows that an enormously large section of humanity yet lives in one-room tenements.

Stranger still is the fact that in this country, with its vaunted mechanical efficiency and widespread material comforts, there is not only a critical housing shortage, but that building methods and a high proportion of dwellings are outmoded and inefficient—built, as a study by the Women's Foundation points out, on the basis that the family should be fitted to the house, not the house to the family.

Probably nowhere except in human relations do Americans so lag their times as in their dwelling facilities. Their clothes, food, transportation, gadgets, amusements, all have advanced far ahead of their shelter.

BOTH IN the current Senate housing hearings and in the U. N. report, the same old housing villain appears — "backward methods." These, which include handicraft techniques, antiquated building codes, seasonal operation, and general lack of integration, keep building costs up and comfortable homes out of the reach of low income and lower bracket middle income groups. For while automobiles and most of the other products man uses now come off the assembly line, houses are yet built in the manner that dresses were once made by Miss Mattie, the "little sewing woman." Some powerful pressure groups are determined they will continue being built that way.

Also hampering modern housing is man's deeply rooted feeling against change. Half the building codes in this country are at least 11 years old—many much older—a survey by the National Bureau of Standards shows. While about 200 cities and towns are reported revising their codes to take account of new engineering advances and new materials, that is only a drop in the bucket of what needs to be done. Moreover builders have been slow to use the new methods developed by governmental housing agencies, even though these would save millions of dollars.

The U. N. housing survey almost brutally emphasized what housing authorities have long been telling Congress—that bold scientific and technological action to get mass production of houses is man's only hope of getting widespread decent shelter in a reasonable length of time. The U. N. report says that the deficit of 14 million dwellings in 16 European countries may never be erased if present building techniques continue. It quotes this verse from Kipling:

I tell you this tale which is strictly true
Just by way of convincing you
How very little since things were made
Things have altered in the building trade.

MEANWHILE the Senate is hearing that the American housing situation remains critical, with many families doubled up, or living in rundown dwellings, and with the under-$10,000 home remaining a will 'o the wisp—though the average family income—at its new high in 1947, was around $3000.

While the Government and some private firms are trying with what research and experiment they can carry on to break the bottlenecks that keep housing in the horse and buggy stage, yet such efforts cannot catch up with the disease, crime, divorce, and other social ills being engendered in city and farm slums and in overcrowded and unhygienic dwellings.

Only a great cooperative effort by all countries can modernize man's shelter, or even make it generally decent, the U. N. survey stated. Similarly in this country only a great cooperative effort by cities, States, industry and national Government, backed by a big-scale Federal research program, can put Americans into homes that measure up to their gadgets and toys.

Mindszenty's Trial

Letters From Readers

The United States and England have signed peace treaties which presumably were not to be considered by anyone, including ourselves, as mere scraps of paper. Surely those treaties give us the right to demand that the whole trial of Cardinal Mindszenty be tried again—but this time with British and American judges presiding over and above what was formerly but a mockery of justice..

If this exposure of Communist "justice" and hypocrisy is not possible, the United States has the alternative of breaking all relations with Hungary and leading the rest of the world in imposing a total blockade against Hungary, although admittedly a total blockade only in so far as the world of Christianity, freedom and democracy is concerned. JOHN HIGBY.
Sunmount, N. Y.

Letters in your newspaper pertaining to the persecution of Cardinal Mindszenty have, for the most part, reflected the horror and dismay felt by Christians everywhere as the result of this latest blow, struck so deliberately against the Christian faith. At such a time one might expect that even a Baptist minister could summon up a feeling of charity towards his traditional archenemy, the Roman Catholic Church, and join other church leaders in an unequivocal denunciation of the Mindszenty crime.

Yet, in his letter of February 10, the Rev. Nathanael B. Habel could not find it in his heart to be charitable, or even restrained, when discussing something Roman Catholic. Possibly he meant to say something in denunciation of the Mindszenty outrage. If so, it was obscured by several sentences of old-line, dismal, tiresome and aimless Baptist preaching against Popery.

I find it impossible to believe that Reverend Habel meant to let tumble what I believe is his true reaction to Cardinal Mindszenty's trial into an anti-Catholic diatribe. If he did, then I apologize for him, on behalf of the pleasant and reasoning Baptists that I attend church with.
BAPTIST
Washington

The Rev. Nathaniel B. Habel, writing on February 10, states that he fears "the Roman Catholic interpretation of religious liberty." He instances that the Catholic Church "denies liberty to other churches wherever it is in a majority."

Has he forgotten the Catholic colony of Maryland, which accorded haven to the persecuted Puritans fleeing from his own State of Virginia? What of Catholic Ireland today, which grants full freedom to all religions and supports Protestants schools from public tax money? I have heard of no Papal condemnation of either undertaking.

I don't mean to whitewash everything any Catholic cleric or prince has ever done, but the fault is not bad Catholic doctrine, but incorrect application of Catholic doctrine or, more often, the selfish designs of bad Catholics.

Of course, Catholics have the duty to take every opportunity to spread what they believe is the truth, but in doing this kindness and justice restrain us from any act that invades the freedom of conscience or other rights of our fellow-citizens.
DUNCAN BURGOYNE
Washington.

I have just read with extreme disgust and a lower respect for the intelligence of some so-called ministers of the gospel, the letter of the Rev. Nathaniel B. Habal of Boykins, Va., in regard to the Cardinal Mindzenty trial. Every time a prominent prelate or layman of the Catholic Church appears in newsprint, this type of person uses the event to make his perennial attack on the church, denouncing it for lack of understanding of civil liberty. Does the Reverend realize that the Catholic Church is the strongest moral force against communism in the world today?
DOMINIC R. IANNARELLI.
Washington.

Has the Rev. Mr. Habel lost all sense of proportions? I defy him to show where the Catholic Church in the twentieth century denies liberty to other churches. Southern Ireland is 99 per cent Catholic, but there are Protestant churches in operation without opposition. In England there is a state-supported Protestant Church, but freedom to practice one's religion is extended to all.

Mr. Wickum (letter published February 10) digs up the old skeletons of the Inquisition. No Catholic with a knowledge of history would attempt to defend the Inquisition. For heaven's sake, must Christians quarrel among one another when we face a common enemy?
AMERICAN.
Silver Spring.

The trial of Cardinal Mindszenty is an outrage and an attack upon all the sincere, religious men of the world.

Before taking a stand toward the church, non-Catholics should make a thorough study of the facts relating to the Catholic position. Thus in a spirit of mutual understanding and tolerance, all of the worshippers of God can combat more effectively the godless forces of communism. MARY DE FERRARI.
Washington.

There have been Protestant clergy in Hungary and other countries who suffered indignities and imprisonment in the hands of Communists on such trumped up charges as "violating currency laws" and other such "bunk."

As to the statement that Cardinal Mindszenty planned to occupy the throne in Hungary—any person with an open mind could see that it is propaganda true to Communist form perpetrated to cause friction among religious groups and give Communists a clear field ahead. Religion and what it stands for are the greatest drawbacks for the success of communism.
YOLANDA DE MATTEO.
Washington.

An objective observer can disregard Cardinal Mindszenty's partial confession, for undoubtedly he was partially drugged.
FRANK J. SMITH.
New York.

The Vatican is now beating the war drums over the Mindszenty incident—a war which America will pay for at a terrible price in blood, resources and money.

Spellman asks "Are We Tools and Fools" for communism. It is my view that Americans have to be neither the tools and fools of communism nor the Vatican.
A. T. WRIGHT.
Alexandria.

To all those who consider the Catholic Church as political reactionaries, Pope Leo XIII's encyclical letter "Reconstruction of the Social Order" is recommended. The church is accused of being politically ambitious. If efforts to wrest the people of Hungary, or of any country, from the spiritual void that is communism as it exists today, are political action, they are merely incidental to and dependent on the spiritual purpose of the church. There is a higher polity than either communism or monarchy.
JOHN J. HANRAHAN.
Washington.

Scandinavia In The Atlantic Pact

LOOKING at a map of the world and tracing along with your finger a little above the Arctic Circle, you come to the only point in all of Europe at which the border of Soviet Russia coincides with the border of a free European country. There in that lonely, empty land, covered for most of the year with ice and snow, free Norway and totalitarian Russia adjoin for a distance of approximately 125 miles.

Childs

Except for border patrols, that line is undefended. The roads are primitive or nonexistent. In general, the same thing is true of the condition in northern Finland where the Finnish border adjoins Sweden and Norway.

Although Finland was conquered by Soviet Russia in the aftermath of the war, Finland is not today occupied by Soviet troops. It is, in effect, a neutral zone between the USSR and free, democratic Scandinavia.

But that whole zone can be transferred in a short time into a battleground of the cold war. Troops could be concentrated there, espionage charges could be hurled by both sides, border incidents could develop, and headlines scream fear and threat and reprisal.

Sweden believes this will happen if Norway enters the Atlantic Alliance. That is the reason the Swedes have declined to join the alliance. It seems to me preeminently important to try to understand Sweden's point of view.

TWO facts stand out that have not been generally appreciated in all the discussion of the role of Scandinavia in the alliance. They are:

1. Sweden has abandoned her traditional—and in this air and atomic age wholly unreal—neutrality policy. That momentous step was taken when, during the recent conferences, Sweden proposed to Norway and Denmark a 10-year treaty that would bind each country to go to war automatically in the event that any of the three countries was attacked by an aggressor nation.

This was a radical departure from the past. Although to most of the rest of the world, the Swedish neutrality policy looked like a bit of surrealist fantasy, the Swedes were for a variety of reasons conditioned to clinging to it.

2. Sweden has far and away the greatest military strength in Scandinavia. The Swedes say they can put 700,000 troops in the field. These troops would be equipped with relatively modern weapons which, through Sweden's system of universal military training, they had been prepared to use.

Sweden has a navy that would give a good account of itself in the Baltic in the event of war. The Swedish air force has jet fighter planes that would at least harass and hamper Russian bombers in the beginning period of war.

IN CONTRAST, Norway could put approximately 40,000 trained and equipped troops into the field at the outset of a war. Combined with Sweden and with the force that Denmark could supply, the general staff estimate is that a considerable part of the Scandinavian Peninsula could be held for from three to four months against the aggressor from the east. During that interval, of course, the Western powers presumably would be moving in every way to counter the Russian attack.

But that estimated timetable would be altered entirely if the cold-war battlefront were to be extended to northern Europe with Finland serving as an advanced Russian base. Then the possibility of any defense for more than a few days would be highly dubious.

What it gets down to is this: Can the United States give Norway the kind of help that would compensate her for becoming a focus of a new cold war?

In my opinion, American policy-makers should think hard before answering that question affirmatively. Because of Norway's fear of Russia, accentuated by the latest Soviet notes, the terms of the Atlantic Alliance may be watered down to such a degree that it will not increase security.

That is one hazard. Another is that American resources for rearmament may be spread too thinly. Necessary concentration on Norway, growing out of a new cold-war battlefront, would divert arms from western Europe where the need is greater.

Unless careful safeguards are put around it, there is a larger danger in the Atlantic Alliance. If military men dominate and get all the arms they inevitably will think essential, then the economic reconstruction of Europe may be permanently sidetracked. And that would make the plotters in the Kremlin very happy.

Republicans In '50

By Mark Sullivan

Farmers And The Labor Law

THERE IS a view which, looking forward to the congressional elections next year, 21 months from now, holds that the Republicans may regain control of Congress. This is worth attention, for a reversal to the Republicans in 1950 would be as arresting and important as was the reversal to the Democrats last November.

Sullivan

For the view that the Republicans may regain control of Congress, a main political justification has to do with the farm vote. The Republican defeat last November was due, in a very special way, to defection of farmers. Return of the farmers, this view holds, is already in the making, and is due to developments in Congress since the Democrats took over, with emphasis on the Administration's new labor bill.

The cause of the defection of farmers was so local and restricted that its decisiveness in a national election for President was almost sensational, and has importance in our political history. Its localness and temporariness make plausible the view that the farmers may return to their traditional Republican affiliation.

THE REPUBLICAN Eightieth Congress had suspended the building by Government of grain bins for growers of corn and wheat. This President Truman exploited in his farm belt speeches. And his exploitation coincided with weeks of the campaign during which farmers, harvesting bumper grain crops, felt need of more bins. Accompanying his stirring up of farm resentment against the Republicans, Mr. Truman promised that if he were elected the Government would build more bins.

Grain growers voted for more bins, and will get them. Mr. Truman included them in the program of legislation he laid before Congress in his State of the Union message. But farmers, and everybody else, will get also, if the Administration's program is passed, some things which farmers as a class are as far as possible from wanting, and quite certainly did not have in mind when they voted for more grain bins.

Several of these are in the Administration's new labor bill. That bill, as a whole, avowedly and greatly increasing the power of labor unions and leaders, goes counter to a strongly held traditional point of view of farmers. Some provisions of the bill, while objectionable to much of the public generally, have for farmers, because of their habitual attitude, a special objectionableness. It is not, except in some instances, that these provisions bear more heavily on farmers than on others; it is enough that they go against principles which farmers as a class hold with a special intensity.

MANY provisions of the Administration bill, repealing restrictions on labor unions and leaders that are in the existing Taft-Hartley law, go counter to the view held by most farmers. Examples are the removal of restrictions against the closed shop and the union shop. Two provisions of the new bill are outstanding, in the sense that they suggest a pattern and a trend.

One is the provision in the new bill which repeals a Taft-Hartley law provision giving the President power to get court injunctions against strikes which have a paralyzing effect on the country—examples are the Nationwide railroad strike in 1946 and strikes in coal mining conducted by Mr. John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

To ask repeal of this power presents an extraordinary picture, a picture of government abdicating, surrendering a power it has, and doing so in the interest of a class, labor unions and leaders.

In the same spirit is another aspect of the new labor bill. It omits a provision which is in the existing Taft-Hartley law against strikes by employes of government (though during hearings on the bill the Administration seems to have receded on this point). This is a picture of government unwilling, in deference to labor unions, to assert authority over its own employes.

This attitude of the Administration, and its proposed surrender of power to seek court injunctions, suggests a conception of government reasonably describable as a labor government. That would be as far as possible from what farmers want. It would be politically plausible to suppose they might come to feel they paid too much for their grain bins.

The President's Calling List

New Envoy to Soviets Named by Britain

London, Saturday, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Sir David Kelly, British ambassador to Turkey was named ambassador to Russia today. He replaces ailing Sir Maurice Peterson, who will retire in March. Sir Noel Charles, now on duty in the foreign office, will succeed Kelly in Ankara.

Kelly, 58, has been in Ankara since 1946. He served as minister to Switzerland and ambassador to Argentina before he went to Turkey.

Gillmor Leaves Resources Board For Industry Post

The National Security Resources Board announced yesterday the resignation of Reginald E. Gillmor as vice chairman.

Gillmore will return to private business as a vice president of the Sperry Corp. He is former president of the Sperry Gyroscope Co.

John R. Steelman, acting chairman of the Resources Board, told Gillmor in a letter that "Your leadership and advice have stimulated the staff in its important program of mobilization planning."

Ellender Calls T-H Repeal 'Unthinkable'

By The Associated Press

Senator Ellender (D., La.) said yesterday it would be "unthinkable" to scrap the Taft-Hartley law for "a lop-sided Wagner Act."

The Louisiana lawmaker declared that so far the Senate Labor Committee hearings on the Administration's proposed substitute for the T-H measure have produced no "unbiased proof" that the present law is operating "to the detriment of labor or the public interest."

He praised what he called the "well-balanced safeguards" of the existing labor relations law.

Ellender set forth his views in a broadcast prepared for Louisiana radio stations. Meanwhile, the Labor Committee called time out after a series of stormy hearings.

Puts Public Interest First

Besides repealing the Taft-Hartley law, the Administration bill would restore the Wagner Act with "improvements" President Truman wants.

Ellender is one of the Southern Democrats the Republicans are counting on in their effort to block Taft-Hartley repeal. A coalition of Republicans and Southerners put the measure on the books over Mr. Truman's veto in 1947.

Ellender has called the Administration's labor bill completely inadequate. He has said the lack of any provision for court injunctions to halt "national emergency" strikes would leave the country practically defenseless in a crisis.

In his radio talk yesterday, Ellender said any new labor legislation "must operate to the primary interest of the public rather than either labor or management."

He said again that the Wagner Act, the basic labor statute before the Taft-Hartley law, "afforded little protection except to labor bosses and racketeers."

New Senator Sees Rough Going

Meanwhile, Senator Withers (D., Ky., a new member of the Labor Committee, expressed the opinion that the Administration bill in its present form will have difficulty getting through the Senate.

"It looks to me as though there were going to have to be some changes and some compromises," he said.

Withers said he was not ready to be specific; he wanted to listen to the rest of the witnesses.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), leader of the anti-repeal forces, has made it clear at the hearings that he is willing to agree to some compromises. But he still is predicting that most of the basic provisions of the law will survive.

In a sequel to the first round of hearings, Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) today joined the CIO in dencuncing what the labor organization called the "effrontery" of the Communist Party for submitting a statement to the committee calling for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

Say Reds Want T.-H. Law

Both Humphrey and the CIO want the law repealed. But the CIO secretary, James Carey, said the Communists really want to keep the law.

The Labor Committee, meanwhile, refused to put the Communist statement in the record. Chairman Elbert Thomas (D., Utah) said one member of the committee objected to including the statement, "and that was all it takes and was enough for me."

Truman Leads

Nation Today Pays Tribute To Lincoln

President Truman will lead the Nation today in celebrating the 140th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Truman is expected to attend the annual wreath-laying ceremonies today at noon at the Lincoln Memorial. More than 50 patriotic organizations have announced they will send representatives to the affair, which is jointly sponsored by the National Park Service and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States.

The District Commissioners will be represented at the memorial rites by Assistant Engineer Commissioner Lieut. Col. Carlin H. Whitesill, who will place their wreath.

An honor guard made up of 100 soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen will be on hand for the ceremonies.

As a part of the Lincoln celebration, the Library of Congress yesterday began an exhibit of the official copy of the Thirteenth Amendment, with the signatures of Lincoln and members of Congress. The original document is in the National Archives. The exhibit will be on display through next Thursday.

Also as part of the Lincoln celebration, the Thirteenth Division of Public Schools, composed of elementary schools in the Southeast and Southwest sections of the city, will hold their annual Lincoln pilgrimage on Monday.

The event, originally scheduled for yesterday, will begin with an address by M. Julian West, a Thirteenth Division alumnus, at indoor exercises in the Anthony Bowen School, Delaware ave. and M st. sw., at 10:30 a. m.

Fountain Site Is Approved By Arts Board

The Fine Arts Commission yesterday gave final approval to a site for a proposed Andrew W. Mellon foundation near the National Gallary of Art.

The foundation is to be located on a reservation at the intersection of Pennsylvania and Constitution aves., near 4th st. nw.

The commission, at its regular meeting yesterday, also discussed with Edward V. Boykin plans for several buildings which are to be erected for the Sesquicentennial Celebration in 1950. Paut Caemmerer, commission secretary, said at the end of yesterday's session that the commission had no statement to make on progress of the sesquicentennial plans.

The commission also approved designs for several service buildings to be erected at the National Arboretum. Plans for the structures were submitted by the Public Buildings Administration of the Federal Works Agency.

The Commission took under study designs and models for three American World War II cemeteries in Europe. The designs were submitted by Brig. Gen. Thomas North, secretary of the American Battle Monuments Commission, and were for cemeteries at Suresnes, France, near Paris; St. Avold, and Omaha Beachhead, France.

Jelleff's

Which Lincoln?

Do you think of him as a country boy lying on the hearth before an open wood-fire in a log cabin, reading his books by the feeble flickering light? . . .

Is your memory thrilled with the story of his long, often-lonely and bitter journey from the lowly doorway of the small cabin to the pillared portal of the White House? . . .

Does your blood heat in anger when you remember the sudden, senseless shot of the assassin that struck him down on the commonplace battlefield of daily duty? . . .

Or is he to you—as he is to us—a symbol of our dearest heritages, whose self-evident truth not time shall destroy nor legend dissipate; one good man among our many, who stands out, broodingly apart, forever among the great in every American heart?

Programs Planned On Race Relations

Many churches in Washington will join in the Nation-wide observance of Race Relations Sunday on February 13.

"Brotherhood—Basis for Peace" is the theme of the twenty-first observance of the day, which was initiated in 1928 by the Department of Race Relations of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

In a statement on Race Relations Sunday, the Department of Social Welfare of the Washington Federation of Churches pointed out that many Protestant denominations have taken stands on the Christian view of race.

Calls for Integration

The Congregational Christian Churches said in 1946, "we repent of the sin of racial segregation as practiced both within and outside of our churches," and called for integration in the churches and society of all persons of all races.

The same year the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America stated that it "renounces the principle of segregation in race relations as undemocratic and unchristian."

The General Conference of the Methodist Church, in 1948, denounced racial discrimination as unchristian and an evil.

The Washington Federation, in 1934, asserted that "distinction among all men as well as among Christians themselves, based on race or condition, are contrary to the will of God as revealed in Christ and are accordingly sinful." The statement set forth as the "purpose and obligation" of the federation "the elimination of all such distinctions within its own fellowship and within the community it serves."

Interchurch Fellowship Praised

Youth in Washington have worked for an inclusive and non-segregated fellowship and found that people of different races mutually enrich their lives when they come together in Christian life and worship, the federation said. It also praised the Washington Interchurch Fellowship for its work with peoples of all races and denominations.

These are some of the special race relations events planned for Sunday:

The Rev. L. Maynard Catchings of Plymouth Congregational Church and the Rev. Dr. Carl Heath Kopf of First Congregational Church will exchange pulpits at the 11 a. m. service. Mr. Catchings will speak on "A Living Faith" at First Church.

An interracial and interdenominational youth meeting on intercultural relations will be held at Tabor Presbyterian Church, 150 South st. nw. at 5 p. m. Speakers will be Dr. William H. McConaghy of the Institute on Racial and Cultural Relations and Thomas B. Keehn of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches.

At Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia rd. nw., the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Congregational Temple, will speak on race relations at 6:30 p. m.

Church Club to Hear Talk on Berlin Airlift

Representative Laurie C. Battle (D., Ala.), will speak on the Berlin airlift at a dinner meeting of the Mens' Club of First Presbyterian Church, Glebe rd. and Wilson blvd., Arlington, Tuesday at 6:45 p. m.

New Baptist Church . . .

Catholic Students To Hold Special Mass on Feb. 22

Catholic students at all colleges and universities in the archdiocese of Washington will join in a celebration of Washington's Birthday on February 22 at 10 a. m., at St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, will preside over the celebration of the mass. Representatives of the graduating classes from all the colleges will make a pledge of citizenship at the ceremony.

In announcing the observance, the Right Rev. John K. Cartwright, pastor of St. Matthew's, said that Washington's Birthday was chosen as "an occasion when our young Catholic men and women just arriving at the age of citizenship can hear from the lips of a qualified official of the church what is expected of them by God and country toward their fellowmen, and to have them recite in turn the solemn protestation of allegiance to all that American citizenship requires."

Union Methodist To Observe 103d Year of Founding

Union Methodist Church, 814 20th st. nw., will observe the 103d anniversary of its founding at services Sunday.

Speaker at the 11 a. m. anniversary service will be D. Stewart Patterson, executive secretary of the Methodist Commission on Chaplains. Patterson recently returned from a tour of the Far East and Europe, where he visited Methodist chaplains.

Union Church was organized on February 13, 1846, when a group met in the Union Fire Hall at 19th and H sts. nw., to organize a Methodist Church for the area. That same year a building was erected at 814 20th st. The original building, with improvements and additions, is still used for worship services. The Rev. Dr. Selwyn K. Cockrell has been pastor for the past eight years.

Mount Zion Women's Day

Mount Zion Methodist Church, 2901 Dumbarton ave. nw., will hold its thirty-second annual observance of Women's Day at services Sunday. Members of the congregation will conduct the services at 11 a. m., 3:30 p. m. and 8 p. m.

First Service To Be Held At Avondale

The first service will be held in the new Avondale Baptist Church, 1860 Michigan ave. ne., Sunday at 11 a. m. The Rev. E. Len Weston, pastor, will preach.

The $35,000 colonial brick building was begun last August. Land for the church was donated by the L. P. Steuart Co. It is the first Baptist church serving residents of the Avondale community, according to Mr. Weston.

On the main floor of the church are an auditorium seating 300, a pastor's study, reception room and two classrooms. The basement has an auditorium seating 200, a kitchen, two classrooms and the heating plant.

The church is the first unit in a plan which calls for erection of a Sunday school building and main auditorium in the future.

Organized as a congregation in September, 1946, the Avondale church has been meeting in a house next to the new building since then. The church has about 100 members, with 150 enrolled in the Sunday school and 50 in the Baptist Training Union. Mr. Weston became pastor in April, 1948, succeeding the Rev. J. Grady Hutchinson, jr.

Scouts to See Film At Church Service

Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts from troops sponsored by Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 North Capitol st., will attend the service at 8 p. m. Sunday. Two sound films, "Liquid Lore" and "It's the Brain That Counts" will be shown.

Boy Scouts and cubs will participate in the service at 11 a. m. Sunday at Ryland Methodist Church, Branch ave. and S st. se. The Rev. Melvin E. Lederer, pastor of the church, will give a special sermon at the Scout service.

'Chosen Vessels' to Be Subject of Rev. Coie

The Rev. Glenn R. Cole will speak on "Chosen Vessels," at 11 a. m. and "Witnesses to Christ's Death," at 7:30 p. m. Sunday at Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring.

Sen. Kerr Club Speaker

Senator Robert S. Kerr (D., Okla.) will speak at a dinner of the men's Brotherhood Council of the Silver Spring Baptist Church Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the church social hall, Wayne ave. and Fenton st. Senator Kerr, a former Governor of Oklahoma, is an active Baptist layman and is a former president of the Oklahoma Baptist Convention.

GWU Chapel Speakers for Winter Listed

Chapel programs for the winter term at George Washington University have been announced by Dr. Lawrence D. Folkemer, director.

The interdenominational chapel services are held each Friday at 12:10 p. m. at Western Presbyterian Church, 1906 H st. nw. Dr. Folkemer opened the winter series yesterday.

The Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, will speak February 18. On February 25 the speaker will be Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, spiritual leader of Adas Israel Congregation.

Lenten meditations will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. L. Ralph Tabor, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church. General theme is "God and My Life" and individual sermons will be March 4, "On Thinking Clearly"; March 11, "Who—Me?"; March 18, "A Reason for Living"; March 25, "The Danger of Being a Christian"; April 1, "Keeping Ahead of Life"; April 8, "The Thunder of God."

The Rev. Dr. Karl Heath Kopf, pastor of First Congregational Church, will speak on April 22; the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church and chaplain of the United States Senate, on April 29, and James Watt, manager of the Washington office of the Christian Science Committee on Publications, on May 6.

The Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, will conduct the final service on May 13.

Catholics Plan War Relief Drive

A five-million-dollar campaign for the Bishops' Fund for Victims of War will be launched in 15,000 Roman Catholic parishes in the United States on March 20, it was announced this week.

Funds raised during the drive will be used for food and relief supplies for war victims and for resettlement of displaced persons. Children in parochial schools throughout the country will join in a special drive for the fund on March 2. Pope Pius XII will speak to the school children in a broadcast from Rome that day.

Rev. Dr. Elson to Preach At National Presbyterian

The Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson will preach on "Whence Comes Knowledge," at 11 a. m. Sunday at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. At 8 p. m. he will talk on "How to Get Along With People."

Sermon Subject Listed

Dr. Orris Gravenor Robinson, minister of Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw., will preach on "God's Deliverance" at 11 a. m. Sunday. At 8 p. m. Mrs. Robinson will review Walter White's biography, "A Man Called White."

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Dr. G. Stephen Krishnayya, educational attache from India, will speak at 11 a. m. Sunday at Vienna (Va.) Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Horace C. Lukens, pastor, has announced.

Dr. Krishnayya, who holds a doctorate from Teachers College, Columbia University, was formerly superintendent of education in Hyderabad, professor of education at Teachers College, Kolhapur, and inspector of European schools, Kolhapur. An active Christian layman, he will speak on the missionary movement in India.

"Prospects for the Protestant Christian Movement in China" will be discussed at the adult class at Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw., at 10 a. m. Speakers will be Warren H. Stuart, who spent 20 years in China as a missionary, and Raymond S. Hall, who spent 30 years there as a representative of the International YMCA.

Dr. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw., will conclude his series of sermons on "Living the Best Life," at 11 a. m. His subject will be "For What Are You Living?"

Morning services from St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw., will be broadcast over Station WBCC at 11 a. m. The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder is pastor of the church.

The Rev. J. Raymond Mills, missionary from Ascuncion, Paraguay, will speak at a meeting of the Young Adult Fellowship of National City Christian Church at 7 p. m. Mr. Mills and his wife are missionaries of the National City Church and are spending the month of February on furlough in Washington. The program will be in the social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw.

John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw., will observe men's day at the 11 a. m. service Sunday. Bishop James Clair Taylor of Memphis, Tenn., former editor of the denominational Quarterly Review, will be the speaker.

Dr. Arthur G. Peterson will discuss Korea and show colored movies of South Korea at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw., at 7 p. m. Dr. Peterson spent eight months in Seoul, Korea, as economic adviser to the National Economic Board of the South Korean government.

Atonement Lutheran To Hold 'Boys' Night'

Monday will be "Boys' Night" at Atonement Lutheran Church, Rhode Island ave. and North Capitol st. nw. The program of movies, games and refreshments, sponsored by the brotherhood of the church, will begin at 7:30 p. m.

To Preach on Presidents

The Rev. Dr. H. W. Burgan will base his sermon on the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington at 11 a. m. Sunday when he speaks on "America's Challenge to You," at Hamline Methodist Church, 4501 16th st. nw.

Episcopalian House to Open At Howard U.

"Canterbury House," a new Episcopal student center at Howard University, will be opened and dedicated Wednesday at 8 p. m.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, will officiate at the dedication service and will be assisted by the Rev. John M. Burgess, student chaplain.

The center, to be used for recreational activities and religious study, is at 2333 1st st. nw. Later a chapel will be added to the center.

Students will have a lounge, recreation room and kitchen for their use in the 10-room house. In addition, the center includes living quarters for Mr. Burgess and his family.

Funds given by the Diocesan Department of Missions and the Reconstruction and Advance Fund of the National Council of the denomination were used to purchase the building.

Redecoration of the house was done by the students themselves during afternoon and evening free time. Furnishings were gifts from the Department of Missions and the house will be maintained by support of those interested in student work.

There are about 550 Episcopalian students at Howard University, according to Mr. Burgess. They come from all parts of the United States, South America, Africa, and the West Indies.

Ex-Diplomat To Address Lutherans

A former Latvian diplomatic officer who has been imprisoned by both the Germans and the Russians will speak at the Lutheran Inner Mission Society dinner Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st.

He is Nicholas Zebergs, who came to the United States a year ago with the aid of Church World Service, and is now working with the Library of Congress.

Zebergs became a prisoner of the Russians following the seizure of Latvia and was later sent to a German labor camp. He escaped from the Nazi concentration camp and re-joined his wife and daughter. At the end of the war all three were liberated by American troops.

Zebergs will speak on the Inner Mission Society's displaced persons resettlement service. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, who visited D.P. camps in Europe last summer, and Miss Evelyn Ott, D.P. from Esthonia who recently resettled in the United States, will also speak.

Campaign chairmen Harry Shoup and George Lautz will give the final report on the Inner Mission's twenty-first annual roll call appeal for $21,000. The society works with 35 Lutheran churches in the Greater Washington area in the fields of social, chaplaincy and community service.

Epiphany Auxiliary Dinner on Tuesday

A fried chicken dinner will be served at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., from 5:30 to 7 p. m. Tuesday. The dinner will be given by Chapter 4 of the women's auxiliary and funds raised will be used for the church budget.

Sigma Nu Phi Banquet

The forty-fifth annual Founder's Day banquet of the Sigma Nu Phi legal fraternity will be held today at the Touchdown Club at 8 p. m. Archibald McDonald Gordon, C.M.G., of the British Embassy here, will discuss English customs.

U. S. Social Service Control Backed

Chicago, Feb. 11 (AP).—A Presbyterian leader today told laymen of his church to stop letting "our family checkbook, our social group, our immediate self-interest" decide social questions.

Dr. Charles J. Turck, president of Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., made the statement to the National Council of Presbyterian men.

He said: "In all the Western world, which is rapidly learning what things can best be done by Government for the general welfare, we Presbyterians are likely to look over our family checkbook, our social group, our immediate self-interest and bluntly and stubbornly proclaim that there is nothing the Government can do that individuals acting alone cannot do better.

"If you really believe that I wonder what you think about our schools, our roads, our postal services, our fire department, our public health services—all of them once private activities and now State-maintained. It is moral indifference."

Dr. Turck said this indifference is the first obstacle to improvement of social conditions.

Dr. J. H. Baird, Philadelphia, the moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly asserted churches are losing outstanding leaders to Rotary clubs, chambers of commerce, and local politics.

Bible Classes Held Legal

to their ultimate, there could be no school holiday for Christmas or Easter because both are Christian holidays, not part of the belief of members of the Jewish or other non-Christian faiths; therefore, the schools should be kept open for the benefit of these non-Christian faiths."

He added that "reason must enter into the technical theory of such restrictive ideology and the point at which reason is to be applied is "within lawful limits, completely within the discretion of the school board."

Under the Arlington program, pupils who present signed slips from their parents are released to attend religious classes taught by instructors furnished by the County Council of Religious Education.

Although the classes are held in school buildings, school personnel are not involved and the classes must be held in rooms not needed at the time for public school classes.

Film to Tell Silver Spring Church Story

"We Would Be Building," a technicolor history of the Silver Spring Congregational Christian Church, will have its first public showing Thursday at 8 p. m. at Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring.

Miss Kenyon

Miss Helen Kenyon, first woman moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will speak.

The film was made last spring by the home missions board of the denomination. It will be shown throughout the country to tell the story of a new church in a new community.

In 1944 the Rev. John F. McClelland was appointed by the board of home missions to organize and build the church in Silver Spring. Members of the new congregation have been meeting in Montgomery Blair High School since then.

Land at Colesville rd. and Indian Spring dr. was bought for the church, and last June construction of the $192,000 first unit was begun. McClelland said it is hoped that the new church will be completed in the early summer of 1949.

Miss Kenyon, who has been touring the country visiting Congregational Christian churches, will tell of the denomination's program of providing churches for new communities.

Church Policy On Education Issue Defined

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 11 (AP).—The International Council of Religious Education said today weekday religious education still was legal for public school children on released time.

The council gave its first policy statement since the United States Supreme Court ruled adversely a year ago on a program in effect in Champaign, Ill., schools.

Under released time programs, public school children are permitted time off from school, usually an hour a week, for religious instruction.

This program, said the council, is subject only to certain restrictions.

Today's statement is expected to guide at least 40 Protestant denominations and 23 State councils of churches affiliated with the international council.

1. Use of public school buildings or public school machinery for the classes;

2. The view that such classes are a part of the public school program;

3. Any plan under which school authories share in the certification or selection of teachers or curriculum, in the supervision of teaching or in disciplining the pupils.

The council statement "rigorously" cautioned against "any plan or practice which accentuates differences between religious groups."

Press Association Of Montgomery Nominates Slate

Byron Sedgewick, columnist for the Maryland News, and Phillip J. Austensen, reporter for The Washington Post, were nominated for the presidency of the Montgomery County Press Association yesterday during a meeting at Stone House Inn in Four Corners, Md.

Others nominated are: Joseph L. Brechner, manager of radio station WGAY, for vice president; Mrs. Laurette Collier, Maryland News, recording secretary; Ernest Tannen, WGAY program director, corresponding secretary, and Louis Leimbach, Montgomery County Sentinel, treasurer.

3 Ukrainian DPs Arrive Today in D. C., 96 in Maryland

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

From Boston en route to Baltimore with DP Special, Feb. 11.—Three coach cars of new Americans—pressing together as if seeking comfort in their strange surroundings—tonight are on the last leg of their pilgrimage to fresh lives of freedom in Maryland and the District.

Those aboard the cars tonight were among the 549 displaced persons who landed at Boston's Commonwealth Pier at 8:25 a. m. when the S. S. Marine Flasher docked.

Maryland will be enlarged by this contingent:

Ninety-six Ukranian immigrants, predominantly farmers, including 26 family groups, with 22 youngsters, eight yet to see their third birthday and five not a year old.

The Nation's Capital will welcome three—Josef and Basia Kogut and their 3-year-old son, Jankiel. They are all that's left of the Kogut family in Europe, and their story is a tough one. The Koguts will live with Mrs. Kogut's second cousin, Mrs. Ernest I. Sherman at 5933 16th st. nw.

Substituting red-tape slashing for pomp and ceremony, the eight-car DP special left the pier well ahead of schedule at 3:10 p. m. today with its remnants of shattered families, bearing tatooed numbers of concentration camps and identification tags, to their sponsors in New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Washington and Chicago.

Expected to arrive in Baltimore about 1 a. m. Saturday, the Maryland group will spend their last night "on the road" at the Fifth Regiment Armory, Howard and Hoffman sts. Saturday they meet their American guardians and drive to their destinations—a free home in a free country.

The train is quiet, most of the youngsters fell asleep soon after boarding. The older ones are talking calmly about the countryside and what lies ahead of them. Their dream has come true. Barbed wire, poor food, dodging "Hitler's men" and then the Bolshevists are in the past. They are trying to relax for the first time, but the scars are still visible.

Josef and Basia Kogut were cheerful but it didn't come easy.

They beamed when told through an interpreter that Mr. and Mrs. Sherman have "two fine rooms and a job waiting for them." But they burst into uncontrolled sobs when they told how they got to be D. P.'s.

"We have been 10 years with no home and now no family," said Mrs. Kogut. The Nazis in 1942 seized Josef's parents and brothers and sisters from their farms in Poland. They were burned to death.

As for Basia, "I lost three brothers and sisters the same way. The Germans herded them onto one of those death trains and took them to the nearest crematory," she said.

Josef, "a synagogue and religious painter," and his family were marched into Germany where he slave-labored as a street worker from 1940 to 1942.

"For the next two years," Josef took up, "we lived hiding in cellars and bombed houses trying to keep one jump ahead of the Gestapo." At the close of the war they entered an American refugee camp.

Basia explained why Jankiel broke into tears when they were tortured by questions of the war years.

"He knows what we are talking about. He is forever asking us why he doesn't have granddaddies, grandmothers and aunts and uncles the way other children have."

Basia does not remember her second cousin, because she was only 3 years old when Mrs. Sherman, herself an immigrant, left Poland to come to Washington 30 years ago.

Basia is anxious to buy Jankiel some new American toys, but "they're not going to be any kind of war toy."

Dockside processing of the Maryland delegation, next in number only to New York group, was a masterpiece of efficiency and American warmth. The sponsoring agency is the United Ukranian Relief Committee.

The Free State contingent was met and cleared through customs onto waiting trains by Judge William F. Laudaitis of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland State displaced persons resettlement committee and the following three officials:

Capt. Ruxton Ridgley of the Maryland State police; Joseph Marmash, Ukranian member of the resettlement committee; and Irvin J. Forsyth of the State Department of Employment Security.

Judge Laukaitis has met three DP ships now and has thus far placed 166 new immigrants with Maryland families.

After processing today's group in less than three hours, the officials felt they had their job "pretty well perfected."

When the train crossed the Rhode Island-Connecticut State line Laukaitis touched a 15-year-old child on the shoulder and explained: "We are crossing a State boundary. In America there are no guards, no soldiers to search your papers. The Pilgrims landed in 1620 about 20 miles from where you did this morning to win this same personal freedom you will now have."

Starting at 9 a. m. Saturday will be the final screening. Sponsors and the DP's will meet at the armory, to size each other up, discuss their farm experience and finally decide if they will be "compatible friends." "If not," Laukaitis explains, "there are plenty of other people who are anxious for a refugee. At the moment we have 500 applications on our files in Baltimore."

If this Maryland setup on the DP special February 11 is any criterion, the new refugee program is a success.

Canada's Premier Here for First Official Visit

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada arrived here last night to pay his first official visit to this country as President Truman's guest.

He flew into National Airport at 9:20 p. m., after a flight from Ottawa aboard a Canadian government plane.

The Prime Minister will be entertained over the weekend by Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson. A reception and dinner at the Canadian Embassy also is planned.

Although the visit is described officially as "social," it is known that St. Laurent plans to discuss a number of important issues with American officials, including the proposed North Atlantic security pact, United States-Canadian trade relations, and the future of United States bases in Newfoundland.

Montgomery Council Calls Private Session

The Montgomery County Council will meet in an informal private session today to discuss, among other matters, whether to ask the Maryland Public Service Commission to fix taxi rates.

Albert E. Conradie, county public utility agent, asked the council last Tuesday to authorize him to attend a hearing, scheduled for Monday, before the State Public Service Commission on the matter.

Policeman Admits Increasing Charge

Court Lacks Power

Misconduct Suit Against Cleric Barred

Los Angeles, Feb. 11 (AP).—A superior judge held today a civil court lacks authority to order a church congregation to hear charges of misconduct against its pastor.

The decision on whether to hold such a hearing lies entirely with the congregation, Judge William B. McKesson ruled. He dismissed a suit by two parishioners against the First Baptist Church of nearby Glendale in which the pastor, Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, jr., was accused of having affairs with 40 women members.

"The only time the court could interfere with the internal affairs of a church in this type of case is where there has been an infringement of a civil right, not a religious right," Judge McKesson said.

Leo Anderson, attorney for the church, told the court the congregation had given Dr. Brougher, pastor for 21 years, a vote of confidence after the charges were made.

The suit alleged Dr. Brougher, 46, father of four children, engaged in "incredible peccadillos" and "fantastic conduct"; that he boasted of relations with 40 women church members; promiscuously kissed young girl members, and had caused disruption of marital relations of numerous families. He has denied the charges.

As a result of complaints by Ernest W. Britt, former cab driver of 3725 Jay st. ne., Watson has been charged with altering a speeding charge, failing to notify his superior officer of the alteration and arresting Britt for disorderly conduct without probable or justifiable cause.

Watson said he paced Britt at 50 miles an hour last August 14, but agreed to reduce the charge to speeding at 35 miles an hour when the cab driver pleaded "for a break."

Disorderly Charge

He said when Britt had a forfeiture set aside and the case reopened, he called him to police headquarters to tell him he would have to raise the charge to 50 miles if he was going to testify in court.

Watson said he charged Britt with disorderly conduct when he came to headquarters because he "acted like he was crazy" and was profane.

When Britt was tried and acquitted on the disorderly conduct charge, Watson said, he indicated in his testimony that he had been arrested because he had taken the policeman's girl away from him.

He said that he then was asked about the speeding charge by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King, who advised that the charge would have to be changed to unreasonable speed.

His testimony about the charge was corroborated by King, who added that Britt had made remarks about the girl friend while on trial for disorderly conduct. Britt, at the opening of the hearing, had denied giving such testimony.

Knew Watsons Well

The woman in question, Mrs. Ethel Matthews of 4945 Blaine st. ne., told the board that she knew both Watson and his wife very well. She said she hardly knew Britt and had never gone out with him.

An earlier hearing was held by the regular Police Trial Board on charges against Pvt. Charles V. Harvey of conduct unbecoming an officer, making an untruthful statement to a superior officer and being convicted of a criminal or quasi-criminal offense.

The charges grew out of a fracas January 26, for which Harvey was convicted in Hyattsville Police Court of assault and battery on William E. Scott, a roomer at 6600 K st., Cedar Heights, Md., and of malicious destruction of private property at that address.

Harvey said he went to the K st. address to get his wife, and that Scott interceded. He said they scuffled and Scott fled. Harvey said his gun was accidentally discharged outside the house.

Both cases were taken under advisement.

Prospective Chief of Staff Visits Hospital

Dr. Frode Jensen of Denver, Colo., leading prospect for chief of medical staff at Gallinger Hospital, yesterday visited the municipal institution and was interviewed by the hospital officials.

Dr. Jensen

Should he accept the post vacated by Dr. Percival S. Rossiter, retiring, he would be first in line for the proposed new post of medical director, with combined duties of medical chief and hospital superintendent, District Commissioners have indicated.

Dr. Jensen is director of graduate and postgraduate education at the University of Colorado Medical School, in Denver, and a former associate of Dr. H. G. Weiskotten, dean of Syracuse University. He is 40, and has practiced medicine since 1939.

GENE'S CHANTOOTSIE—Ginny Jackson, whose vocals share the spot with Gene Autry and his Western Variety Show, visiting Uline's Arena tomorrow for two performances

State Banishes Man Who Beat Cleric's Family

New London, Conn., Feb. 11 (AP).—The Superior Court today banished a Groton man from Connecticut "forever."

The exile was a condition imposed for the release of the man from a mental hospital where he was confined after beating three members of a clergyman's family with a heavy furnace shaker in the dead of night.

Judge Thomas E. Troland ruled that Cedric C. Carpenter, jr., 28, must immediately leave Connecticut "without passing through the town of Groton" where the assault occurred May 27, 1947.

Carpenter had been tried on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder, but he was acquitted on grounds of insanity.

Judge Troland said that upon posting a $5000 bond, Carpenter may be discharged from the hospital providing he "leave the territorial limits of the State of Connecticut forever."

Mitchum's Studio Loses Plea to Defer Sentence

Hollywood, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Robert Mitchum's studio got turned down cold today on its plea the actor be released from jail to finish a movie.

Andre Gide Film Is France's Best

By Richard L. Coe

THAT RARE THING—a haunting memorable film—has arrived at the Playhouse, "Symphonie Pastorale." Though its title suggests Beethoven's placid masterpiece, its dissecting spirit is anything but calm, however pastoral its sublime Alpine setting.

For this is a story by Andre Gide, the first of the Nobel prize winner's works to reach the screen. Written 25 years ago, it tells, with Gide's remorseless understanding, how a tragedy developed from the seeds of godly piety.

Adapted with exceptional faithfulness to the original spirit and enhanced by splendid performances from Michel Morgan, Pierre Blanchar and an honorable cast, "Symphonie Pastorale" is the best postwar film to come this way from France. Since the war, England and Italy have produced better films than the best of present-day France, but in this you find that maturity which gave the French cinema its high place.

Maturity is the essence of this story, which one might imagine various nations handling in various other ways. We begin by watching the pastor of a small Swiss village coming upon the blind daughter—virtually an idiot—of a dead recluse. A godly man, he prays to Heaven that he may lead this unfortunate child into the ways of earthly grace and heavenly promise.

He takes her into his home, giving her more care than he bestows on his wife and their four children. Through the years he molds her into a lovely young woman, teaching her Braille and some of the world's thought. She becomes his creation and his middle-aged wife looks on, never doubting the pastor's innate godliness.

His eldest son, who has been studying music in England, comes home, hopefully welcomed by the daughter of the village's most comfortable gentleman. Though the girl's father has given an organ to the pastor's church as a hint of their future relationship, the lad only has eyes for the beautiful blind girl. The pastor tells his son that marriage is out of the question, that furthermore the girl has asked that he speed his departure.

The Pastor's Selfishness

It is with this lie that the pastor's true feelings for the girl come to light. Is he simply selfishly holding on to this creature he has redeemed from bestiality, or is he in love with her physical beauty and youth? The son's insistence on a belated operation to restore the girl's sight hastens the tragedy for all.

The key figures are finely played and it is indeed a surprise to find Miss Morgan so exquisitely understanding as the girl. The glamour treatment to which she was submitted in her disappointing Hollywood career has thoroughly worn away, and here you have a large, mobile face (recalling the early Garbo), wordlessly expressive of the pathetic storm within.

Pierre Blanchar is thoughtfully subtle as the unhappy man whose priestly intent has somehow been warped with the years into a selfish passion. Like Miss Morgan, he, too, acts from within. The particularly interesting role of the mother is made thoroughly understanding by Line Noro, a French actress new to me but surely a distinguished one. The part of the son is overshadowed by family customs that are quite different from our own, but it's handsomely played by Jean Desailly.

Georges Auric has written a model movie score for these Alpine people, and there are several scenes at an organ console which will be relished by admirers of that king of instruments. The subtitles—by Justin O'Brien, one of Gide's official translators—are adequate. They may not express all the refinements of meaning, but these have been ably illuminated by Director Jean Delannoy.

Not a happy picture, "Symphonie Pastorale" is a mature revelation of the longings and frustrations that beset the human heart.

"SYMPHONIE PASTORALE." Released by Films International of America, Inc. produced by J. Bercholz for Gibe Films, Paris. Adapted from a story by Andre Gibe by Jean Delannoy and Jean Aurenche. Music by George Auric. Photography by Armed Thirad. English subtitles by Justin O'Brien. At the Playhouse Theater.

Met's Lively Western Has A Paint Job

"THE PLUNDERERS," a Republic Picture produced and directed by Joseph Kane, screenplay Gerald Geraghty and Gerald Adams, based on an original story by James Edward Grant. At the Metropolitan.

|---|---|
| John Drum | Rod Cameron |
| Lin Conner | Ilona Massey |
| Julie McCabe | Adrian Booth |
| Whit Lacey | Forrest Tucker |

FOLLOWERS of the Westerns have a lively, cheerful dish in "The Plunderers," at the Metropolitan.

This drama of the Old West, on which Republic has lavished a light-hearted script, a workmanlike cast and that process called Trucolor, has no surprising plot twists.

Rod Cameron, a major of the United States Cavalry, poses as a badman to track down an outlaw gang. He falls in with Forrest Tucker, one of those amiable villians Westerns have taken to heart. The big boys become friendly, with that mutual respect the frontier lawless and law 'n' order seem to boast, and when the Big Bad Man, Taylor Holmes, cottons to the trick, Tucker aids his friend.

Ilona Massey and the Sioux

Naturally this is not the end. Our old friends, the Sioux, pile in, uniting Tucker and gal friend No. 1 in death, Rod and luscious Ilona Massey in marriage bonds.

When it comes to color, this department is strictly a Technicolor man, finding Trucolor anything but what its name suggests. A connoiseur of blood in the hands of Natalie Kalmus invariably finds that something has been added to the corpuscles as filmed in rival processes. Something resembling ketchup.

The cast wades into things with a fine spirit, the only unfamiliar human being in Western dress being Ilona Massey, who looks mighty gorgeous as one of those dance hall gals. And while considering bouquets for "The Plunderers," toss a few to two Geralds, Messrs. Geraghty and Adams, who've written a lively, good-natured script.—R. L. C.

Fine Arts Quartet Presents Walton Work in Debut Here

By Paul Hume

The Fine Arts Quartet came to the Library of Congress last night for their initial Washington bow.

Known for their excellent radio programs, and from a fine recording of the Shostakovich Quartet, these four members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra played Haydn and Beethoven, with William Walton's recent string quartet as the evening's novelty.

It has always seemed to us that eventually Walton would emerge as England's outstanding composer of the present.

Walton's earlier quartet made no demands upon the listener in terms of harmonies or nervous rhythms. The new work, which required years of loving labor, is strikingly different from the much older score, as well as from the viola and violin concertos. Its melodic content is subtler and far more effective. Its horizontal lines are supported by a system of block harmony that is typical of its author. The slow movement is particularly haunting in combining these qualities.

The members of the quartet played Walton's music with great sensitivity. Their preceding account of Haydn's C Major quartet, Opus 54, No. 2, was equally successful in the facility with which they controlled its classic beauty. Haydn had reached full maturity when he arrived at this, the fifty-ninth of his more than 80 quartets.

Though this particular quartet is not favored with one of the unnecessary nicknames allotted many of the master's quartets, it is fully as attractive as any of the more often played pages.

Beethoven's F Minor quartet closed the program. Fourteen years elapsed before Beethoven wrote another string quartet, and yet this somber music points definitely to the last great series of chamber works culminating in opera 127, 130, and the others.

It is a difficult quartet to play from the standpoint of mood, which must be established in the first movement. The Fine Arts Quartet played it well, although they made the same mistake heard earlier this year in attacking the final movement too severely. It is good to hear new chamber ensembles at the library. The Fine Arts men played under the sponsorship of the Nicholas Longworth Foundation.

'Dastardly Negligence' Laid To Museum in Art Damage

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—Ernest de Weerth, writer on art and an international authority on stage settings, announced today he has withdrawn a family collection of 74 paintings from Baltimore's Municipal Museum of Art because of "dastardly negligence."

He said he found the greater part of his $100,000 collection among the dust and steampipes of a workroom. Holes had been punched through some, he reported. Dutch paintings of the seventeenth century, on wooden panels, were split in two. Frames "suffered dastardly damage."

"I assumed that the museum would be more interested in preserving the paintings," he said.

De Weerth was associated for a decade with Max Reinhardt, designing scenery and costumes for the famed theatrical producer. He was an Encyclopedia Britannica contributor on this subject and has written on art for several magazines. He once was a foreign correspondent for The Washington Post.

He said the most conservative estimate of the worth of the paintings is $100,000.

De Weerth also objected to these statements in a catalog sold at the museum's front desk:

". . . about half the collection, unfortunately, must be put aside as interesting examples of faking.

". . . as a whole the paintings are typical of the taste and vague connoisseurship of the opulent era between 1880 and 1925.

". . . many bought for large sums of money have been found, in the light of modern investigation, to be poor eighteenth and nineteenth century copies."

The chairman of the museum board declined to comment on De Weerth's statement. The museum director is out of the city.

Pep Outpoints Saddler In Wild Bout, Regains Title

The Washington Post Sports
Saturday, February 12, 1949 13

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE NEXT good Notre Dame quarterback in the finest traditions of that post at South Bend will be Bob Williams, the Baltimore boy who was in the shadow of Frank Tripucka last season.

Authority for the above is Frank Leahy, the soft-speaking gentleman who coaches football at Notre Dame and confesses that he has been a lucky Irishman with respect to his quarterbacks in the last dozen years.

POVICH

"No coach has had my good fortune in the matter of quarterbacks," Leahy stated during his recent brief stopover in Washington. "Since I was blessed with Charley O'Rourke at Boston College, I have had an unbroken run of luck in that department. In the case of Williams, I feel it is continuing."

When he moved to Notre Dame, awaiting him there was Angelo Bertelli, the slickest quarterback in all college football for three years. When Bertelli's eligibility expired, George Ratterman moved up to take over. "And then, of course, Johnny Lujack came along," reminded Leahy, "and then Frank Tripucka. And now it's Williams and he is a splendid football player."

LEAHY LAYS great store by the seasoning of his quarterbacks, and it pleases him, he says, that Williams saw considerable service as Tripucka's understudy last season. "We had him in the Navy game for all of the last three quarters," Leahy recalled, "and that was a wonderful experience for him. It helped him to grow into the job."

In fact, Williams was not far behind Tripucka from the outset of the season, said Leahy. "We knew very early that he was a fine ball handler, an excellent passer and there were other factors that gave us the highest hopes for Williams. We like our quarterbacks to be student leaders, and Williams is one of our fine scholars at Notre Dame. Most good quarterbacks are good scholars."

Leahy wouldn't rate his quarterbacks publicly, despite the general opinion that Lujack was the best of the crop. "I hesitate to say that Johnny was our finest man in the job. It might be unfair to some of the others," said the Gentleman from Notre Dame, of whom there is no record that he ever spoke ill of any man.

DESPITE HIS own eminence as the most successful football coach in the land in the last dozen years, Leahy made admission that he did not consider himself all-wise when he brought Sid Luckman down to South Bend a couple of years ago to teach the Notre Dame quarterbacks how to handle the ball in the T.

"Luckman was a tremendous help to our boys, and not only in the art of playing the T," said Leahy. "He moved into the spring scrimmages and there was no fiercer competitor on the field. He taught them not only how to call signals and throw the ball, but how to compete. And on the handball courts, where Sid spent hours at Notre Dame conditioning himself for his job with the Bears, he was just as fierce a competitor. Even at gin rummy he couldn't bear to finish second."

Leahy made the surprising confession that he was somewhat unacquainted with the talents of Jack George, the Whatlaman back who went from St. John's in Washington to play with the Notre Dame fresmen last season. "I've heard nice things about George, but I was so occupied with the varsity I saw little of him on the freshmen teams."

IT PLEASES Leahy to learn, though, that George did not give full time to freshman football at Notre Dame. "They told me he was such a good student and anxious to make good marks that they excused him from regular attendance to freshman football. That's orders at Notre Dame—the students intent on extra-good marks we are happy to excuse from regular sports."

Coming up from the freshman team, though, is another individual high in the esteem of Leahy, who was quite smitten with his play in the freshman backfield. He is John Pettibon, the kid from Jesuit High in New Orleans, which slaughtered Gonzaga a couple of years ago during Sugar Bowl week.

"Pettibon looks like a wonderful football player," said Leahy, "and he is certain to see a lot of varsity action next season. He's cut out to be a fine halfback and he not only catches passes but he runs the 100 yards in 9.9. I saw quite a bit of him on the freshman team and I expect to see a great deal more of him on our varsity."

Entry Blanks Now Available For Post Bowling Tourney

Approximately 15,000 entry blanks were distributed to 26 alleys yesterday for men and women bowlers who will participate in The Washington Post third annual tournament of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club opening Monday and continuing through March 1.

Along with the entry blanks were attractive posters, which will be placed in strategic locations in each of the alleys to make the thousands of duckpinners conscious of the big show which The Washington Post is sponsoring in cooperation with the Metropolitan Duckpin Operators Association.

The tournament, being held to boost the Police Boys Club Campaign for $250,000 in memberships, has evoked city-wide enthusiasm from all operators who are determined to double last year's field of entries.

Robert C. Simmons, president of the Board of Directors of the Police Boys Club at a meeting last night at the Ambassador Hotel, praised The Washington Post as well as the bowling operators for joining in the movement to aid the drive for program expansion among the seven clubs and summer camps.

"The Washington Post Tournament has been one of our big sources of aid in the membership drive for the last two years," Simmons stated. "We of the Police Boys Club are grateful for the paper's and bowling operator's cooperation, realizing that this year we have doubled the goal."

Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Club, announced yesterday that at Sunday's special get-together at her home, Walnut Hill, the more than 50 women of her group, who will be assigned to the alleys, will be officially announced. This meeting, in the form of a tea, will be attended by Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett and other high officials of the Police Boys Club, as well as the members of the bowling operators committee, and will start at 3 p. m.

The Washington Post Tournament has an entrance fee of 50c lowest in local duckpin history. Twenty-five cents of this will be donated to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. Full handicaps will prevail and the scratch for men will be 128 and for women 118.

N. C. State Tops Duke, 47 to 44

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—Husky Sam Ranzino, North Carolina State's sharpshooting forward, led his mates to a 47-44 victory over Duke tonight by scoring 17 points.

The tight defensive battle in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium was a blow to Duke's hopes of qualifying for the Southern Conference tournament, leaving Duke with a conference record of four wins against six lossses.

ROHR GOES DOWN—Catholic University's Charlie Rohr goes to the canvas in the second round of his heavyweight bout with Georgetown's Ray Larrow in a dual meet last night at CU. Charlie was up and down again in the third round as Larrow won the decision. Catholic won the meet, 5-3

Catholic U. Downs Hoya Boxers, 5-3

Catholic University won its second straight boxing match of the season last night, downing Georgetown University 5 to 3, before a capacity crowd of 3000 in the C. U. ring.

It was the two rivals' first encounter since 1947 when they drew.

The Cardinals started off with a bang. Featherweight Tommy Cronin won his sixth straight victory, including the last four bouts of last season, by a quick second round TKO over Georgetown Nick Szabo.

The usually dull heavyweight match turned out to be one of the best matches. Both men were trim and fast but C. U.'s Charlie Roohr was unable to take Ray Larrow's dynamite rights to the jaw. Larrow dropped his taller opponent twice duirng the six minutes.

Referee Jim Kelley's decision of a draw in the 135-pound clash between the Cardinal's Johnny Arnold and Georgetown's Pat Palumbo, caused an outburst of boos by C. U. fans.

Summaries:
125 POUNDS—Cronin (CU) TKO'd Szabo, 58 seconds of second round.
130 POUNDS—Redmond (CU) decisioned Conley.
135 POUNDS—Arnold (CU) drew with Palumbo.
145 POUNDS—Charlton (GU) decisioned Nixon.
155 POUNDS—Ennis (CU) TKO'd Talbot, 40 seconds, first round.
165 POUNDS—Maher (CU) decisioned Tully.
175 POUNDS—Sisler (CU) drew with Rose.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Larrow (GU) decisioned Roohr.

GW Opposes North Carolina, Hoyas Take on Seton Hall

The home forces might get themselves shellacked, but there'll be a lot of good basketball at the Armory tonight as the collegiate doubleheader season for 1949 will be wound up starting at 8 p. m.

First it will be Georgetown, with the toughest assignment of the night, taking on Seton Hall.

Finally, George Washington University gets together with the University of North Carolina in a Southern Conference scrap.

Perhaps as many as 4000 fans may find their way to the National Guard's huge drill-house for the occasion, marking the third '49 co-promition of the Hoyas and Colonials. In the first twin bill they both lost, but in the most recent they both won easily.

Seton Hall, down the years, has come to be known as one of the country's outstanding basketball schools. This year's club isn't as strong as some, but it owns a record of eight victories and four losses. Three of the setbacks were by one-basket margins.

In 10 years the Jerseyites have a record of 123 won, 17 lost. They'll be 3-1 favorites to hand the Hoyas their ninth defeat of the season.

G. W. is conceded almost an even chance to trip the Tar Heels in what may be a preview of action in the Southern Conference championship tournament next month. Both clubs have clinched tourney berths and their argument tonight will be largely for the record.

Comparison on the strength of two recent games gives North Carolina a 25-point edge on the Colonials. The invaders whipped Duke by 27 points and G. W. could do it by only two points. But there's a pretty good comparison in G. W.'s favor, too.

In an earlier meeting between tonight's same foes the Colonials romped off with a 64-41 margin.

Rowland Gets 5-Year Pact

All doubt that Bo Bowland, the "Little Genius of G Street" who led George Washington University gridmen to their first triumph over Georgetown last year, would coach the Colonials in 1949 was removed yesterday when the former Oklahoman signed a contract for "five years or more."

"Rowland has withdrawn his name from consideration for the Vanderbilt job," announced Max Farrington, G. W. athletic director, "and has signed a new G. W. U. contract for five years or more."

Farrington would not reveal the terms of Rowland's new pact, or the reason why the exact length of the contract was not announced.

"We are very happy to end all speculation about where Rowland will coach next season," Farrington said. "Our relations with our coach are now on a solid basis."

Rowland, too, was pleased with the new developments. He said that talk of his shifting to Vanderbilt to replace Red Sanders, now at UCLA, was premature and that he enjoyed working under Farrington and university President Cloyd Marvin.

Rowland predicted a good '49 season for the Colonials and said he expected last year's freshman team to strengthen GW's varsity appreciably.

Carolina Beats Terps, 66-52

Maryland's hot and cold Terps were down right frigid against North Carolina last night and dropped their Southern Conference basketball game to the Tar Heels, 66-52.

The defeat not only interrupted a three-game Maryland winning streak but also dealt a crushing blow to the Terrapins' hopes of winning a berth in the Conference championship tourney in March.

There were few enjoyable moments for the near capacity crowd of 4513.

The Old Liners managed to remain at close quarters most of the first half and trailed by only 30-26 at intermission. Four minutes after recess, however, Coach Flucie Stewart's boys were out of the ball game as the Tar Heels, led by Sherman Nearman and Coy Carson, shot their team in front by 11 points.

Carson, who wriggled through the Terps' defenses for 14 points, scored 6 of his in the drive which put the Carlinians in front, 41-29. Nearman, whose 21 points were tops for the evening, led the attack from there and the best the Terps could do was to come up to within 8 points of the visitors at one stage.

Chandler Works On Bonus Rule

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 11 (U.P.)—Baseball's bonus rule, under which kid ball players are paid fantastic sums of money and then shackled by special regulations, is being overhauled by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler's office, it was disclosed today.

George M. Trautman, Chandler's counterpart for the minors as head of the National Association of Baseball Leagues and a tireless "Battler of the Bonus," said the new regulations are now being drawn and will be announced soon.

Lanier, Still Hoping for Reinstatement, Doesn't Share Owens' Opinion of Gardella

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 11 (AP).—Max Lanier, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher banned from baseball for jumping to the Mexican League, doesn't share Mickey Owen's bitterness against Danny Gardella.

Owen said at Springfield, Mo., he hoped Gardella "loses his suit against baseball." He added "Danny is enjoying the notoriety of his damage suit."

Lanier says he doesn't want the suit to affect his own chances for reinstatement.

"I don't want to hurt anybody . . . I just hope that Commissioner Happy Chandler will let us play again."

He said he didn't indorse Gardella's action, but felt it is up to the former Giant outfielder to follow whatever course he feels best.

He supported Owen's explanation that all the suspended players except Gardella have petitioned Chandler asking forgiveness for their Mexican playing and requesting a chance to play major or minor league ball again.

Last summer Lanier organized the "Max Lanier All-Stars" from the suspended players and took them on an 81-game tour. Gardella was not a member of the team.

Handley Backs Clause

Pittsburgh, Feb. 11 (AP).—Lee Handley is one baseball "peon" who hopes the legal umpires finally decline to call a strike-on the player reserve clause.

The former Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirate infielder thinks that without the reserve clause the game would be: "One helluva mess."

This despite the chance at the financial brass ring abrogation of such player reserve rights might give him.

"If the clubs did not have some claim on the services of players from year-to-year, baseball soon would be strangled in the rush to sign with the highest bidder," said Lee. "A few rich teams would have all the talent. The rest would have all the trouble."

Lee's opinion certainly wasn't dictated by selfish motives. Now with the San Diego Padres of the Pacific Coast League, he needed only one month more in the majors to become a "10-year-man"—with all the privileges such a veteran obtains.

Willie Piles Up Big Lead, Weathers Heavy Blows

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Willie Pep, his face a gory mess from cuts around both eyes, recaptured his world featherweight title from Sandy Saddler, spindly Harlem slasher, on a unanimous 15-round decision tonight at Madison Square Garden.

It was a sensational form reversal of his four-round knockout loss last October. Pep, who held the title for six years, weighed 126, Saddler, 124.

A jam packed mob of 19,097 who paid $87,563 for the first Garden sellout since 1946, roared throughout the 15 savage rounds as the little gamester from Hartford, Conn., survived a furious last-round assault by Sandy.

A wild turmoil broke out in the Garden, which was loaded with rabid Pep fans, as Announcer Johnny Addie gave the unanimous decision.

It's Unanimous

Referee Eddie Joseph had it 10-5, Judge Jack O'Sullivan saw it 9-6 and Judge Frank Forbes found for Willie 9-5 with 1 even. The Associated Press scoreboard had it 9-6 for Pep.

Pep boxed brililantly all the way against his heavier punching opponent, bouncing in and out with his dazzling array of jabs, hooks and right crosses.

Always Saddler was moving forward, measuring Willie with unblinking eyes, but the artful dodger from Hartford was too much for him with his counterpunching.

Time after time in the three-packed brawl, Pep jabbed five or six times to Sandy's face. The pattern of almost every round was an early lead for Pep, a middle spurt by the free-punching Sandy and then an eye-filling display of ring craft by Willie in the final seconds.

Both Well Battered

There were no knockdowns, but both were well battered at the end, Pep more so than Sandy.

The skinny 22-year-old kid from Harlem, who held the crown less than four months, gashed Willie's right eye in the third. A mouse, the size of a Grade A egg, had raised under the eye by the tenth round.

In the fifth, Saddler cut Pep's left cheek anad blood streamed periodically through the rest of the scrap. In the thirteenth he slashed open a cut over Willie's right eye.

Saddler, a 5-7 favorite, had cuts over both eyes by the eighth but they did not seem to bother him.

Caught unawares in the first fight, October 29, when he was flattened by Saddler's stiff left-hand punches, Willie clung to that left mit in every clinch tonight. It was the plan he had revealed at Hartford last Monday and it worked.

In the clinches, 26-year-old Willie had all the better of it, wrestling Sandy out of position time after time. He was taking no chances on getting nailed by that left.

The Pep, who many thought "all washed up" after his sorry October showing, was a reasonable facsimile of his old will-o-the-wisp self. As the fight went into its later stages, it was evident that Sandy had to knock him out to win.

There were times when it looked as though that was just what was going to happen. In the fourteenth and fifteenth Pep ran into the same kind of bombs that had dumped him last time. Either he was in better shape or more determined. He didn't falter on this crisp February evening.

'Unethical' Bad Word? Veeck May Sue; Says Wilson Asked for Job

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Bill Veeck said today he was contemplating a lawsuit against General Manager George Weiss of the New York Yankees.

"I am debating whether or not to sue George Weiss for calling my conduct 'unethical.'

"I'm not sure that that's not a court word," the youthful Cleveland club president declared hotly. "He'd better be able to prove it."

When informed of Weiss' remarks, Veeck, who returned here today, threatened to blow a gasket.

"All that happened to Weiss was that he got caught at the switch and now is trying to cover up," Veeck declared. So he's going to protest to Chandler, is he? There's nothing I would like better. I'll do better than that. I'll be in to see the commissioner in Cincinnati in a few days."

Veeck said that all he did was go to Puerto Rico and sign a player whom his scouts had been looking over for a year and who had approached him for a job.

In Player Deal

Weiss Plans Protest of Veeck's Coup

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—In anger rather than sorrow, the New York Yankees declared today they were going to bring President Will Veeck of the Cleveland Indians to account for what they called his "unethical" signing of Artie Wilson, a Negro shortstop sought by both teams.

A smoldering feud between the two American League clubs burst adruptly into flames when the Yanks announced they were protesting Veeck's action to Commissioner A. B. Chandler and other baseball officials and growled that:

Veeck flew down to Puerto Rico yesterday and signed Wilson, heavy-hitting playing manager of the Mayaguez club of the Puerto Rican League and property of the Birmingham Black Barons of the Negro American League.

The Yankees had announced on February 2 that they expected to sign Wilson, and today they produced a telegram from Tom Hayes, jr., president of the Birmingham club, in which he agreed to terms. The wire, dated January 29, said:

"Agreed to assign Art Wilson contract to Newark (Yankee farm club) for $5000 on signing and reporting, $5000 additional if retained June 1, 1949."

Yanks Don't Want Him, Now

Today's lengthy statement, filling two mimeographed pages and signed by George Weiss, vice president and general manager of the team, makes it plain the Yankees are burned to a golden brown. They wouldn't have Wilson now, they say, if he was handed to them on one of Chandler's best platters.

"The New York Yankees have, throughout this case, dealt according to the mandate of Commissioner Chandler to respect contracts between Negro players and members of Negro leagues" the statement steams.

"Dr. J. B Martin, president of the Negro American League, has requested that the Yankees send all available information on the deal and has intimated that, in view of Hayes' wire to Lee MacPhail (head of the Yankee farm system), Wilson's contract rightfully should be assigned to the Newark club.

Circumstances Described

The Yankees said their scout, Tom Greenwade, talked to the Negro star in Puerto Rico in January and that Wison told Greenwade he was not concerned with salary but would "play for nothing—just to get the chaance."

Wilson might have been signed immediately, the Yank statement said, "but in accordance with the wishes of Commissioner Chandler, he Yankees, respecting Wilson's contract with Birmingham, decided to purchase his contract before making a concrete offer to Wilson."

There followed the $10,000 offer to Hayes, the Yankees said, and his answering wire of acceptance.

"At this time Hayes offered biographical material on the player for the New York press and promised he would assist the Yankees in getting Wilson signed even if it involved paying Wilson a percenage of the purchase price," the statement continued.

Points Error in Answers

"There was obviously no doubt in his mind at that time that he had made a deal with the New York Yankees for player Wilson.

Fulks Hikes Caps' Crowd Here Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Joe Fulks probably won't score 63 points against the Caps tonight, but over 5000 customers are expected to assemble at Uline Arena to see him try to do it nevertheless.

Fulks' phenomenal 63-point exhibition against Indianapolis Thursday has made the result of this evenin's BAA clash against the Caps and the Warriors strictly incidental, if not altogether unimportant.

All eyes, including those of the Caps, will be on the Kuttawa, Ky., court king. The advance sale for the game between Washington's Eastern Division leaders and the fourth-place Philadelphians soared yesterday when basketball followers read of Fulks' astounding performance in Philadelphia.

Fulks Passes Mikan

Fulks' feat of 27 field goals and 9 free throws not only eclipsed George Mikan's high mark of 48 points, but it also pushed Fulks ahead of the Minneapolis star for total points this year. Fulks, in 43 games, has 1188 points while Mikan has 1184 in 41 games.

Uline Arena, however, has been one of the few stadiums in the BAA where Fulks has been enunable to score at least 30 points. His high locally is 29, made last year, but not high for the local court. Bob Feerick owns that mark with 35 points.

Bones McKinney, who's been trying to guard Fulks for three years, will try again tonight. "This is one time I welcome the opportunity."

Anti-Gardella Blasts Don't Make Sense

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—It was not intended to continue discussion of Danny Gardella's lawsuit against baseball, but the howling asininity of statements made in connection with the case cries aloud for comment. It is no time to keep quiet when a Congressman gets up in the House and implores a citizen to abandon his test of something which may be unfair and illegal; when an unfrocked ball player like Mickey Owen publicly vents his spleen; when a club official fills the press with balderdash of purest ray serene.

Red Smith

Gardella has planted a tack in teacher's chair, but it is nonsense to suggest that the wound thus inflicted might prove fatal to baseball. If some aspects of the baseball monopoly are illegal, they can be altered and the game can go on in health and rectitude. If some of baseball's business methods are illegal, then they bloody well ought to be changed to conform with the law.

Judge Jerome N. Frank of the United States Court of Appeals has found that the baseball monopoly "possesses characteristics shockingly repugnant to moral principles." Yet a Florida Congressman named A. S. Herlong plumps for the preservation of those characteristics "for the sake of American youth."

Mickey Owen, the Dodger catcher who jumped to Mexico, is in the same boat as Gardella, except that Owen may have broken a contract and Gardella didn't. So Owen says of the little guy who is fighting his battle, "I hope he loses."

WHY? STRICTLY because of self-interest. Because Owen thought he had the rap squared. He had talked with Happy Chandler and obviously believed that if he could bring all the other prodigal sons in as penitents, the commissioner would lift their five-year suspensions.

If Owen was correct in this belief, then it is difficult to ignore the implication that baseball, uneasy about the Gardella suit, was trying to buy Danny off. Not that it would have provided permanent relief. If baseball were to settle the case now, it would only be an invitation to the next guy with a grievance to take up where Gardella left off.

Mr. Edgar P. Feeley, treasurer and attorney for the Giants, says that "most anyone familar with baseball law knows the reserve clause benefits the players most." It was with specific regard to its effect upon players that Judge Frank called the clause repugnant.

"I would say," Feeley goes on, "that between 90 and 95 per cent of the players in the major leagues are benefited by the reserve clause and the protection it gives them. Only a handful of top-salaried stars would profit if there were no such rule and they were allowed to jump where they pleased upon the expiration of their contracts."

Well, there is a young guy named Stan Rojek of whom Mr. Feeley may have heard. He is not among the handful of top-salaried stars. Two years ago he was just a promising young infielder, sitting on the Brooklyn bench. If it were not for the protection the reserve clause gave him, he could have sold himself to the Cubs or Phillies for $20,000 by merely lifting an eyebrow.

THE RESERVE clause protects the player from the risk of taking another job where he might be rich and unhappy. It protects him from worry about next year's salary because the clause provides that "in default of agreement the player will accept such salary rate as the club may fix, or else will not play baseball otherwise than for the club or an assignee thereof."

The reserve clause does not, however, protect the player against a 10-day notice that he is out on his cantata.

Organized baseball is neither a soulless octopus nor a confederacy of brigands. But anyone who pretends it is not a monopoly is simply ignorant. As far back as 1914 the Supreme Court ruled:

"It is apparent . . . that a monopoly of baseball as a business has been ingeniously devised and created in so far as a monopoly can be created among free men."

"By "free men" the court did not mean those affluent peons whose lot Happy Chandler envies.

Douglas Now Fourth, Metz Is Second

San Antonio, Feb. 11 (AP).—Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., glittered with a five-under-par 66 today to shoot into the lead at the midway mark of the $10,000 Texas Open with a 36-hole total of 133.

Palmer sprayed Brackenridge Park's 6400 yards with an awesome puting exhibition to take a one-stroke margin as the field was cut to 60 low scorers and ties for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

In second place was Dandy Dick Metz, from Virginia Beach, who laid down a 68 to go with his 66 of yesterday for 134.

Palmer was in fifth place today when he started out in the second 18-hole round, having shot a 67 in the opener on the Fort Sam Houston course's par 71 6379 yards.

Harbert Third

In third place was Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich., with 136.

Play in the first two rounds was on two courses because of the big field. Tomorrow all will move to Brackenridge for the last 36.

Dave Douglas of Wilmington, who led the first round with a 65, had all sorts of putting trouble today and wound up with a 1-over-par 72 that dropped him into a tie for fourth place with 137.

Tied with Douglas in fourth were Jim Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, Va. Turnesa had a 66 today while Snead shot a 67. Douglas, Turnesa and Snead each had a 36-hole total of 137.

Alone at 138 was Vic Ghezzi of Englewood, N. J., who had the day's best round—a 6-under-par 65.

Survives Trouble Twice

Palmer, whose last big winnings was at Portland, Ore., in October when he tied for first but lost in the play-off, twice ran into tree trouble but got out of it each time.

On No. 10 he was in the trees but used a 4-iron to get onto the green and run down a 10-footer for a birdie. On No. 9 he hit two trees trying to get onto the green but still managed for a par.

He birdied No. 1 with a 12-footer, sank a 25-footer for a bird on No. 7, a six-footer for another on 12, 18-footer for a birdie on 14 and a 7-footer for his final birdie on 18. He missed six footers on 4 and 5 that prevented birdies.

Lew Worsham of Washington, posted a 69, added to yesterday's 70, gave him 139.

Knicks Trade Tanenbaum

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Baltimore Bullets of the Basketball Association of America today acquired Sid Tanenbaum from New York and Don Martin from St. Louis.

Tanenbaum, former New York University star, was obtained on a trade for a player to be chosen from the Baltimore roster next fall. The Knickerbockers will be permitted to pick any man on the Bullets' active list except Player-coach Buddy Jeannette.

In the other deal, which Bullets President Robert C. Embry said he completed last night as the league trading deadline ran out, Baltimore will get getting the services of Martin a 6 foot 8, 210-pounder from Warrensburg (Mo.) Teachers. Martin will join the Bullets tomorrow night as they open a five-day swing of the western half of the circuit in St. Louis.

Kirk and Riley Gain Title Round

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 11 (AP).—Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, and Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., won their way into the finals of the twenty-fourth annual Palm Beach women's golf championship today.

Tomorrow's 18-hole finals match will be a repetition of last year's tournament, which Miss Kirk won.

Hall of Fame Remains Same

Gehringer, Ott, Greenberg Fail To Make Grade

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Baseball's scribes whipped a third strike past Charley Gehringer, Mel Ott, Hank Greenberg and other former stars today when they failed to elect a single player into baseball's Hall of Fame.

In an annual Hall of Fame poll, conducted by veterans members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, no past performer was able to garner sufficient votes to join the 55 others already immortalized in the shrine at Cooperstown, N. Y. A candidate must receive at least 75 per cent of the total vote cast.

Gehringer, former star Detroit second baseman, drew the most votes, 102, but he was 12 shy of election as 51 of the 153 voting writers left his name off their ballots.

Mel Ott, home run king of the National League, who spent 22 active seasons with the New York Giants, placed second with 94 votes. Al Simmons, 89; Dizzy Dean, 88, and Jimmy Foxx, 85, were next in order.

Here is the way the candidates to the Baseball Hall of Fame fared:

1. Charley Gehringer, 102.
2. Mel Ott, 94.

Stymie Will Be Back in Training For Fall Races

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 11 (AP).—Stymie, the world's leading money-winning race horse, will be put back in training about July 1 for a fall racing campaign, Trainer Hirsch Jacobs said today.

The 8-year-old chestnut, owned by Jacobs' wife, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, went into retirement last July after becoming lame in the Monmouth Park Handicap. He has earned $911,335.

Celts Mangle Rollers, 94-77

Boston, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Boston Celtics captured their third straight victory at the Boston Garden tonight as they hung a decisive 94-77 Basketball Association of America defeat on the Providence Steamrollers before 4933 fans.

George Kaftan and Johnny Ezersky led the Boston contingent with 18 and 16 points respectively. It was the third straight game that Kaftan, the former Holy Cross star, has led his mates. Dermie O'Connell, the Celtics' other Holy Cross alumnus, collected 14 points.

Kenney Sailors of the Rollers was the high man, however, as he scored 25 points, many of them while carrying five fouls on his back.

Thieves Steal Radio, Leather Case From Hogan

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Ben Hogan, recovering in an El Paso, Tex., hospital of automobile accident injuries, had something else to worry about.

Intruders broke into his new home at Fort Worth and made off with a radio and leather case.

Daukas' 27 Pace GW High

Tony Daukas' pivot shot was unstoppable as he scored 27 points and helped unbeaten George Washington High win its sixteenth straight game, 65-38, last night over Lane of Charlottesville.

The Alexandrians also kept two of their other streaks alive. It was their seventeenth win in a row on their home court in two years, and their sixteenth straight Virginia Group I Conference win over a three-year period.

The Presidents were never in danger, leading, 21-7, 42-14, and 57-25, at the end of the first three quarters. Dave Cooke scored 25 points in Lane's losing cause, 12 of his points coming in the last quarter.

Trend Lower In Preholiday Stock Trade

A feeble try at a rally trimmed some losses and lifted a few stocks into the plus column, but declining of fractions to 2 points or more were in the majority at the final bell. Most of the losses were less than a point while the gains that did show up were equally small.

The decline, the latest in a trend which has been under way with only minor interruptions for three weeks, put the general level of prices at the lowest point in almost 11 months.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .2 of one point to 62.1, a botton since March 18 and less than two points from the 1948-49 low. Volume of business contracted to 880,000 shares from 980,000 Thursday.

Trading had little urgency behind it, in part because of the Saturday recess in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. Wall Street is traditionally cautious on the eve of a long weekend on the theory that it's safer to be out of the market in case of an unfavorable and unexpected news development.

| WHAT STOCKS DID | Fri. | Thur. |
| Advances | 290 | 181 |
| Declines | 426 | 631 |
| Unchanged | 263 | 225 |
| Total issues | 979 | 1037 |

The possibility of a tax boost, with the accompanying threat to corporate profits, worries downdown Manhattan fully as much as the possibility of a business recession. A rivulet of unfavorable reports affecting business and industry have contributed to the uneasiness.

Farnsworth Television & Radio, far and away the most active issue, recouped a small fraction of recent heavy losses. The stock closed ¼ higher at 17⅛, which contrasted with a 1948-49 high of 11¾. Heavy selling walloped the issue in connection with a proposal for sale of the company to International Telephone.

American Telephone, up ¾ at 146, and Central Railroad of N. J., 1½ higher at 24½, made a good showing. Others a little higher included Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott Copper, American Woolen and Atlantic Coast Line.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Cotton futures turned irregular in moderately active dealings today. Prices developed some firmness toward the close on mill buying and short covering, prior to the extended holiday week-end. Final prices were 80 cents a bale higher to 20 cents lower.

509.95 Emerson

Television and Radio-Phono

399.95

Plus 2.30 Excise Tax and $65 Installation and 1 Year Service

At this new low price, it's yours complete for $27 per month after $94 down payment. That gives you Emerson's clear-view television screen, the popular 10-inch size. And in the separate sectional cabinet, you get Emerson's powerful FM-AM Radio and Webster automatic record changer. Means you can have unsurpassed entertainment in two rooms at once (move the television sectional to a sick room for example), or place the two together for a mahogany veneered console of unusual beauty.

D. C. House Units Favor Teacher Pay Rise of $200

$330 Increase Plus Extra 8% Approved By Subcommittees For Police, Firemen

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Hopes of District school teachers to get the $330 pay raise likely for other District employes got a sharp setback yesterday.

Members of three House District subcommittees meeting together agreed that teachers and other school employes covered by the teachers' pay act should be given a $200 pay boost, retroactive to last July 1.

At the same time, the group approved a retroactive $330 pay boost for police and firemen, including Park and White House Police, with an extra eight per cent in lieu of overtime and night differential pay, giving them a net annual increase of $356.40.

8% Over Basic Pay

They would get the eight per cent now over present basic salaries, but the subcommittee agreed it should apply also to the new pay increase.

In another decision, the subcommittees agreed that all pay raises should be subject to action of Congress in making new revenues available to meet the increased payroll costs.

This was the same string attached last year to District pay raises, and it pulled the proposed pay raises to a dead stop in the Senate when action there on a local sales tax was blocked.

Decisions of the subcommittees were announced by Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), chairman of the subcommittee in charge of police and fire legislation, and by Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), ranking minority member of the subcommittee in charge of revenue legislation.

Bates Took Leading Role

Bates, who took an outstanding role in getting District teachers their last $150-pay raise in 1947, also took a leading part at the meeting in urging the $200-pay-boost figure for this year. It was the amount aproved by the House last year for teachers, in a bill finally blocked in the Senate deadlock over a sales tax.

Bates contended that the new teachers' pay increase should be based on the rise in the cost of living since the last time their pay was boosted.

He said the $200 figure would just about compensate teachers for the estimated living cost advance since mid-1947. He said he was making a further study of the living cost figures.

School officials, headed by Supt. Hobart M. Corning, have urged Congress to give the teachers the same $330 increase expected for other District employes. Corning told the subcommittees that present scales are too low to attract teachers to positions in the Washington schools, and too low to keep experienced teachers in their jobs here.

Single Bill Planned

Davis said the pay boost for teachers, police and firemen would be worked up into a single bill by District Corporation Counsel Vernon West, and presented by the subcommittees to the full District Committee. No meeting has been set to receive the bill; but the next scheduled session is March 7.

In another action, Bates announced the assignment of Charles Farmer, 27, to the staff of the District Committee to aid minority members in research work.

Farmer served four years as a Navy combat flier on carrier duty in the Pacific during the war. He shot down eight enemy planes, and won the Navy Cross and two Distinguished Flying Medals. He was graduated earlier this month from Harvard College. He is a native of Mobile, Ala., and a resident of Marblehead, Mass. He is married.

Cabbie Beating Mystery Goes Into 5th Week

Police Investigation Continues, With Chief Giving 'No Comment'

The unsolved mystery of who assaulted a 48-year-old cab driver at Thomas Circle January 14 became four weeks old yesterday as police announced their investigation was still under way.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett has announced the case will be turned over to the United States Attorney's office when the police investigation is completed.

Victim of the beating by two unidentified men, James Rowell, has steadfastly maintained he doesn't know who broke his left arm, knocked out three teeth and bruised his ribs at about 4:45 a. m. after he had seen the two men giving another "a going-over" outside a Thomas Circle drugstore.

Hefferman Denies Part

On information that he had been seen talking with Rowell since the incident, Lieut. Thomas T. Hefferman, District hack inspector, was asked by a reporter if he was participating in the investigation.

"I have no part in it," he said. "It is being handled by bigger people than me."

Heffernan said he had known Rowell personally for about 32 years. As far as the beating is concerned, Heffernan said, he merely told Rowell he "was sorry for him" and that he hoped the men who did it would be "taken care of."

Heffernan said he had visited Mrs. Rowell in the hospital upon hearing she had been sick since the beating took place. It was then that he spoke with Rowell, he said.

Chief Barrett revealed February 3 that he had transferred a detective and a plainclothesman from the vice squad because he believed they were responsible for the assault.

Barrett said he thought they were "guilty as hell, but I've got to prove it."

Talked to Police Twice

Rowell said yesterday he had talked with police twice during their investigation. Once was when he failed to identify his assailants in a lineup, which included the officers transferred. Another time, he said, he was taken to the "rogues' gallery," but failed to spot the men who beat him.

"If you were a witness to a murder, unless you could make positive identification, would you put the finger on a man and say, 'He's the one?'"

Rowell was asked if, by the same token, he were confronted with several men—as in the police lineup—he could positively say they were not his assailants.

"They didn't register at all," he said. "Didn't register at all."

Brightwood Group Votes Cleanup Drive, Adds Area

The Brightwood Citizens Association voted last night to put on an extensive cleanup campaign after seeing photographs of collections of trash and garbage.

Meeting in Paul Junior High School, 8th and Nicholson sts. nw., the association also voted to extend its boundaries from Ingraham to Jefferson st. nw. The extension, it pointed out, was agreeable to the Arkansas Avenue Community Association which formerly covered the added area.

Innocent Pleas Entered by 4 In Dice Case

The defendants are Herman (The Judge) Kadan, 46, of 2730 Woodley pl. nw; Joseph H. (Big Joe) Scheve, 52, 4515 Longfellow st., Hyattsville, Md.; his son, Theodore J. (Little Joe) Scheve, 30, 2521 34th pl. se., and Hyman Rosen, 40, 1616 Isherwood st. nw.

Bond for Joseph Scheve was set at $2500 and for the others at $1500 pending trial. Joseph Scheve is also charged with hitting Robert E. Ricker, a businessman, formerly of the Hotel 2400 on the head with a .38-caliber pistol.

The case was presented to the District grand jury after Ricker complained of the alleged assault and said he had lost more than $7500 at the Woodley pl. establishment.

Wife Fined $25; Threw Glass Through Window

Mrs. Gene Watkins, 22, was fined $25 yesterday for throwing a drinking glass through a restaurant window. The glass was intended for her husband, a legless pencil vendor, she said.

Mrs. Watkins, who resides at 903 New York ave. nw., told Judge Walter J. Casey of Municipal Court that she became desperate when the husband, Paul Watkins, 22, refused to come home. She said:

"I just didn't want him to spend his money in taverns when he should bring it home for me and our four-month-old baby."

New District Suffrage Plan Is Sponsored

The suffrage measure, as approved by the full committee, provides for a 12-man governing council elected at large, plus a city-manager form of government.

The plan differs from the Auchincloss bill in two major respects: (1) It does not call for a nonvoting representative in Congress, and (2) it provides that the council could enact laws which would stay on the books unless both houses of Congress passed superseding bills.

In other action taken yesterday, the committee voted to support legislation calling for a pay increase for District government employes identical with the $330 rise granted Federal workers some time ago.

The committee also voted to extend an invitation to representatives of other District groups interested in home rule to meet with it Tuesday.

In the meantime, Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Senate District Subcommittee on Home Rule and Reorganization, has scheduled an open meeting Thursday on home rule plans of various District groups.

Tall Cedars Host To Master Masons

Capitol Forest No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, will be hosts to Master Masons of the District area at the annual "Blue Lodge Mason" program today at 8 p. m. in the Northeast Masonic Temple, 523 8th st. ne.

44 Indicted By Grand Jury In Alexandria

Forty-four persons were indicted on 51 counts in Alexandria yesterday in the busiest day an Alexandria grand jury has spent since the prohibition era.

After handing up the indictments, Jury Foreman W. Selden Washington arranged with Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls for the grand jury to reconvene Wednesday morning to consider "other matters."

Those indicted yesterday included two persons charged with murder, 19 charged with grand larceny, 10 with burglary, 8 with felonious assault, 3 with robbery, 1 with burglary with intent to commit rape, and 1 with forgery.

Indicted on murder charges were Dorothy Harris, 35, 822 Madison st., Alexandria, who police allege stabbed Roosevelt McNeal in the neck with a butcher knife December 12 during an argument, and Herbert D. Alexander, jr., 23-year-old former sailor, who reportedly admitted to police that he killed his wife and baby last October 22 in their apartment at 3908 Elbert ave., Alexandria.

Indicted on charges of grand larceny from the Montgomery Ward & Co. warehouse at Fayette and Pendleton sts. were Charles Banks, 55, of 318 Oronoco st., Alexandria; Murray Payne, 58, of 101 E. Del Ray ave., Alexandria; Louis Tyree, 22, Groveton, Va., and George Wooton, 33, Springfield, Va.

Two others were indicted on charges of grand larceny from the Lindsey-Nicholson Corp. warehouse at Union and King sts. They were Roy Grantling, 41, 1219 B st. ne., and Henry Wells, 37, 1001 Montgomery st., Alexandria. Isaac Vaughn, 30, 609 S. Royal st., Alexandria, who allegedly worked with them, was indicted on a burglary charge.

Three men who pleaded guilty were given prison sentences yesterday. They were Michael Perch of 215 N. Washington st., Alexandria, four years for burglary; Ben Wilson, 46, of Richmond, Va., three years for burglary, and Clinton Chambers, 24, of High Point, N. C., 18 months for grand larceny. Trial dates for the others will be set Monday.

Traffic Group Acts to Obtain Uniform Code

Pressure to Be Put On Congress to Leave Rules to Commission

The Traffic Court Conference Committee yesterday acted to obtain a traffic code for the District identical with a uniform code now in effect in 40 States.

The group, an affiliate of the District Bar Association, meeting in the Municipal Center, voted to put pressure on Congress to grant authority to the District Commissioners to enact traffic regulations with this end in view.

At present, no regulations may be decreed by the Commissioners which are at variance with congressional dictum. The motion adopted by the traffic group yesterday would request Congress to repeal such legislation as might conflict with the Commissioners' rules.

The following motions also were approved:

1. That Congress be urged to enact a bill making as prima facie evidence of intoxication medical reports showing a 1.5 percentage of alcohol in the defendant's blood or urine.

2. That the Commissioners be requested to direct the police to serve notice on certain violators, prior to forfeiture of collateral, that their offense may result in suspension or revocation of their driving permit.

This proposed regulation is designed to protect motorists who forfeit collateral to avoid inconvenience only to find later that their permit is in jeopardy.

3. That Congress be urged to provide funds for two more courses of driving training in District High Schools. Currently four schools, two of them high schools and two vocational institutions are giving such courses.

Also it was recommended that the driving records of students who have had such training be checked against those of pupils who have not to determine what benefits are being derived. To urge reexamination and eye test of permit holders every six years.

Joseph G. Weeda, chairman of the committee to arrange for the Fourth Annual Traffic Court Conferenee, reported the session will be held in Civil Division, Municipal Court on April 21, starting at 10 a. m.

Water and Coffee To Be Plentiful At AA Dinner

With "generous consumption of ice water and coffee" in prospect, the Washington branch of Alcoholics Anonymous will hold its seventh annual dinner at 7:30 tonight at the Statler Hotel.

The Washington area AA Club has more than 1000 members, officials state, while the organization claims from 80,000 to 100,000 members across the country. About 600 members, relatives and friends are expected at tonight's dinner.

AA's policy is that its members are "not prohibitionists, reformers or crusaders . . . The only requirement for membership is an honest desire to stop drinking," while the group's sole mission is to keep its members from objects alcoholic, "and to help other alcoholics to achieve sobriety."

2 D. C. Men Named To Park Advisory Board

Two Washington men have been named members of the Interior Department Advisory Board on National Parks.

Reelected chairman was Dr. Waldo G. Leland, 1826 Mintwood pl. nw. Named to the board was Dr. Frank M. Setzler, 4219 49th st. nw. Dr. Setzler is curator of anthropology at the National Museum. He was named secretary to the board.

Further Control Of Rents Backed At Bill Hearing

Some Groups Give Reluctant Support; Partial Decontrol, 15% Boosts Asked

Extension of District rent control received general support at a public hearing yesterday, although some groups gave it reluctantly and hedged it with exceptions.

The hearing by the District Commissioners was held to receive comments on a bill introduced by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the House District Judiciary Subcommittee handling the measure.

The Harris bill calls for extension of rent control here from expiration date on March 31 to June 30, 1951. It also adds sections bringing converted housing under control and requiring purchase by 65 per cent of the tenants in an apartment building before the owner may sell the units under a cooperative plan.

Expect Control Extension

During the all-day hearing, building and real estate men attacked continuation of rent control, but added that they felt its enactment was a foregone conclusion. They therefore asked for inclusion of clauses permitting 15 per cent increases and decontrol of units renting for more than $70 a month or rooming houses.

J. Garrett Beitzell, vice president of the Washington Real Estate Board, said the local housing situation had improved to the point that newspapers were carrying solid columns of advertisements offering vacant housing units for rent and sale.

He said that continued rent control would stifle production and urged that the rent control law be extended for six months with a provision for a general rent increase of 15 per cent.

This also was the position of J. Wesley Buchanan, who spoke for the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington.

FHA Statement Cited

The Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Washington joined with the Home Builders Association in asking for decontrol of apartments renting for more than $70 a month. This was based, it was testified, on an announcement by the Federal Housing Administration declining to guarantee mortgages for apartments renting for more than $70 a month because an adequate supply for such demand exists.

The Building Owners' group urged a one-year extension for the entire program. Other supporters of the one-year plan included the Hotel Association of Washington, the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Georgetown Citizens Association, District Federation of Women's Clubs, the District department of the American Legion, Pleasant Plains Civic Association, Washington Housing Association and several individuals.

Miss Ilse Mueller, appearing for the Washington chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action, backed the principle of rent control, but urged the commissioners to support a bill by Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.), which would include the District in a national system of rent control.

The Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters was the only organization in the 17 represented at the hearing that accorded full approval of the Harris bill. Mrs. Munroe Burk, chairman of the league's District affairs committee, said the present vacancy rate on housing units here is less than 1 per cent and rent control is necessary.

Among the 31 persons who spoke at the session for the Washington Guest House Association and the Capitol Rooming and Boarding House Association were the most outspoken against rent control.

Calls Law "Insidious"

Paul J. Miller, president of the Guest House group, said that rent control was an "insidious law, thoroughly confiscatory and unconstitutional." He branded rent bills as "class legislation."

He took a different position from the building and real estate men, who said the housing situation now required only short-term rent control. He declared that investors and builders "are not building new apartment houses and new homes. They are waiting for rent control to be lifted."

Rent control was berated by other speakers as bringing on both socialism and communism. Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers League, charged that rent control is resulting in the "liquidation of owners, and that means socialism."

Lecture Tonight on U. S.

Alistair Cooke, correspondent for the Manchester Guardian, will present the second in a series of lectures entitled, "Understanding the United States of America," at 8:15 p. m. Monday in the International Student House, 1825 R st. nw.

Door Broken In

Vice Squad Charges 3 At Apartment

Vice squad detectives crashed through the door of a second-floor apartment at 912 I st. nw. yesterday and arrested three women on vice and vagrancy charges.

Arrested in the daylight raid were Hannah E. Edwards, 63; Bernice Belmore, 37, and Barbara Packard, 32. All were charged with vagrancy and the Belmore and Packard women were charged with operating a disorderly house.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said when detectives went to the apartment yesterday with a search warrant, they were denied admittance and had to knock down the door.

Inside, he said, they found four men and three women. While detectives were there, four more men came to the apartment. All the men were released after questioning.

Blick said this was the third time in two years that the apartment occupied by the three women has been raided, and that all three have previous records in relation to prostitution. The place operated only from noon to 9 p. m., according to Blick.

Bond for the Edwards woman was set at $300 and for the other two at $800 each. They will be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

2 Numbers Writers Get Jail Terms

Man, 24, Given 2 to 6 Years in Prison in Restaurant Stabbing

They are Bernard Newyahr, 29, of 901 New York ave. nw., who received a 6-to-18-month term, and Robert H. Clements, 57, of 647 Florence st. ne., who received 2 to 6 months.

George R. Hurley, 24, 1500 Quarles st. nw., was given 2 to 6 years prison term for stabbing a former girl friend, Elizabeth Pocock, 1320 Columbia rd. nw., last September in the Sandbar Restaurant.

Isaac S. Marshall, 18, of Fairmont Heights, Md., received a one-year term for negligent homicide in the traffic death last June of Cecil Neil, 20, of Fairmont Heights, a passenger in Marshall's automobile.

James L. Ward, 24, of Colmar Manor, Md., was sentenced to two to six years in prison for burglary and stealing $900 in goods from four dwellings here.

Margaret Seymour, 55, formerly of 1801 Calvert st. nw., was fined $100 and given two years' probation for operating a disorderly house for purposes of prostitution.

Railroad Chef Loses Fingertips in Accident

According to police, George Tobias of 57 O st. nw., tried to get aboard his train, the Spirit of St. Louis, as it moved into Union Station from the yards at the New York ave. ne. bridge.

He missed the grab iron as he jumped for the train and fell under the train, police said. He was admitted at Emergency Hospital.

Area News in Brief

High's Dairy Fined For 'Docking' Pay

High's Dairy Products Co. was fined $100 yesterday in Municipal Court for what Judge John P. McMahon termed "highhanded" violations of the minimum wage law for women.

The dairy store chain was accused of causing two women clerks to "voluntarily" allow docking of their salaries for cash shortages in the store at 1538 North Capitol st.

The actual salary of the women, Kathleen Simmons and Delores Howard, was $31 while the minimum required in the trade is $25 a week. But, after the deduction for the shortage, the women during one week last month made only $17 each, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert C. Chalfonte.

Judge McMahon said:

"This is a most high-hanaded practice. Everybody needs $25 a week to exist these days."

Woman Explains Leap

Questioned yesterday at Casualty Hospital, Mrs. Sally Warner, 38, of the Bronx, N. Y., told police she had jumped 15 feet from a hotel window here Thursday night to elude a soldier escort. Her condition is "good."

National Security Week

District Commissioners yesterday proclaimed the period from today to February 22 as National Security Week and directed that the flag be displayed on all official buildings during the week.

The proclamation also asked that residents and organizations here support the Reserve Officers Association of the District and "give prayerful consideration to the duties facing us all."

The local Reserve officers group has sponsored the observance here for the past 26 years.

Abductors Convicted

Miss Szechenyi, Count Szapary To Be Married

COUNTESS LASZLO SZECHENYI announces the engagement of her daughter, Sylvia, to Count Anthony Szapary, son of the late Count Paul Szapary and Countess Szapary, who was Countess Marie Louise Przezdziecka of Poland.

Miss Szechenyi is the daughter of the late Count Szechenyi, Hungarian Minister to the United States from 1921 to 1933, and later Minister to the Court of St. James. Countess Szechenyi is the former Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

The bride-elect is one of five sisters, the others being Mrs. Eugene Roberts of Washington; Countess Bela Hadik; Gladys, Countess of Winchilsea, and Mrs. Alexander Eltz. She attended schools in Washington, London and the Chateau Brillantmont in Lausanne. She made her debut at a ball at her home in Budapest and was presented to society at Newport at the Breakers, the Vanderbilt summer home.

Count Szapary was born in the free port of Fiume where his father was governor general. He was educated in Switzerland and Hungary and from 1936 he represented the American Express Co. in Budapest; from 1939 to 1947 he represented Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. During the war he organized relief work for Polish refugees. He acted as liaison officer between the International Red Cross and the Hungarian Red Cross. In this capacity he was arrested by the Nazis in 1944 and sent to the concentration camp at Mauthausen. He arrived in this country a year ago and is now with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

Greek Citation Awarded Former Women's Club Head

Mrs. Louis H. Renfrow, former director, Foreign and Territorial Clubs for the General Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday received a decoration from the Greek government. The decoration was conferred upon her by the Greek Ambassador, V. G. Dendramis in a luncheon ceremony held at the Embassy here.

While serving as the federation's director of foreign and territorial clubs, Mrs. Renfrow initiated the organization's "Peace Plans Practical," and carried on an intensive campaign among the federation's six million women. One of her projects was to acquaint them with the urgent needs of the people of Greece. As a result the club women gave over 100,000 yards of dress and other materials worth $95,000 to the Greek people.

The South Dakota State Society will hold its February luncheon meeting Saturday, February 26, in the private dining room of the Parrot Restaurant, at 12:30. Deadline for reservations, to be made through Miss Carlotta Reedy, Adams 8700, is February 21.

Reservations for the Louisiana State Society's Mardi Gras ball to be held March 1 at the Washington Hotel, can be made through the offices of Louisiana Congressmen, or Mrs. Marcella B. Aiken, secretary of the society.

Ohio Society Not in Politics, Say Officers

An accusation by Representative Stephen M. Young (D., Ohio) that the Ohio State Society in Washington was "Republican controlled" and fell down on the job during the President's inaugural, was termed "much-ado-about nothing" by the society's president, Paul L. Selby, yesterday.

Representative Young, in a news letter to his constituents, contended that "in spite of a big bank balance in its treasury" the society failed to contribute to the cost of a State float in the inaugural parade. He also said, "instead of holding a reception for Governor Lausche, those who run this Ohio society ignored the Governor and arranged for a dinner dance directly after the inaugural with Senator Taft (R., Ohio) as speaker."

Selby and John S. Bartlett, executive secretary of the society, say that the society's bank balance is far from large. When the society was revived this year after a wartime lapse of several years, there was a deficit. "After we had paid off the three-piece orchestra we had at the first meeting January 7, and paid for the stationery and circulars we had printed, the money we collected in dues was gone," according to Selby.

"Besides," he continued, "nobody asked us to contribute toward a float and none of the State societies had one."

The claim that the society had ignored Governor Lausche wasn't reasonable, either, according to Selby and Bartlett. Both agreed that the Governor's office had said they weren't sure of his plans for the inaugural weekend. "As far as we know," said Selby, "he flew back to Ohio the night of January 20 and didn't even attend the special reception given for Governors."

Selby, who says that Young as well as all the other Congressmen were given "cordial invitations to be one of the gang," claims that "nobody asks the club members about their politics."

The honorary president of the club, Senator John Bricker, is a Republican because "it is traditional with the club to have a Senator—usually the junior man—as president," said Bartlett.

"It just happens that both Ohio Senators are Republicans this time," stated Selby, "but Democratic Senators have been presidents of the society before."

The executive board of the society will meet Monday night, "probably in somebody's office," according to Bartlett, to make further plans for the society which now has over 100 members.

Tough Decisions Ahead for Europe, Club Told

Free World Faces Crisis, Hoffman Says

By Genevieve Reynolds

"Soviet Russia's great dream is world dictatorship," ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman told members of the Congressional Club yesterday when he appeared as guest speaker at the organization's weekly tea.

"The free world is face to face with an authentic crisis," he explained. "The Russian Politburo is now engaged in an all-out drive to establish a world dictatorship by setting up satellite police states dominated by the Kremlin. It's fifth column is attempting to win acceptance by what the Russians call communism."

Hoffman pointed out that the brand of communism practiced by the Russians today is to intensify class hatreds, set brother against brother. "Winning acceptance by the Kremlin of its brand of communism is only a secondary goal," he averred.

Threat of the Politburo does not seem real in prosperous, comfortable America but it is in the very air in the Near East, India, Korea and China, according to the speaker.

Politburo Encouraged

He cited the fact that Soviet successes in annexing new territory and dominating satellite states had so encouraged the Politburo that new extremes to wipe out all religion and opposition now are being undertaken. For example, he cited the arrest and conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary.

"One great failure of the Kremlin has been in western Europe where, before ECA, they had every reason for optimism," declared Hoffman. "The tide of communism in western Europe is ebbing wherever the Marshall Plan has gone."

Asserting that he was underscoring former Secretary of State Marshall's Plan for winning the cold war in Europe, the ECA administrator said that meant being militarily strong and encouraging and developing governments by and of the people and giving aid for economic recovery.

Quoting from testimony given by him before congressional committees, Hoffman said, "From the ECA point of view, the real proving period lies immediately ahead. Europe is in the first phase of economic recovery. In the coming months Europe must tackle the difficult problem of making major readjustments, which break away from its traditional and now inadequate ways of paying its way in the world.

Tough Decisions

"In the immediate future the governments of Europe face some tough decisions which must be made and carried out if Europe is to stand on its own feet," he continued. "Best appraisals have come from the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, better known as OEEC."

"OEEC's recommendation add up to this—now is the time to hit hard for European Recovery," averred Hoffman, "time for Europe to take drastic and sometimes painful steps to realize recovery, and time for the United States to back their efforts to the fullest."

Concluded the ECA administrator, "If cooperation can succeed in the economic field, it can succeed in others. It may well be that the measure of cooperation necessary to achieve economic recovery will form the foundation for a far greater structure—the permanent close association of the free nations of Europe."

Together, We Can Win

Hoffman reassured his audience that if the free nations of Europe stick together with us we can have prosperity and peace.

No aggressor would dare march against a united, free people because the free people possess all the material and spiritual advantages.

Hostesses

Mrs. Charles Dewey, acting program chairman, introduced the speaker, and Mrs. Ralph Church, president, presided.

Mrs. John C. Kunkel headed the hostess committee at the informal tea following the program. Taking turns pouring were Mrs. Albert Gore, Mrs. Clarence Kilburn, Mrs. William Reed and Mrs. John Sparkman.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. Harold H. Burton and Mrs. Albert Cole.

Among the members and guests present were Mrs. Owen Brewster and her guest, Miss Lim Balliet, now on foreign service leave for the United States Embassy in Paris; Mrs. Hugo Sims and Mrs. Joseph Bryson, both wives of South Carolina Representatives; Mrs. Clinton D. Anderson with Mrs. F. D. Shufflepaeger of Albuquerque, N. M.; Mrs. Dean Taylor, Mrs. Robert Le Baron, Mrs. Hal Holmes, Mrs. George Thomas, Mrs. Thor Tollefson, Mrs. Claude Gillette, Mrs. Rupert Baxter, Mrs. Walt Horan and Mrs. Walter Judd.

Reception to Honor Mrs. Mae M. Kinney, New UDC President

Members of the Stonewall Jackson Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will honor the chapter's new president, Mrs. Mae M. Kinney and other officers at a reception at 8 p. m. Monday, in Confederate Memorial Hall, 1322 Vermont ave. nw. Guest speaker, Ogle Singleton, will give an address on Stonewall Jackson.

In the receiving line, in addition to Mrs. Kinney, will be Miss Liza Ellen Carpenter, division president, District of Columbia; Mrs. Charles H. Plotner, first vice president of the chapter; Mrs. Shelton B. Lamar, second vice president; Miss Estelle Morrison, third vice president; Miss Mary W. Allen, recording secretary; Miss Mary G. ## About Learning Block Printing

I would like to know if there are any instruction books on the market about block printing. I have studied art and design before, and thought I might be able to learn it on my own. If there is more to it than that, are there any evening classes I could attend instructing in block printing? V. V.

"Arts and Crafts—A Practical Handbook," by Marguerite Ickis (Barnes & Co.) has a section on all sorts of block printing. She discusses in detail the methods and materials needed for doing block printing with wood blocks, potatoes, linoleum, gum erasers, etc. Also included is a discussion on stenciling. With your background and these instructions, I see no reason why you should not be able to learn the craft by yourself.

Recently your column listed an address from which there might be secured wheels for replacements for toy wagons, cars, etc. Would you be so kind as to repeat the address of this house? I should like to secure two 9-inch wheels, rubber tired. A. S. A.

Stores which are listed under "Bicycles" in the yellow pages of the telephone book and do repair work usually have replacement wheels for toys. Since the size of the axel varies on wheeled articles, it isn't possible for me to tell you at which store you will find wheels you can use. Therefore, I suggest you phone several of these stores, direct, to locate the wheels.

Where could a hospitalized person obtain information on restringing pearls? H. J.

I have not been too successful in finding a book which would be helpful to you. There is a small section on bead stringing in "A Complete Book of Modern Crafts" by H. Atwood Reynolds (Blue Ribbon Books). Also, here are a few suggestions which might be helpful to you:

Pearls and beads of all sorts may be strung successfully on heavy linen thread, dental floss or very fine wire. Thread will not kink and the beads will string more easily if you first run it through the tallow of a candle or beeswax.

To size the beads before stringing, lay them in the center crease of a large book or magazine. Lay the largest beads in the center of the crease and reduce the size of the beads as you work to the outer edge on each side. When they are laid in the groove in this way, it is easy to pick out any which are not placed right for size and replace them. By counting the beads so that you have the same number on either side of the center one, you can be sure the largest beads are directly in the center.

Incidentally, the craft book mentioned above is filled with all kinds of what-to-do ideas—on paper crafts, leather, pottery, and lamp shade construction, to name a few which could be pursued by a hospitalized person. The book was originally published about 10 years ago, but can be had as a reprint by ordering it through a book store.

The Ancient and Honorable Fig Deserves Honor on Its Own Day

TRICKY way to serve ice cream is in a nicely tailored little box made of fig bars. Five cookies are needed for each box and gelatin is the "glue" that holds them together. Soften contents of an envelope of gelatin by soaking 5 minutes in ¼ cup cold water. Melt over hot water and let cool slightly before dipping edges of cookies in and sticking them together to make the boxes. Make in corners of straight-sided utility pan, then put panful of cases in refrigerator to harden. Fill with ice cream or other dessert and garnish with flower-cut fig before serving

A TYPICALLY modern tribute to an ancient fruit is in the offing.

The fig, mentioned in the Book of Genesis and early Persian, Greek, and Roman writings, will be acclaimed all over the United States during National Fig Week, February 8 to 14.

Fig trees flourished in the Garden of Eden, according to the Bible. Once they caused a war when a Persian king coveted the luxurious fig gardens of a royal rival. Here in the United States they used to be an expensive delicacy imported from the Mediterranean countries largely for holiday feasts. But in recent years, the growth and development of fig culture in California have brought this most prized of ancient fruits within the means of every family for year-round enjoyment.

Dried figs, full of natural fruit sugars, calcium, phosphorus, and iron, are an ideal food for growing children and adults as well. Here are some new ways of using these old favorites:

Fig Tea Bread

10 large dried figs
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
2 cups sour milk
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons soda
¾ cup broken walnut meats

Cover the figs with boiling water and let stand for five minutes. Drain and, with scissors, snip off their stems. Then snip figs into tiny bits. Combine sugar and eggs and beat well. Add sour milk and beat again. Add flour sifted with salt, baking powder, and soda. Stir until just mixed. Pour into a very generously greased loaf pan (5½ inches by 10½ inches.) Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 1 hour or until nicely done. When the loaf is cold, wrap it in waxed paper and put it away, if possible, until the following day. It slices best if cut the day after baking. The bread makes delicious sandwiches when spread with margarine, butter, or cream cheese.

Fig 'n' Apple Pie

10 large dried figs
4 to 6 tart apples
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ cup soft butter or margarine, melted
¾ cup brown sugar
½ cup broken pecan or walnut meat
Pie pastry

Cover the figs with boiling water and let stand for 5 minutes. Drain and, with scissors, snip off their stems. Then snip the figs into small bits. Peel and core the apples and cut into ½-inch cubes. Mix the figs, apples, lemon juice, melted butter or margarine, the sugar and nuts, and place in a pastry-lined pie plate. Press down gently and then cover with a top crust. Pinch firmly together, slit to permit steam to escape, and place in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 10 minutes or until beginning to brown. Then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 30 minutes or until nicely done.

After the Baby Is Born

There's been a lot of loose talk about how much more capable primitive mothers were than are the mothers of today. Supposedly, they gave birth to a baby, rested an hour or so and got up and went about their work. Undoubtedly, this was sometimes true. On the other hand, a lot more mothers died in childbirth when we weren't so careful about seeing that they had plenty of care at and after the birth of a child.

Whatever the situation may have been in the early days, today it seems pretty clear that the wise thing is to see to it that new mothers don't have to lead too strenuous a life during the weeks after a baby has come. Of course, this way may be easier said than done in many situations.

Wherever possible, a household assistant—whether she be a hired girl, a mother of husband or wife, or a friend—should carry the burden of heavier housework. If this isn't possible, the laundry should be sent out for several weeks and arrangements made for simple meals that don't take too much work. It will save a great deal in the long run to take these precautions and to give the new mother a chance to get back on her feet.

Studying Women in Politics

The Washington Post

SENATOR MARGARET CHASE SMITH (R., Maine) talks with Miss Lorraine Peck, one of the 22 students in the "Washington Semester" at American University. Miss Peck, a junior at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., came here to study the role of women in American politics

Lorraine Peck, a junior from Lindenwood College for Women in St. Charles, Mo., has just completed a study of "The American Woman in Politics," and hopes some day to be one. Miss Peck is one of the 22 students from all parts of the Nation enrolled in the "Washington Semester" at American University. Here to study American Government at first hand, these students haunt Capitol Hill, rub elbows with Government officials and Congressmen, study records and do research. The results of their day's work they exchange in bull sessions every night at Roper House, the coeducational dormitory where this special group of students live.

While studying the development of women's political organizations and women's role in politics, Miss Peck interviewed the nine women now in Congress and learned why more women are not in politics.

Most women, she says, are unwilling to do boot work. They don't want to start in the basement and work up. Many of them expect to make a queen's entry into a top political position, she found.

Economic circumstances have something to do with it, too, since women are less likely to have their own private funds for campaigning, Miss Peck discovered.

If more women reversed the process, serving in precincts and learning politics from the bottom up through their political parties, more of them could get into politics, claims Miss Peck.

House Spy Probers Name Russell Chief Investigator

The new House Un-American Activities Committee yesterday named Louis J. Russell, former FBI agent, as its chief investigator and conferred with Army and Navy intelligence officers and Attorney General Tom Clark.

The "harmony meeting" between the investigating groups brought assurances of cooperation against subversive elements from Maj. Gen. S. LeRoy Irwin, chief of Army Intelligence, and Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis, chief of Naval Intelligence.

Committee Chairman John S. Wood said the meeting was devoted to "enlisting the cooperation of the executive agencies so the committee can carry on more effective work."

Lane Asked to Approve Tobacco 'Ambassador'

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11.—Governor Lane today was asked by Southern Maryland officials to approve a $15,000 appropriation for a tobacco "good will ambassador."

Legislators and Tobacco Authority officials said the move is aimed at opening up new export markets to relieve Maryland growers hard-pressed for adequate domestic markets.

The "ambassador," is was explained, will travel abroad and work with Tobacco Associates, Inc., a tobacco marketing group, in an attempt to increase sales.

Judge Holds Silence Hurts On Red Charge

Los Angeles, Feb. 11 (AP).—Superior Judge Clarence M. Hanson said today "a person who is unwilling to state publicly, under any and all circumstances, whether he is or is not a Communist, is regarded in America as being a Communist."

The jurist also said in California "the Communist Party is not recorded the privilege of the ballot, and to charge a person with being a Communist is as defamatory as to charge him with being a murderer, a saboteur or a thief."

His comments were made in an opinion in which he directed 10 Hollywood writers, producers and directors to answer certain questions connected with their 61-million-dollar damage suit against Hollywood studios.

The studios dismissed the 10 after they were charged with contempt of Congress for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether they are or were Communists. These cases are on appeal. They are suing the studios for loss of their jobs and prestige.

In his comments, Judge Hanson said refusal of the studios to rehire the 10 was "in the nature of a conspiracy," but he questioned whether those dismissed could recover unless they prove the dismissals were unlawful. The judge added that employers have a right to discharge employes to protect themselves from adverse public opinion.

The 10 Hollywood figures are Lester Cole, Ring Lardner, jr., Dalton Trumbo, Alvah Bessie, Samuel Ornitz, John Howard Lawson, Edward Dmytryk, Adrian Scott and Herbert Bieberman. (Cole won a reinstatement and back-pay order in another suit against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer last December. Federal Judge Leon R. Yankowich presided in that trial.)

Top Doctors Tell AMA 'No' on $25 Propaganda Fee

New York, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—One hundred and thirty-six physicians, including some of the Nation's most distinguished doctors, have protested the American Medical Association's failure to develop a program for improved medical care in view of the Government's compulsory insurance proposals and said they would not pay an assessment levied by the group if collections are earmarked for propaganda.

In a message to Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and spokesman for the A. M. A., the doctors said they are solidly against compulsory health insurance and "represent a middle of the road group who believe that the obvious way in which the present threat . . . can be averted is to produce a plan so manifestly advantageous to the public and physicians alike that it would be acceptable in preference to any other."

The assessment of $25 a member that the doctors said they would refuse to pay was levied by the association to finance its campaign against the Government's bid to install compulsory health insurance through enabling legislation and additional taxes.

Four Air Force Generals Given Reassignments

Brig. Gen. Frederick Von H. Kimble, former commanding general of the Aleutian section of the Alaskan Air Command, has been assigned to Washington as a member of the Secretary of the Air Force Personnel Council, the Air Force said yesterday.

Brig. Gen. Charles E. Thomas, jr., formerly with the air division of the joint United States military advisory group in China, has been named commanding general of the 1503d Air Transport Wing in Tokyo.

Brig. Gen. Yantis H. Taylor, who has commanded the Fourth Fighter Wing at Andrews Air Force Base, Camp Springs, Md., has been designated deputy commanding general of the Air Force Defense Command. He will remain at Andrews.

Maj. Gen. James D. McIntyre, formerly a special assistant to Air Secretary Symington, has been assigned to the office of Secretary of defense Forrestal as deputy director of legislative liaison.

Nonvoters Pose Big Problem, Crossley Claims

Iowa City, Iowa, Feb. 11 (AP). The stay-at-homes are the villains in election prognostication.

Those who fail to vote after telling the pollsters their references are the real problem in forecasting the outcome.

So says Archibald Crossley, the nationally known public opinion sampler. He also expressed doubt about the justification of forecasting the results.

Crossley, who with other pollsters missed on the presidential election winner last November, made the assertions in a paper prepared for a symposium at today's session of the Iowa conference on "Attitude and Opinion Research."

He said it is in the field of determining who will vote that "we really are experimenting." The problem, as he put it, is one of measuring stay-at-homes.

Berlin Failure Admitted

Air Institute Gives 18 Certificates, Hears CAA Head

D. W. Rentzel, Civil Aeronautics Administrator, was the guest speaker as 18 "students" received certificates last night at the closing of the third annual Air Transportation Institute.

The institute is presented by American University in cooperation with the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Air Transport Association of America. Most of the students are veteran executives or leaders of civilian or military aviation.

Rentzel spoke on "The Role of Government in Promoting Civil Aviation" and described the past accomplishments and future plans of the CAA.

Other speakers were Edwin J. Kirschner, veteran of aviation and institute student, and Dr. L. M. Homberger, representing American University, who presented the certificates.

C., up to 2 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, FEBRUARY 23, 1949, to lease for a period of two years, commencing on March 23, 1949, and ending March 22, 1951, for the use for parking purposes of certain areas in Square 167, Washington, D. C. All proposals must be accompanied by the required deposit and submitted on the form of proposal which may be obtained in Room 7023 of the Federal Works Agency Building, 19th and F Streets N.W., Washington, D. C. The Federal Works Agency reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, and to waive any informality in proposals received when such rejection or waiver is in the interest of the United States. If more than one proposal be offered by any one party, by, or in the name of his or their clerk, partner, agent, or other person, all such proposals may be rejected. Bidders are requested to visit the property and inform themselves as to all conditions, it being understood and agreed that the property shall be leased by the Federal Works Agency in its present condition, except that the present lessee shall have the right to remove his signs, portable wooden building and personal property. # THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

The World Could Use Another Lincoln

Folks who watched Abe splitting rails
And heard his ready wit
Never dreamed he'd one day mend
A Nation that was split.

Frances M. Bell
5355 Quincy pl.
Bladensburg, Md.

THEY LOOK LIKE WALKING POOL TABLES

The other day I wondered out loud whether every female in the District owned a green coat this season.

Virginia Prentice of Chevy Chase, Md., answers: "I do not have a green coat this season—but I wouldn't object to getting a new one, of any color."

Don Henry tells me that he took a coat census on the way to work the other morning. At first, the green coats didn't do very well. The score was 28 non-green to 5 green. Then he noticed 17 women waiting for a bus across the street, and of the 17, only 6 were non-green, and 11 wore green coats.

"But I wouldn't trust those statistics too far," muses Don. "Coats always look greener on the other side of the street."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

J. E. Giblin of 1760 Lanier pl. nw., says he was dutifully impressed the other night when the television program to which he was listening stated:

"Remember! America leads the United States in television!"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Five puppies of vague ancestry; pretty, very affectionate, good with children." (Victor 4618 after 5:30 p. m.)

"Blond, 4-months-old female pup, part cocker spaniel." (Taylor 9526).

UNSUBTLE DIFFERENCE

I had a little trouble recently in defining the exact difference between "machinist" and "mechanic" for a reader. But Zora W. Butler of 1863 Wyoming ave. nw., does a much better job of it.

"A mechanic," she says, "may disentangle your automobile pistons from the contraptions around them, but would not necessarily be able to make a new piston. A machinist can make the new parts, but doesn't necessarily have to know how to assemble them.

I see. Webster was a lexicographer, but not every lexicographer is named Webster.

YEAH—QUIT IT OUT

The return of Lincoln's Birthday always reminds George A. Parker of 313 N. Greenbrier st., Arlington, Va., of a story.

It has to do with George's son, Johnny, who was all of 3 years old when this happened.

Grandma was visiting the Parkers, and had bought Johnny a whistle. Johnny blew on the whistle with great fervor and endurance.

All day long, there was no surcease from the whistling. That is, not until the family took Grandma sightseeing, and the group approached the Lincoln Memorial.

As the Parkers climbed the steps and the impressive seated figure of the Great Emancipator loomed into view, an unaccustomed silence broke out. George looked inquiringly at Johnny, who chose that moment to whisper in awed tones to his mother:

"Let's not whistle at him, shall we don't?"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I've listened with interest to your WTOP discussions of the taxicab situation. Here is a female point of view:

I take a taxi for comfort and privacy, and think that group riding defeats this purpose.

1. When I've been shopping, and have large packages, it's inconvenient to have others crowd into the cab.

2. It's hard to crawl over the legs of others in getting in and out.

3. There are delays when the driver goes off a direct line, to accommodate another passenger.

4. Lonely males sometimes suggest cocktails.

5. At Union Station there are long delays in loading.

I think that a person should be able to engage a cab as he engages space on a train, or in a hotel. Group riding should be permitted only with the consent of the original passenger.

A. C. H.

Dear Miss H.:

You have some good points. But what about:

1. People who can't afford full fares, and must choose between group rates and streetcars?

2. Rainy days, when there aren't enough cabs available, even with group riding?

3. Rush hours, when ditto?

4. The hackers, who might have fewer customers if group riding were abolished?

I don't know the answers; I'm just asking.

Bill

VAGRANT THOUGHT

And how long has it been since YOU visited the Lincoln Memorial?

PERSONAL NOTES

Pat Newton, Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va.: One of these days I'm going to get tired of waiting for more space and do a whole column on replies which came in on that Gadget-of-the-Month Club. Also on my inquiry about the origin of "shaggy dog" stories. They swamped me.

H. A. Willard 2d., 1416 F st. nw.: Wish I had room for your excellent poem, but it's too long for this limited space. However, I'm entranced by the poem's theme: If taxation brings with it the right of representation, then why not a dog or two on the Hill?

PONZI STILL LIVES

A drugstore at 15th and K sts. nw., has on display a book titled "How to Live Within Your Income." The price is $1. Al Sisson of 4609 24th ave., North Woodridge, Md., says:

"Could you lend me a dollar so that I can buy the book that will tell me how to save a dollar so that I can pay back the dollar I borrow?"

HONEST ABE

Back there, along the hills a way,
Tom Lincoln's son was born this day.
A tall, ungainly sort of man
Who failed to live his normal span.

Yet in his living did achieve
Emancipation, or reprieve
For people who were meant to be
As free in life as you and me.

Today, I know, I'll climb a stair
To stand before his statue there
And offer up a silent prayer
For those in bondage—everywhere.

G. A. Fisher
1442 Spring rd. nw.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Last week Fannie Hurst went to Mount Kisco to attend the wedding of Louise Karraker, daughter of the Bucknell professor, to Lloyd Wellington Furman. Mme. Chiang Kai-shek was one of the wedding guests and during the ceremony she wept, as did all the other women present. For her tears and sniffles Mme. Chiang drew from her purse a large silk handkerchief, whose perfumed scent intrigued the ladies . . . "I must buy some of that perfume," Miss Hurst decided. And so, to capture the scent as a sample to submit in perfume-shops, Miss Hurst went to the wardrobe, found Mme. Chiang's coat—which she identified by the fur and by the perfume—and moved her own coat next to Mme. Chiang's.

Philip Barry, the playwright and author of "My Name Is Aquilon," worked so hard on his new show that he's resting in a hospital . . . Jean Pierre Aumont, the star and author of the original French version of the play, didn't speak a word of French from the day the rehearsals began until the final curtain at the premiere—so that he could perfect his English . . . Phil Silvers, the star of "High Button Shoes," began his show business career in burlesque, where he became expert in every standard burlesque routine. Monday night, when Richard Whorf opened in Richard III," Silvers wired him: "I hear you're doing that 'My Kingdom for a Horse' bit."

Rocky Graziano, the former middleweight champion, finally has been cured of his persecution complex and is training again at Stilman's Gym. The complex had affected him so deeply that he canceled a fight in California and flew back home to brood. When the persecution complex became intense, his manager took quick action—and proposed him for membership in the Odd Fellows. Graziano was accepted, and on the day he was initiated so many members sought to shake his hands, in adulation as well as in fraternity, that the fighter finally was convinced that Everybody's Not Against Rocky.

The scarcity of opening-night seats for "Death of a Salesman"—$100 was being offered for a pair—was due not only to the rave out-of-town notices but also to the fact that the 87 backers drew seat allotments.

On St. Valentine's Day, Rise Stevens will be at the wedding license bureau to present an album of love songs to the first couple married there.

Rank-Greedy Brass Bawled Out

By Drew Pearson

GOP Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri gave a star-studded delegation of Pentagon generals the bawling-out of their lives at a secret session of the House Armed Services Committee the other day. The issue under debate was not the 70-group Air Force, but an increase of both ground and air officers.

Short

Before the razor-tongued Missourian finished his lecture, the generals seemed only too happy to settle for a compromise increase of 3500 Army officers and 7500 in the Air Corps, instead of 21,000 new officers as requested.

"The trouble with you fellows is that you are always clamoring for more rank, more stars and more pay," bluntly asserted Short. "Your only interest in peacetime is pay and rank.

"I'm a strong supporter of 70 air groups, but what we need now is more planes, more weapons and more enlisted men—and fewer colonels and generals. This senseless yammering for extra rank is becoming more than the taxpayers can bear.

"If it was needed for security—yes, I'd be for it, but I'm not going to approve any further robbing of the taxpayers when the current officer strength is sufficient to meet the present-day emergency, which the State Department tells us isn't too serious."

Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia heartily agreed, though Representative Paul Kilday of San Antonio, Texas, held out for the 21,000-officer increase.

Mo. Highwaymen

Joseph R. Gilmore, a Philadelphia dairyman, has lodged a stiff protest with President Truman about the way the Missouri State Highway Department treats non-Missourians.

Gilmore reported to Truman that a Missouri highway patrolman stopped one of his trucks at Gray Summit, Mo., and poured 1800 pounds of its milk cargo out on the ground because the truck was overweight, due to ice accumulation on the undercarriage. The truck was making an emergency trip to Tulsa, Okla., to help relieve a milk shortage there.

The Philadelphia dairyman reported that the Missouri State Department wouldn't even let the truck proceed a few miles to a milk station—where the overweight milk could have been unloaded and sent to a hospital or charitable institution.

Senatorial Luck

New Mexico's Senator Clint Anderson, who not long ago sat at the head of the Agriculture Department, took a back seat in the Senate the other day after losing a 5-cent bet.

The occasion was the drawing for Senate seats by the 12 new Democratic Senators. The coveted seats are up front near the rostrum. However, only two of these were available to freshmen Senators.

Lyndon Johnson of Texas, one of the 12, complained that he never had any luck at drawings. Nevertheless he bet 5 cents with Anderson over who would get the best seat.

Anderson reached in the hat and drew a rear seat. Johnson waited until last to draw. So did Oklahoma's Senator Bob Kerr.

"You were in Congress before me," Kerr deferred. "Go ahead and draw."

"But you were Governor of a State," Johnson protested. "That's higher than a Congressman. You draw first."

Finally they agreed to reach in the hat at the same time—and got the only two front seats available to freshmen.

GOP Tariff Change

A closed-door caucus of House Republicans this week revealed the significant fact that the high-tariff Grundyites of the Republican Party are losing out. Many GOP Congressmen expressed support for the reciprocity treaties, previously mangled by the Eightieth Congress. Here are the highlights of the secret GOP session:

Representatives Robert Kean of New Jersey and Hal Holmes of Washington explained why they joined Democrats in voting for the reciprocal trade measure in the Ways and Means Committee. The reciprocal program is a vital part of our international trade relations, said Holmes, who comes from the great apple-growing section of Washington.

Both Holmes and Kean argued for an amendment to give the United States Tariff Commission authority to make recommendations to the President on tariff reduction, which caused Elder Statesman Jim Wadsworth of New York to inquire:

"By the way, just what does the Tariff Commission do any more? Maybe we ought to put it to work to justify its existence?"

Reported Representative Robert J. Corbett of Pennsylvania: "For years my Pittsburgh district was a stronghold for the high tariff, but now the majority of my people are for this reciprocal program and against high tariffs. That includes, I might add, not only labor, but many industrial leaders. They want to see the program extended."

Overcome the Causes of Baldness—ACT NOW!

Ray Plasterer, Trichologist

Washington, February 12, 1949. You don't have to accept baldness. Scientists agree that if your scalp is properly treated when the first signs of approaching baldness appear, you can save your hair. You will surely become bald, however, if you ignore increased hair fall, itching, dandruff, excessive dryness or oiliness. These are the first symptoms that your hair needs attention and when you notice them you should visit the Hair and Scalp Clinic for a Free, Private Examination. They will tell you exactly what can be done for your hair, how long it will take and what the reasonable cost will be. If you are accepted for treatment, modern scientific methods will eliminate the causes of hair loss, your hair will thicken, your scalp will feel healthy and alive. The appearance of your hair will improve, and you will learn how to care for your hair—how to keep it healthy and strong. Come in today for your free examination. THE HAIR & SCALP CLINIC, Inc., office is located at 606-609 Bond Bldg., S.W. Cor. 14th St. and New York Ave. N.W. Hours: 9:30 A.M. to 7:00 P.M. Saturdays, 9:30 to 4 P.M. Phone EXecutive 3832.
